All Twelve Will Be Favorably Reported in Both Houses of Legislature Today.

LEADERS HOLD CONFERENCE

MEASURES HAVE TEETH

One Outlawing 25 Per Cent. Increase in Year May Retroact for Last 12 Months.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 24.—Prompt action by the Legislature to meet the rent and housing situation in New York City was assured tonight after a conference between J. Henry Walters, President pro tem. of the Senate; Speaker Sweet of the Assembly and a dozen other legislators and persons, who have been actively identified with the pending bills.

After the conference it was announced that the leaders of both the Senate and Assembly were in thorough accord on the rent relief program and that the twelve bills pending would be advanced as rapidly as procedure would permit and probably be enacted before the end of the week. All will be favorably reported in both houses, the stormy hearing of yesterday having impressed the lawmakers with the need of speed.

Of the series of bills ready, the one regarded as the most drastic and important provides that any rent increase in excess of 25 per cent. in any one year must be construed by the courts as unreasonable. This bill, it was more than intimated, would in effect be retroactive over a period of twelve months and would play havoc with the earnings of profiteering landlords, who, if conditions in New York City were truly reflected in statements made at yesterday's hearing, in many instances have jumped rents as much as 100 per cent. in the last year.

To emphasize their character as emergency measures a time limit is embodied in the bills under which the most drastic will cease to be operative on Nov. 1, 1922. The bill placing a 25 per cent. limitation on rent increases in addition has what might be termed a preamble in which the nature of the emergency has been set forth as follows:

"Unjust, unreasonable and oppressive agreements for the payment of rent having been and being now exacted by landlords from tenants under stress of prevailing conditions whereby the freedom of contract has been impaired and congested housing conditions resulting therefrom have seriously affected and endangered the public welfare, health and morals, and a public emergency existing in the judgment of the Legislature by reason thereof, it shall be a defense to an action for rent accruing under an agreement for premises occupied for dwelling purposes in cities that such rent is unjust and unreasonable and that the agreement under which the same is sought to be recovered is oppressive."

In the twelve measures agreed on at the conference today there are these provisions:

1. Burden of proof that a tenant is objectionable when summary eviction is sought on that ground is shifted to the landlord.

2. The so-called Ottinger law is amended so as to provide that where an agreement between landlord and tenant does not specifically mention the duration of the tenancy this shall continue until Oct. 1 following occupancy.

3. Thirty days' notice instead of twenty days by tenants intending to move is required where there is a monthly tenancy agreement.

Allows Tenant to Remain.

4. In holdover cases, after there has been default in the payment of taxes or assessments, a tenant may remain, providing he deposits the amount of his rent with the Judge or Clerk of the Court through which eviction warrant has been served.

5. Where a precept is returnable the court may determine the amount of rent due and render judgment for that amount.

6. Where a landlord has increased his rent more than 25 per cent. over what it was in the previous year the tenant may set up as a defense to action for payment of rent that it is "unreasonable, unconscionable, unjust and oppressive," but the landlord may recover a "reasonable" amount of rent.

7. Section 220 of the real estate law, under which a landlord may recover double penalty from a tenant holding over without his consent, is repealed.

8. A tenant may make application for a stay up to nine months and the Judge in his discretion grant it, provided the tenant deposits the amount of his rent and proves to the satisfaction of the court that he has diligently sought to secure suitable premises for himself and family and has failed through no fault of his own.

9. Practice is prescribed and the provisions of the code in summary proceedings harmonized with the new provisions embodied in the relief bills.

10. The penal law is amended by making it a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $1,000 or one year's imprison-

SIDEWALK ROOF FALLS; 1 DIES, 5 HURT

SUPERINTENDENT ARRESTED

Builders Warned Last January Structure Was Unsafe—Suit Started, but Dropped.

A roof over the sidewalk, designed to protect people from bricks falling from a building being remodelled on the uptown side of Forty-ninth Street between Broadway and Seventh Avenue, collapsed at 5:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon under the weight of building material stored on it for the convenience of the builders, killed one man and injured five others.

Police Lieutenant Frye ordered the arrest of David Carver, construction superintendent for the McReynolds Realty Corporation Greenwich Associates, Inc., on a charge of criminal negligence.

The roof over the sidewalk ran from a point about thirty feet east of Broadway to Seventh Avenue, a distance of ninety-six feet. It was stacked high with bricks taken out of the old walls of the building, which formerly was occupied by the Smith Furniture Company and many years ago as a public school building. A mass of lumber and large stone blocks was added to the load during the last two days.

The weight was piled most heavily on the edge of the roof nearest the curb, and the supporting timbers gave way where seven persons were passing under it. When the structure capsized, nine-tenths of its burden fell over into the street, instead of on the sidewalk.

One Man Escapes Injury.

The man who was killed, Charles P. Metarath, was caught in the woodwork, carried into the gutter and crushed. One of the seven persons on the sidewalk at the time escaped without injury because the weight falling outward into the street pulled the overhead structure clear of him.

The crash was heard for several blocks along Broadway and brought a crowd of thousands to the scene in a few minutes. Walter A. Roche, proprietor of the Broadway Laundry in Forty-ninth Street, directly across the street, said:

"The first I heard was a click-click-click—a series of sounds in quick succession, probably caused by the snapping of cross-pieces as the timber gave way. This was followed by a terrific crash. The dust was so thick then that I could not see more than a foot or two in front of my window. I rushed to the telephone, where a man had been trying unsuccessfully to get a telephone number, and tried to get Police Headquarters. Central did not answer. I signaled again and again. It seemed like ten minutes before I got an answer, but I suppose it was really about three minutes. I asked for 'Spring 3100,' Police Headquarters, and after further delay got it."

Crippled Woman Hurt Badly.

Persons who arrived within a few seconds after the crash heard groans and cries for help from the wreckage. One of the first to be rescued was Mrs. Mary Barnes, 56 years old, of 250 West Fifty-second Street. Mrs. Barnes, who is slightly crippled and uses crutches, had just walked eastward from Broadway under the roof when it collapsed. Several bricks fell on her and she was held fast in broken woodwork. She was extricated by Harry Cornell, who was driving an ambulance of the Polyclinic Hospital at the corner of Forty-ninth Street at Broadway, when the accident happened. Cornell was aided by Isidor Finkelstein of 1,761 Bedford Avenue, the Bronx, and several others. She was taken to the Bellevue Hospital. Her skull may be fractured, it was said.

Others taken to the Polyclinic Hospital for first aid and then removed to

PREDICT MAJORITY WILL ASK OUSTING OF FIVE SOCIALISTS

Albany Believes Barring of Party from Polls Will Also Be Advised.

RECOMMENDED BY NEWTON

CALLS ALL FIVE INELIGIBLE

He Declares They Are Bound by Oath to Party to Mass Action and Force.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 24.—In the case of the suspended Socialist Assemblymen, a majority of the Assembly Judiciary Committee are expected to report early next week in favor of expelling all five Socialists on the ground that they are ineligible and unqualified to sit, also urging the outlawing of the Socialist Party at the polls. This follows the contentions in a brief filed by Attorney General Newton today.

Speaker Sweet today asked all members of the lower house to arrange their affairs so as to permit attendance at next week's session, when, he said, the report and recommendations of the Judiciary Committee would be placed before the Assembly for action.

The final preliminary step in the ouster proceedings was taken when Attorney General Newton, as chief of counsel for the State, filed brief.

The brief asserts that the political aspect of the Socialist Party is secondary and that it is, in fact, a revolutionary organization, intent on the overthrow of the Government through illegal means and mass action, such as general strikes, if necessary.

Chairman Martin of the Judiciary Committee and other members were in executive session practically all day framing the report and recommendations to be submitted to the Assembly proper. It is forecast on the best of authority that a majority of the committee will subscribe to a report in accord with the demands of the brief filed with the committee today by the State.

Says They Are Bound by Party Acts.

The Attorney General's brief bases its recommendation on the charge that their party affiliation untits them for service in the Assembly.

"It is by the organization to which they belong that these men must be judged," said the brief. "Their individual acts and declarations, in so far as they have been proved, serve merely to illumine and to show in concrete operation the principal purposes of the party to which they belong.

"Socialists are trying to bring about a change of government by political action backed up by a general strike, the two being employed as the two strong arms of a giant to pull down the structure of our Government which has been built and maintained through the inspiration, the toil and the blood of countless loyal citizens of this Republic."

Assemblyman Samuel Orr and Samuel A. De Witt, against whom no personal charges were made, are included in the demand for exclusion on the ground that they are "members in good standing, pledged to support Socialist principles and programs, and in failing to take the stand by their silence have acquiesced in the utterances of their party and admitted the truth of the accusations brought against them and must suffer from every hostile presumption rising from their silence."

The individual acts of August Claessens, Louis Waldman and Charles Solomon, the other three, as shown by the testimony, are subordinated in the brief as merely affording illustration and making manifest where the Socialist Party principles will lead when applied in word and act. Every charge against the five Assemblymen has been proven, according to the brief, which recommends that the committee report that they "are ineligible and disqualified to seats in the Assembly for all of the reasons set forth and because of their disloyalty to the United States of America and State of New York; that

Syrians and Arabs Order French and British to Leave

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 23 (Associated Press). — Dispatches from Beirut announce that Emir Feisal, recently proclaimed King of Syria, has given the French until April 6 to leave Syria, and the Arabs have ordered the British out of Palestine.

Prince Feisal, son of the King of Hedjaz, has been ordered to explain to the Supreme Council of the Allies the crowning of him as King of Syria. Premier Lloyd George announced that recognition was denied him by the Allies as the ruler of that country, and Lebanon protested against his sovereignty.

After the ceremony of his proclamation Emir Feisal declared that this would not affect relations with the Allies.

STUDENT 'SOVIET' DUCKS PROFESSORS

DIDN'T HELP BUILD TRACK

HAYS, Kan., March 24.—The Fort Hays Normal School is in the grip of what some professors call a "student Soviet," whose principal occupation is throwing professors into the lake on the college campus, according to Professor P. Casper Harvey, who telegraphed State authorities at Topeka for protection today. R. J. Hopkins, Attorney General, has directed the County Attorney to prosecute all persons responsible for the disorders.

The trouble began, it is said, when President W. A. Lewis of the school, left a few days ago on business. On departing, he suggested a half holiday, during which the men students could build a running track. Girl students were to prepare a meal. At a "pep" meeting, it is reported, a woman suggested in fun that girls who did not help should be ducked in the lake.

On Monday an announcement was posted that "all persons, including the faculty, will be ducked if they fail to report for duty at 1 P. M., Tuesday, March 23." John Lindquist, editor of the college newspaper, was the first victim. He was taken from the college library, and, although he cannot swim, was thrown into water over his head.

Another person to suffer was Professor James Start, a bridegroom. He was rescued from the lake by three students. Professor Harvey, a third victim, dived into the water before the students could act. Both Start and Lindquist are veterans of the war.

"I intended to do my bit gladly on the track," said Professor Start, "but I was threatened with ducking if I did not do as ordered. I decided not to be governed by force and threats."

Professor Start's house was patrolled by students all day yesterday. Finally he took his bride to a hotel, and this also was picketed by students, who caught the professor when he started for the school this morning.

Professor Harvey issued the following statement:

"I was for working on the track when it was first announced, and expected to come out that day, but two things arose. Tuesday afternoon was my only afternoon for debate work, and I will not be forced to do anything by threats. I dived into the water for the sake of an ideal and as a protest against the use of force to promote school spirit."

E. L. Montague, Financial Secretary of the school, denied tonight, however, that there was any "Soviet" at the school, but said that the day had been set apart as Campus Day, in which every member of the Faculty and every student was expected to help in building the track. A playful suggestion was made that those who refused be ducked.

James Start and P. Casper Harvey of the Faculty, and John E. Lindquist, a student, refused and were ducked, with the approval of the Faculty and the students, according to Mr. Montague.

"It was simply an expression of college spirit, nothing else," he asserted.

INVESTIGATE FORD, GOVERNOR ADVISES

Michigan Executive Says That Losing Candidate's Campaign Should Be Looked Into.

LANSING, Mich., March 24.—Until the United States Supreme Court passes on the verdict of the jury in the Newberry elections conspiracy trial at Grand Rapids none of the seventeen men found guilty of criminal conspiracy will be asked to relinquish any public office they hold, said Governor Albert A. Sleeper in an interview here today.

The Governor said he believed the campaign of Henry Ford, Senator Newberry's Democratic opponent in the 1918 election, should now be investigated.

"Senator Newberry, Richard H. Fletcher, State Labor Commissioner, and myself have been attacked by the press in and out of the State since the trial closed," said the Governor. "It has been suggested that Newberry and Fletcher should resign. I see no cause for this until the Supreme Court makes known its findings.

"If I make any request at present, one will be that the Federal Government conduct just as active an investigation into the campaign conducted by Henry Ford as by Senator Newberry. If the Government is sincere in its investigation it should not stop with investigating the campaign of the winner, but should look into the campaign of the loser, as well."

SENATORS URGE SALE OF ARMS TO ARMENIANS

Sub-Committee Also Favors Sending a Warship with Marines

TO GUARD OUR INTERESTS

WILSON WOULD OUST TURKS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Recommendations that the United States Government should provide arms and equipment for an Armenian army sufficiently large to police the country and protect its people against the Turks and Kurds, were made by a sub-committee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today in reporting a resolution introduced last September by Senator Williams of Mississippi.

The committee further recommended that an American warship and marines be sent to Batoum, and that the marines be landed to protect Americans there and along the railway to Baku.

It did not approve of the clause of the Williams resolution which authorized the President to use United States military and naval forces to restore and preserve tranquillity in Armenia until by treaty that country's status had been fixed.

The report, filed today by Senator Harding, Chairman of the sub-committee, with Senator Lodge, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, is as follows:

"The sub-committee of the Foreign Relations Committee appointed to give hearings relating to conditions in Armenia and to make recommendations relating to becoming action to be taken by the Senate and the Congress of the United States, begs to report that copies of the hearings already held have been placed in the hands of your committee. The hearings clearly establish the truth of the reported atrocities and massacres from which these unfortunate people have suffered, and impress us deeply that deplorable conditions of insecurity and starvation exist in Armenia today.

"Your committee recommends a suitable resolution by the Senate congratulating the people of Armenia on the recognition by the Peace Council of the independence of the republic of Armenia, without prejudice relating to territorial boundaries involved, and said resolution might express our hope for early stability and the full realization of Armenian aspirations to nationality.

"It is further recommended that the executive branch of the United States Government dispatch a warship and a force of marines to the port of Batoum, with instructions to land the marines to protect American lives and property at that port and along the railway lines to Baku.

"The committee further recommends the passage of the necessary legislation by Congress to authorize and direct the Secretary of War to furnish to the Government of the Armenian republic arms and munitions necessary to equip a suitable Armenian army to main tranquillity and protect the lives and property of the citizens of the Armenian republic."

Wilson for Turks' Expulsion.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—The original position of the American Government that the Turks should be expelled from Europe, is restated in a note to the Allied Supreme Council, which has been prepared at the State Department and which will be transmitted soon. The note will bear the signature of Bainbridge Colby, the new Secretary of State, and will be the first diplomatic paper to be signed by him.

The communication is in reply to an inquiry from the French and British Governments as to this country's views on the Turkish settlement. An early announcement at the department said the note had been dispatched, but it developed that this was erroneous. Officials were not certain when it would go forward nor would they say whether it would be sent through the British and French Embassies here or through the American Embassies at London and Paris.

The position of the American Government is understood to be that there is no sound reason for retaining the Turkish capital in Europe. The United States is said to take the view that the contention that expulsion of the Turks might be resented by the Mohammedans is not supported by the facts, since the war in the Near East was won largely by the aid of Mohammedans.

The United States, it is understood, desires that Armenia be set up as an independent State and that it embrace as much territory as the Armenian Government can control. It also takes the position that any arrangement that is made with regard to Turkey should guarantee to all nations equal opportunities for commerce and that as belligerent should be given paramount claims in any part of the Near East.

The position of the United States, it is said, also is that in any arrangement for the government of Constantinople and the Turkish States a place for the participation of Russia should be made, as the American Government is convinced that no plan of settlement can be successful in the long run which does not take into account the interests of Russia in the matter.

THE HAGUE, March 24.—According to a telephone message just received from the Maasbode's Düsseldorf correspondent, the Berlin Government has concluded a twenty-four-hour armistice with the Red Army in the whole industrial district. Negotiations were begun last night and continued this morning.

THE HAGUE, March 24.—The Handelsblad's correspondent at Bielefeld, Westphalia, says that a forty-eight hours' armistice has been arranged between the Ebert forces and the workers' army, to continue unless terminated by twenty-four hours' notice. The belligerents are facing each other, according to a Berlin dispatch, while negotiations are in progress.

LONDON, March 24.—Latest dispatches received here indicate that the fighting has temporarily ceased in the Ruhr district.

PARIS, March 24.—A telephone message from the American Chargé in Berlin to the American Embassy here this afternoon, said the situation in Berlin was serious. Spartacides hold one-half of the city and the Government the other half, the river Spree being the dividing line.

Chargé Dresel has notified all Americans in Berlin that they must quit the capital as the United States could give no guarantee for their lives and safety.

Major Gen. Allen, commanding the American forces on the Rhine, has sent a special train from Coblenz to Berlin to bring out these Americans, who are not great in number, probably 250.

This train should leave Berlin tonight. A train bringing Americans from Leipsic reached Coblenz Sunday night.

The fact that Spartacides hold a large part of Berlin probably accounts for the paucity of news from there. The Ebert Government is supposed to have a strict censorship on to make its case look brighter.

The American information says there was no fighting in Berlin today. Spartacides were reported looting the north end of Berlin yesterday.

The Tempo has a dispatch from Berlin saying that in the new German Cabinet Bauer will remain as Chancellor and that Gessler will become head of the Reichswehr.

Still at Work on Cabinet.

BERLIN, March 24 (Associated Press).—The National Assembly met this afternoon, but the session was immediately postponed. The President, Konstantin Fehrenbach, was empowered to reconvene it when the situation became clearer.

The Prussian Assembly also postponed its meeting until after the meeting of the National Assembly.

The new Cabinet has not yet been formed. The various parties are still negotiating.

A semi-official statement concerning a report from Paris with regard to negotiations between France and Germany as to the sending of troops to the Ruhr region was issued here today. It says:

"There is no question of the sending of 100,000 soldiers to the Ruhr district, and military reinforcements would be employed only in the case of most urgent necessity. It goes without saying that any troops entering the Ruhr with the permission of the Entente would evacuate the region immediately order was restored."

The Freiheit, under the caption "A Great Lie," says: "The Government is constantly asserting that a great Red army has been formed in Rhenish Westphalia. This is an absolute untruth. The Rhenish Westphalian workmen only armed themselves to expel the troops who had declared for the Kapplist Government, and having succeeded in that object they naturally will not allow success to be snatched from their hands and thus give the troops an opportunity for a great massacre.

"Exemplary order prevails in all the towns in Rhenish Westphalia. No street is barred and nobody is prevented from working. The scare report is purposely spread as a pretext for the massacre which the beaten militarists are preparing in revenge for defeat.

"It must therefore be stated that not only are the supporters of the Independent and communist parties armed, but also the Right Socialists and democratic and Christian workmen."

The Freiheit further alleges that the Döberitz troops have been reinforced by large numbers of students and other reactionary elements, who are being armed by the Baltic troops.

Lüettwitz Not Arrested.

LONDON, March 24.—A Berlin dispatch under yesterday's date says the report of the arrest of Major Gen. von Lüttwitz and Rear Admiral von Trotha was erroneous.

The Freiheit regards this contradiction as confirming the report that the Government has promised clemency to von Lüttwitz and his accomplices.

SAYS WILSON GAVE RHINE GUARANTEE

Tardieu Asserts That It May Prolong French Occupation Beyond 1935.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 24.—André Tardieu, who was a member of the French Peace Commission, says that in April, 1919, President Wilson agreed with Premier Clemenceau that in the event of the non-ratification of the Franco-American military treaty France should be entitled to indefinite occupation of the Rhine.

In view of the failure of the American Senate to ratify the treaty and the covenant of the League of Nations; in view of the situation in Germany, which demands for mitigation of the terms of the treaty, and the present agitation for the independence of the Rhineland, such an agreement has no small historical importance.

M. Tardieu says that he could not speak of it while the treaty was pending before the Senate, but now that it has been rejected he believes that the time has come for France to let the world know that so long as Germany is a potential enemy and there are no military guarantees the watch on the Rhine will be maintained.

No one has ever publicly put such a construction upon Article 429 of the Treaty of Versailles. It has commonly been supposed that the guarantees there mentioned were those to be given by Germany. But M. Tardieu says the French Foreign Office has documents which prove that it was agreed that the guarantees upon which the withdrawal from the Rhine were predicated should be interpreted as guarantees of protection to France by America and England, as well as of fulfillment of the treaty.

L'Illustration will publish on Saturday an article by M. Tardieu explaining the situation. He has given me a copy, with permission to use it. It begins by stating that a year ago Premier Clemenceau foresaw the possibility of the Senate not backing up President Wilson and made provision for that eventuality, so that France might not suffer too much. He maintains that the treaty now in effect should be maintained, and that if it is maintained, France will be protected against German aggression. He recalls that on March 16, 1919, President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George offered the Franco-American and Anglo-French military treaties, in exchange for the occupation of the Rhine, and that M. Clemenceau refused the substitution and eventually carried his point for the interallied occupation of the Rhine, as well as the promise of the treaties. It was provided, on M. Clemenceau's initiative, that after the fifteen years fixed for the period of the occupation, it might be continued if Germany did not keep her engagements.

Wouldn't Speak Until Senate Had Acted.

But, if Germany pays the money due, M. Tardieu says, the question now arises, "If we do not have the American and English treaties, shall we be deprived in fifteen years of the guarantees of occupation?" and he continues:

"To this question, for reasons everybody will understand, I would not respond while the treaty was still before the American Senate. I answer it today with assurance. It is not only my right, but my duty, to show that for this risk M. Clemenceau gave us the capital guarantee which the interest of

RED ATTACK FAILS; PARLEYS AT WESEL

British and Belgian Civil Commissions Taking a Hand in Ruhr Negotiations.

WORKMEN'S FURY SLACKENS

Driven Back More Than a Mile by Regulars, and the Day's Firing Is Only Moderate.

RUDERICH, Rhenish Prussia, March 24 (Associated Press).—Four civilians and two motor cars, one sent out this morning and one this afternoon, were driven swiftly over the Rhine Bridge today into beleaguered Wesel, and it is believed that negotiations are going on there for the settlement of a truce.

British and Belgian civil control commission representatives also have entered Wesel. Officially these visits are not being discussed, but evidently they were prearranged, as the Rhine Bridge has been absolutely closed to traffic from the left bank of the river.

The workmen's forces are said to have been beaten back more than a mile at Wesel today, although the firing was never intense, and the situation was regarded as rather quiet. It is reliably estimated that the besieged in the city number about 5,000, and that there are 2,000 men on the line. Figures as regards the workmen are less reliable, but it is said they number 15,000 or more. They are said to be less effective in strength than their numbers indicate, because they fight in spurts.

Little surprise is expressed today at the moderation in today's fighting. It being believed that the workmen are losing some of the first enthusiasm that enabled them to cut to pieces the Düsseldorf units that had been interned by the British and later to drive the troops before them in a wide, encircling guerilla movement.

A German observation airplane passed over Wesel this afternoon. Some persons reaching here from Wesel assert that they saw women, some of them mounted, fighting with the workmen.

The workmen threw a number of shells in the vicinity of the city, scoring one distinct hit almost as the allied commissioners passed the spot.

Apparently the Government's position is secure to the northward connecting Münster, as a railroad train is reported to have entered the city this afternoon.

One hundred and eighty-three Government stragglers who crossed the river last night were taken to Crefeld today, along with a German Lieutenant Colonel and two other officers, who said they were civilians and had been dismissed from the army. About 100 wounded here are being evacuated in motor ambulances to Crefeld.

The Belgian forces strengthened their positions today. They planted machine guns on the bridge, dug trenches on the bridgehead and manned the old German Rhine defenses. Lieut. Gen. Baron Jacques of the Belgian forces inspected the defenses this morning.

Government Reinforcements Arrive.

Reinforcements are reported by the interned prisoners to have arrived late yesterday from Münster. They said others were coming from the northeast, so that if Wesel becomes untenable it will be possible for the troops to make their way out on the north side and join the oncoming relief forces.

The prisoners here are mostly young men. Many of them told tales of tortures they claim they had suffered. Their accounts, however, were not supported by their appearance.

The siege proper of Wesel began late on Monday. Three days previous units of the Reichswehr, which had been driven northward and westward by workmen, occupied the city and organized for its defense. The workmen were poorly organized and few were uniforms.

British Miners Reject Offer, May Strike; Some Railway Men Quit Over Dispute

LONDON, Thursday, March 25.—A strike of the miners is regarded as almost inevitable, as Premier Lloyd George has declined to negotiate further with the Miners' Federation.

The miners' conference is expected to order a ballot today, which will occupy until Easter, and then a week's notice must be given before the strike can begin.

The Government's offer of 20 per cent. is, roughly, two-thirds of the miners' demand.

There is some talk of the possibility of the "triple alliance," which includes the transport workers and railwaymen, taking a hand in the dispute.

The delegates of the South Wales miners who are here and have been in conference over the Government's counter-proposal declare that the Government is hoarding coal in preparation for eventualities.

Representatives of the miners met in private. It was learned, however, that the delegates requested the Executive of the miners' union to reject the counter-proposals of the Government.

The conference decided to continue in session pending further negotiations.

The Daily Herald, organ of the workmen, asserts that the Government has decided on extreme measures to defeat the miners, even to using the army as a blockading force and starving the miners into submission.

G. H. Thomas, General Secretary of the National Union of Railway Men, has announced that 2,000 men of the Lancaster-Yorkshire Railway struck at Wakefield.

Because a driver refused to relieve another man after the former had worked one hour overtime the company suspended and refused to reinstate him.

Mr. Thomas said the disaffection was spreading and a serious situation might develop, as the Executive was standing by the men.

yet, either in his Berlin home or in any likely place he might choose for hiding.

Vorwärts says Ludendorff was chief conspirator and leading spirit in the Kapp régime, and directed all the movements from the navy office, where he established extensive headquarters, full of officers.

Odenwelier, a Hamburg Socialist, met Ludendorff there at the latter's invitation, to confer regarding his attitude. In the course of the conversation Ludendorff bragged of having engineered the "putch," saying among other things:

"We started this Kapp putch because the old Government had no men. What we need is at least one man with iron nerve. Men like Karlorff and Stresemann are mere puppets. A few Socialists are men with iron nerves. We don't mind forming a new Government with you."

The Zeitung am Mittag says today:

"It is a fact that he (General Ludendorff) took part in all important negotiations with the old Government and the trades unions, and his decisions and commands were blindly accepted by Kapp and Colonel Bauer. We cannot say how much Ludendorff knew of the preparations for the 'putch,' but it is certain Colonel Bauer made no secret about them to Ludendorff, and from March 13 the latter was really pulling with the revolutionists. On March 16 Kapp had already realized the failure of the 'putch,' because he had failed entirely either to persuade the labor representatives or to gain the confidence of the Entente missions, while some troops in Berlin and other places had absolutely refused to recognize his Government.

"Kapp was ready to withdraw then, but Ludendorff would not let him. On the contrary, he gave out the watchword 'Hold out!'

As in war, so did Ludendorff in these days of the dictatorship underestimate the strength of the enemy and overestimate his own. He displayed astonishingly bad political judgment. Berliners say that Ludendorff lost the second war in the days of March 13 to 18.

Hindenburg's attitude, too, seems not quite clear. In the telegram addressed to Lüttwitz he demanded that he withdraw his rebellious troops from Berlin and permit lawful government. Then in an interview with the Wolff Bureau's representative he spoke of two Governments, and also said he hoped the troops would support their leaders and uphold law and order. These leaders, however, were not backing the lawful Government, but the usurper's dictatorship.

Lüttwitz's greatest care during the five days of his reign was that he could not make his traitorous troops the promised payments, the Reichsbank or Federal bank having ignored his orders, because there was not a person named Lüttwitz having an account." Thereupon Lüttwitz ordered Colonel Ehrhardt, commander of the Baltic troops, to take possession of the bank and seize 10,000,000 marks. "I am no common thief," was Ehrhardt's answer, and Lüttwitz dared not repeat the command. At daybreak on March 13, von Jagow, late Imperial Police President of Berlin, arrived at the Wilhelmstrasse. "Having been promised a place in the Cabinet by Kapp, von Jagow, without first consulting his friends, proclaimed the Ministry of the Interior his own private property and told Schiffer, the member of the old Cabinet whom he found there, to get out. Schiffer protested that von Jagow's action was against law and decency. "We don't care for law and decency now," was von Jagow's answer, and he immediately took possession of the splendid official residence connected with this Ministry, where that same night he celebrated "our victory" in the midst of half a hundred Junkers drunk with wild joy and sparkling wine.

The next day he invited the members of the Berlin press to see him and talked much about the freedom of the press, and denounced as a "dirty lie" the report that Kapp's "putch" was in the interest of the monarchy. The same afternoon von Jagow issued an order to imprison all editors who wrote anything against the Kapp Government. The same night von Jagow sent officers to certain Berlin newspaper offices to tell them that unless they at once removed certain bulletins the responsible editor would be shot.

Berlin Workers Return to Posts.

March 23.—As the Independent Socialists follow the example of the majority Socialists by voting to resume work immediately, 60 per cent. of Berlin's working population was back in the shops and factories this afternoon. Twenty per cent. will follow tomorrow, but the rest may continue their strikes in the fantastic hope of a Bolshevist counter-revolution with the Red rebellion in the Ruhr district.

The Government, however, seems to have the situation here pretty well in hand.

The labor leaders, who had difficulty in inducing the masses to return to work, assert that they have saved Germany once more from anarchy and will try to exact from the Government compensation for this service that is anything but modest.

All day long the Federal and Prussian Cabinets were in consultation with labor leaders and large employers and political leaders of the three governing parties.

It would perhaps be impossible to approach an understanding, but for the bad news reaching Berlin from the Ruhr district and other parts of Germany where Bolshevism is rampant. Demands for reinforcements continued to come in all day from those districts, and there were few available even after Berlin had been almost denuded of military forces. There is still a great display of barricades, wire entanglements and the like, but the men supposed to defend them have for the most part left for Thuringia or Westphalia.

Reports of ruthless deeds come from both those provinces. In Lippe-Detmold the Spartacides permitted a company of troops which had been entrapped to depart, after giving up arms, but when the soldiers were defenseless they overwhelmed and killed several hundred of them.

Near Lippe the Spartacides stopped a military train, but when the engineer realized who they were he drove his locomotive through the dense masses, killing many. The Spartacides finally managed to drag the engineer from the locomotive, and only fragments of his body could be found afterward.

These and similar reports were communicated to labor leaders and with starvation threatening Berlin's population they urged the masses to return to work, promising that the Federal Prussian cabinets would be reorganized with representatives of the working classes.

It is said that the new Cabinets will be largely representative of the laboring classes, over whose interests they will watch until the country, by a general election in early May, returns a new Parliament and Government.

MUELLER SEES GOOD IN KAPP REBELLION

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 23.—"Germany is now safe for democracy. In these six words I may sum up the great object lesson of the miscarried plot of Kapp and Lüttwitz."

The speaker was Herman Müller, the German Foreign Minister, who has just given me an interview. He is back in Berlin with more hope than ever in the democratic future of Germany. Junkerism, he firmly believes, is dead and done with, and though there may be difficult days ahead, he is full of hope that Germany will pull herself together and work out her own regeneration.

"What made Kapp and his fellow conspirators," I asked, "embark on their enterprise?"

"Well," replied Herr Müller, "they thought they saw signs which they took to indicate the exasperation and disillusionment among the people at large regarding conditions under the republic. They could not believe in the strong democratic feelings which prevail throughout the country and they completely underrated the will and determination of the vast masses of the people."

"Do you believe, then, that the Government was justified in leaving Berlin?"

"I think that action has been completely justified," Herr Müller replied. "All our Generals except one expressed the view that the troops in Berlin were not sufficiently strong to insure successful opposition being put up against the forces which Lüttwitz had at his command. Had we decided to oppose the invading force, that would have meant a big battle at the very gates of Berlin, and there was always the probability that Lüttwitz would have won and therefore would have been able to enter the city as victor. That would have greatly strengthened the militarists' cause. They would have been able to say that our Government had really ceased to exist. The members of the Cabinet would most likely have been prisoners. In that case we should not have been able to arouse the opposition in the country."

"The fact that we were able to meet in Dresden on Saturday was striking enough evidence that the coup could not possibly succeed. On arrival in Stuttgart we was received in such a way as to demonstrate we had the country behind us. Think what would have happened had we all been lying in jail in Berlin! In Stuttgart we got into touch with Bavaria, Baden and other parts of the country. On Saturday I was able to communicate by telephone with my Ministry in Paris. We met the Entente representatives and were able to inform foreign countries as to the real state of affairs and to prevent the fictitious reports of Kapp and his fellow upstarts from holding sole sway. That I think was a very important matter. In short, events completely justified our tactics."

"You have heard the reports, Herr Müller, about England sympathizing with the military officers and being behind it, as such reports have been widely spread. Can you say anything on this matter?"

"Oh, I always regard such statements as sheer nonsense. I have just come from a gathering of the Majority Socialist Party and have stigmatized those statements as completely false. I informed the British representative in Dresden that I placed no credence whatever in them."

"And what will be the political effect of recent events?"

"It cannot be denied, of course," the Minister replied, "that the working classes have been greatly angered by them, and it would be foolish to say there has not been a decided swing to the political Left."

"Do you mean there is a prospect of the Majority and Independent Socialists being reunited?"

"Certainly; the Majority and Independent Socialists have been working together throughout the provinces against the militarist régime, and there certainly is a tendency in that direction. In Berlin it has not come so far as an agreement between those two parties, but I must emphasize that the political current is flowing in that direction.

"These black days of internal strife have had their good side. They have shown beyond a doubt that Germany will not stand any caste or class government and that she has the moral and material power to resist such. Germany has now been made safe for democracy. That has been proved by the really terrible week, and I hope the demonstration will cause the outer world to place more trust in the German people and their democratic leaders. If that proves to be so, then we have not suffered vainly."

DUTCH TAKE STEPS TO GUARD BORDER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, March 24.—Alarming reports are reaching here that a German Bolshevist army is rapidly approaching the Dutch frontier from a German industrial district, which is dangerously near the Netherlands eastern frontier.

The ever vigilant Dutch Government, fully aware of all the dangers of the present situation in Germany, has taken precautionary measures.

From Zevenaar, on the Dutch frontier, the Red army's firing in the Wesel district is distinctly audible. Many refugees already have arrived at Zevenaar from Wesel, bringing reports of fierce fighting. Train connection between Wesel and Holland is practically cut off. Latest reports, however, state that the Government troops are successfully resisting the Bolsheviki at Wesel.

The Handelsblad's Berlin correspondent reports that the Reds already have attempted economical negotiations with Holland through the Dutch Minister in Berlin, but without results. Food conditions in the German industrial district have taken on an alarming character, and may force the Bolsheviki to negotiate. The Dutch Government has followed the Allies' example and refuses to send food to the Soviet Republic.

FOCH'S RUHR PLAN STILL UNACCEPTED

Britain Holds Back on French Proposals for Occupation or Guarantees.

WASHINGTON ALSO OBJECTS

Time Will Probably Be Given for Ebert to Bring About a Settlement with the Workers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 24.—The Allies have been unable up to tonight to agree on a reply to the German Government's request for permission to send a force of 100,000 troops into the Ruhr basin, where the workers' force holds control in defiance of the Berlin authorities. It is possible the permission will be granted under conditions. It is on the conditions that Millerand and Lloyd George have not found an accord.

It is not hard to understand why the French Government, acting in accord with Marshal Foch's advice, finds it difficult to agree to such a large German force getting into the Ruhr basin. As the supreme interallied military chief Foch has the job of directing any military steps or demonstration which may be adjudged necessary to secure the fulfilment of the treaty. He has always regarded the Ruhr basin, indispensable to Germany's economic life, as giving the best field for any demonstration to impress Germany with the Allies' determination that she must live up to the Versailles Treaty. But allied occupation of the Ruhr basin with a strong German force in it and as neutral territory are different propositions. Therefore Foch wants guarantees that once in the German Government's troops would not stay in, that when order is restored they will get out. It is seen as not beyond the realm of possibilities that after order is restored the German Government may say that the maintenance of order demands the keeping of troops there. That is what Foch seeks to guard against.

It is not known just what guarantees he demands, but it is reported he is working on a plan for the maintenance of order in the Ruhr in the future, a plan which may be acceptable to both the Allies and Berlin. The English apparently do not think as well of Foch's plans as the French Government does.

It is possible that the Allies will occupy Frankfort as a guarantee that the German troops will leave the Ruhr once order is established. It has been proposed that allied officers accompany the German troops.

Meanwhile it appears not at all certain that Berlin is so anxious to send its troops to the Ruhr. Negotiations between representatives of the workers' forces and the Ebert Government are continuing. Besides the use of force Ebert has two other weapons. He might try, first, agreement by concessions, and, second, blockade.

It is possible that the Allies will be in no hurry to act on their own initiative if Ebert shows any disposition to restore the proper situation. But it must be borne in mind that France should receive about 200,000 tons of coal monthly from the Ruhr, and she is now receiving no part of that, while the workers controlling the Ruhr say they will not only mine no coal for France, but if the Ebert Government, with allied consent, sends troops into the district they will destroy the mines.

There is a great paucity of news from Germany. All big Paris papers have sent many correspondents across the Rhine, but no dispatches, or very few, are being received.

The French are anxious to get more exact information about the Ruhr army before acting. At first it was presented by Berlin as a Communist-Spartacist force. The leaders of this army declare, however, that they are not Spartacides and do not seek a Soviet Government. They contend they represent the workers of Germany out against the Prussian militarists; that they stand on the Constitution, but want a Cabinet of Socialists and an army of Socialists. It appears that the workers of the Ruhr region as well as the employes are back of the movement. It seems an entirely new kind of Spartacism unless it is something else. There is no rioting and no looting in the Ruhr district, and most of the factories are running. From this angle the Ruhr army does not look so bad to Frenchmen. Yet, on the other hand, the leaders will send no coal to France and also are maintaining an armed force in neutral territory in violation of the treaty. It is truly a many-sided situation.

The Burgomaster of Essen and many other representatives of the Ruhr Valley Socialists are in Berlin, the Matin correspondent states, petitioning the Government not to use force and promising coal in exchange for food. Three socialist parties of Westphalia have drawn up a program which they have presented to the Government. They declare that they are opposed to dictatorship of the proletariat and set forth the following conditions: (1) The Reichswehr to be disarmed and all officers dismissed; the Government police and civil guards in all towns to be disarmed and disbanded. (2) The disbanded troops to be replaced by a militia of adherents to the parties signatory and under command of known republicans. (3) While the militia is being formed in accord with the treaty and discussed with the allies armed workers will maintain order. (4) To prevent surprises a sufficient body of armed workmen must be kept in all towns and villages for this purpose. (5) All traitors and officers of the Reichswehr who have refused to fight traitors must be punished. (6) The unity of the empire must be maintained.

RECORDS ALLIED FRICTION.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 24.—The following article by "Pertinax" will appear in tomorrow's Echo de Paris:

"The Council of Ambassadors, which met Tuesday evening under the Presidency of M. Millerand, continued the debate which began Saturday on the following questions: The request made by Germany to send troops into the Ruhr district to re-establish order; the disarmament of Germany, which recent events and the amount of arms in German possession show must be pursued energetically, and punishments for incidents before the coup d'état by which the work of the Allied Control Commissions was interfered with. The first two of these are the most important.

"The Ambassadors of Great Britain and Italy informed the Council in reply to a demand for the instructions which they had made to their Governments after the meeting of Saturday. The Cabinets in London and Rome are, it appears, disposed to comply with the request made by the Germans eight days ago that they be allowed to occupy the Ruhr region with a large garrison.

"As for the disarmament of Germany, on which Marshal Foch has eagerly insisted, they declare all action inopportune. France retains on both subjects her original opinion, and one is in consequence forced to record that a grave misunderstanding is arising between the Allies. The fact that the German officers who have arrived in Paris to inform the Allies of the latest events, have requested that the number of troops for the Ruhr, at first fixed at 30,000 or 40,000 men, should be increased to 150,000, and that England and Italy do not appear to object to this increase, does not improve matters.

"The Supreme Council in London is seeking a compromise. Lloyd George and Scialoia are inclining toward a system of guarantees in order to secure the recall of the German troops from the Ruhr at the end of a specified time. For example, allied officers would accompany and overlook the Reichswehr troops in the Ruhr. The occupation of a new German town by allied troops, for example, Frankfort, would provide a useful guarantee for the eventual withdrawal of the Germans, according to the treaty.

"The French Government has not yet accepted such a proposition. It is convinced that once German soldiers are in the Ruhr they will not get out, and that the delivery of coal is the chance and the maintenance of the neutrality zone of fifty kilometers will come to an end.

"Tomorrow [Thursday] M. Millerand will explain the situation to the Chamber."

Washington Opposes Allied Action.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—The United States is understood to have decided to join with Great Britain and Italy in opposing any military action by the allied Government to force preservation of order in the Ruhr valley, where the Ebert Government is confronted with a revolutionary movement.

Ambassador Wallace at Paris, it was said today, had been informed of this Government's position.

Secretary Baker said today that no report as to the presence of German troops in the neutral zone on the right bank of the Rhine River had been communicated to the War Department by Major Gen. Allen, commanding the American forces in Germany.

WORKERS FIGHTING REICHSWEHR POWER

HEAVY LOSSES IN CLASHES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ESSEN, March 23.—Today I arrived in Essen, which is equivalent to saying I arrived at the centre of the war zone. In Essen itself and in practically all the cities in this Ruhr territory workers' councils have been established, although nowhere has any Soviet republic yet been formally proclaimed. These councils are busily engaged in organizing their members for war against the Reichswehr troops. I gather the workers are not so much intent on establishing communism as simply overthrowing the power of the Reichswehr troops, whom they always hated and always suspected because of their officers.

Be that as it may, there is no mistaking the warlike atmosphere in which people here are living. Efforts are now being made to organize the workers on the basis of unity of command. The warfare hitherto has been wholly of a guerrilla nature, and it is only now that a more or less clear view is being obtained of the course of events. Thus a battalion of Reichswehr troops marched into the Ruhr territory last week with the old German colors and announced it had been sent by the Ebert Government to preserve order, but the workers flatly refused to believe this, and after severe fighting the battalion was surrounded at Dortmund and forced to surrender.

From this point the armed workers seem to have got beyond control of their leaders and have attacked everybody who wore a uniform. In continually increasing numbers they have marched from city to city capturing them all, one by one. Rifle and bayonet fighting have been going on and heavy losses are being inflicted by both sides.

As yet the nature of the fighting precludes any safe estimate of the number of casualties being made. The upshot of all the fighting is that since Saturday last there have been no more armed soldiers in the Ruhr territory and all power is essentially in the hands of the workers' councils. According to the latest information, the opposing forces are being concentrated around Wesel, on the Rhine, some fifteen miles north of this city. There some 6,000 Reichswehr troops, who are receiving reinforcements from the peasantry, are opposed by 15,000 workers. Both sides are using artillery and both apparently are digging themselves in. Many isolated battles are reported, and last evening the Ruhr Echo, the organ of the Independent Socialists, issued a regular communiqué, in which mention of various sections of the "front" as well as of the advances and retreats and armed trains. War material captured by the workers' army up to last Saturday was returned, according to this communiqué, at five cannon, six trench mortars, 3,000 rifles and 2,000 rounds of ammunition, with various odds and ends.

Essen itself in the meantime is quiet, although the telegraph office shows many signs of being badly hit. The newspapers, too, including the violently Pan German Rhenish Westphalian Gazette, all publish in the orders of the Executive Committee of the workers' council calling for the surrender of arms by the former armed police and enjoining all newspapers to send copies of each edition to the workers' council. Notice is also given as to enrolling stations for the workers' army. Two members of this army boarded my train before entering Essen. They seemed quite affable and explanatory, if also somewhat self-conscious; but, unless negotiations intervene, I firmly believe this workers' army is going to fight to the end.

EX-KAISER MAKES TRIP TO DOORN UNDER GUARD

Permitted to Leave Bentinck Castle for First Time Since Kapp Revolution.

AMERONGEN, March 23 (Associated Press).—For the first time since the Kapp revolution former Emperor William today was permitted to leave the Bentinck Castle here. Guarded by two police officers he made a secret trip to Doorn in a closed automobile. His object was to view the progress of the work on his future residence at Doorn.

The former Emperor returned to Amerongen a half hour later. Three rooms of his new residence now are in readiness and work on the others is progressing rapidly.

SAILORS REMOVE OFFICERS.

Admiral Evers and Others Deprived of Command at Kiel.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, (via Nauen), March 24.—According to a telegram from Kiel, sailors and marine troops have removed all officers, among them the commanding Admiral, Evers, replacing them by warrant officers and members of the Republican Officers' League.

TROOPS TAKE HALLE, PARTLY DESTROYED

City Had Been Isolated by Reds—Bavarians Go to Crush Coburg Revolt.

BERLIN, March 24.—The German press reports that Halle was captured by the Government troops soon after midnight.

An Erfurt dispatch says the insurgents at Gotha surrendered unconditionally at 6 o'clock on Wednesday. The leaders fled. It also is reported that the insurgents have evacuated Ohrdruff.

LEIPSIC, March 23 (Associated Press).—Halle, the large industrial town just to the northwest of this city, was completely cut off from communication tonight. The latest reports were that the troops had gained the upper hand this afternoon after a considerable part of the city had been reduced to ruins.

Saxon troops to reinforce the Government's contingents in Halle are on the way to that town.

In other of the various communities in this section of Germany the turmoil amid which they have been existing for more than a week was still continuing today, with no immediate prospect of its cessation. Fighting was reported going on in Coburg, which also is cut off from communication. Coburg was recently joined to Bavaria, and Bavarian troops are on the way to put down the disorderly elements.

At Chemnitz the workmen who succeeded in disarming the troops remained in control, and order has been completely restored.

As far as can be learned, the workmen's revolt everywhere in this section is directed against the military elements and shows no Bolshevist tendency. The single exception is the town of Falkenstein, near Plauen, Southern Saxony.

The number of casualties in Leipsic is not available, but they probably will total several hundred. When the news of the Kapp coup was received the labor leaders immediately met to unite the workmen against the revolutionists. A mass meeting the next day decided upon a general strike. The workmen refused to accept the proposal of the Communists for the establishment of a Soviet, upon which the Communists withdrew from the meeting. The leaders assert the workmen did not arm until after the sanguinary occurrences of March 15.

Notwithstanding Saxony's "Red" label, it is estimated that there are less than a thousand Communists in Leipsic, although the Independent Socialists are very strong. It is supposed that during the trouble of last year the workmen managed to obtain and hide large supplies of arms and munitions.

According to conservative estimates, about 10,000 carried arms in Leipsic last week, and, beginning with the first clash on March 15, when seventeen persons were killed and sixty wounded, there was almost daily street fighting up to last Saturday.

PREDICT MAJORITY AGAINST SOCIALISTS

because of such ineligibility and disqualification they are incapable of taking the oath of office prescribed by the Constitution of this State; that by formally subscribing to said oath their position, in view of their ineligibility and disqualification, is no different from what it would have been had they refused to take the said oath; that they, therefore, shall be denied seats in the Assembly."

In support of the contention that the Socialist Party is preparing and attempting to bring about a revolution in this country as part of the international Socialist revolution, the brief says:

Charges Incitement to Mass Action.

"It has opposed and obstructed and continues to oppose and obstruct the Government of the United States and this State in all measures relating to the national and State defense. Its purpose in so doing is a manifest one; to weaken and leave defenseless the Government of the State and nation against the attacks of foreign and domestic enemies, and thus deprive it of that right of self-preservation which is admittedly the first laws of government.

"It has advocated and incited the destruction of the existing Government of the United States by illegal mass action.

"While professing to utilize political action, it constantly denies that existing evils or defects may be remedied by such action, and insists that such political action must be supplemented by violent and mass action, which it advocates directly as well as by insinuation and suggestion.

"The political action of the party is responsible only to the dues-paying membership. Those who are elected to office are bound to follow the dictates of such membership and their compliance is compelled by drastic and comprehensive provisions in the constitution of the party.

"These methods and tactics are prescribed for the members of the party as an integral part of the party's principles and program by the international body already described. In the employment of each and all of these methods the Socialist Party of America is in harmony and accord with the radical revolutionary Socialists in all of the countries of the world."

The brief contends that the professions of the Socialists that they seek to accomplish the governmental changes their party program contemplates through parliamentary and peaceful means, and that they are prepared to abide by the decision rendered at the ballot box, fall to the ground in the light of various Socialists manifestoes setting forth the favorable party attitude toward the general strike and industrial action generally.

"These indicate clearly that industrial action is to be the compelling instrument for wresting control of government from the present hands and for the establishment of class dictatorship," the brief says. In closing it asserts that inflammatory speeches made by the Socialists are to instill "prejudice, hatred and contempt for the great mass of the American people," in the hearts of the workers in crowded city districts, who otherwise, would hesitate to attack the institutions of the Republic.

The Report Recommended.

The recommendation of counsel for the committee is that it report to the Assembly substantially as follows:

"That Louis Waldman, August Claessens, Charles Solomon, Samuel A. De Witt and Samuel Orr are and each of them is disloyal to the United States of America and to the State of New York, for which disloyalty, and because of all the other facts and reasons above set forth, they are and each of them is ineligible and disqualified to occupy seats in the Assembly of the State of New York as members thereof;

"That because of such ineligibility and disqualification they are and each of them is incapable of taking the oath of office prescribed by the Constitution of the State, according to the real intent and purpose of the constitutional provision requiring the taking of such oath;

"That by formally subscribing to said oath their position, in view of their ineligibility and disqualification, is no different from what it would have been had they refused to take the said oath;

"That they, therefore, are not entitled to have or to hold seats in the Assembly and that the seats to which they are elected be declared vacant."

but they were furious with determination and drove the Reichswehr troops before them, forcing the soldiers into Wesel. On Tuesday the workmen intrenched themselves and with artillery leveled the defenses of the city.

At 3 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon the workmen delivered a heavy general assault upon the city. They took a small château to the southeast which the troops had held as an advance machine gun position, but which was not important strategically. All Tuesday and Tuesday night the workmen's guns pounded the town and today the firing began early, but it was intermittent.

The losses of the Government troops are said to have been heavy during the last three days' march under guerrilla warfare, but the number of casualties cannot be ascertained.

COBLENZ, March 24.—Negotiations were opened today south of Wesel between the Government troops and the attacking Reds. The latter demanded the surrender of the town, but the troops opposed this, as they expect reinforcements. There was some fighting on the Lippe south of Wesel in the morning.

THE HAGUE, March 24.—Official circles here are informed that the Ebert Government in Berlin considers itself sufficiently strong from a military standpoint to crush the Spartacides in the Ruhr districts. It is probable, however, that it will compromise because of the fear that the Spartacides, if made desperate, would destroy the mines, crippling the industry of Germany, France and Holland.

WESEL, Germany, March 24.—Six thousand Government troops, reinforced by armed countrymen, had a skirmish with Communist guards numbering about 15,000 near here last night. Reports state sixty-two were killed and upward of 100 wounded during the fighting.

All Socialists Combining.

LONDON, March 24.—Reports from the frontier are to the effect that heavy fighting continues near Wesel, says The London Times Rotterdam correspondent. Gunfire has been heard at Zevenaar, in the Province of Gelderand, the same as during the war. The German Government troops have dug themselves in and are endeavoring to withstand vigorous attacks by the Red army.

According to the Telegraff, says The London Times correspondent, all the West German workers' councils were to meet on Wednesday at Essen to decide concerning what their attitude would be. From the preliminary discussions, says the Telegraff's correspondent in Berlin, it looks as if it is planned that the Soviet councils will be abandoned and all the Socialist parties in the Ruhr district will co-operate.

In Essen, says The London Times correspondent, as in almost every other town and district, any suggestion that the workers have decided to set up Soviet Government is expressly denied, and in most cases the moderate and extreme Socialists have found it possible to work in union.

The food supply appears to be normal and the population is going about its usual business as though nothing had happened.

Other telegrams received in authoritative quarters in London assert that everything is quiet in Frankfort, Münster, Hanover, Kiel, Breslau, Dresden, Stuttgart and Stettin.

Order in Duesseldorf and Essen.

DUESSELDORF, March 23 (Associated Press).—Düsseldorf is quiet. Perfect order also is reported at Essen, Duisburg, Elberfeld and other parts of the Ruhr district.

The Düsseldorf Government, from the Burgomaster down, is functioning, but under control of the orders of an Executive Committee of eight members whose Chairman is Peter Gerten, editor of the Düsseldorf Volkszeitung.

It is announced that the policy of the workmen is to maintain order, with the death sentence for those guilty of pillage. It is asserted there will be no requisitioning, no suppression of the newspapers and no arbitrary action, except what is necessary for the public good.

It is agreed by the citizens of Düsseldorf that quiet prevailed as soon as the troops of General von Watter, commander of the Reichswehr in Rhenish Westphalia, withdrew during Friday night. The citizen guard disbanded on Saturday morning upon the demand of the workmen, whose armed force arrived in the city in automobiles and motor trucks while a conference was going on at which the military officials decided to withdraw.

Leaders of the elements which have taken over control of this city insist the movement should not be termed Communistic as Soviets throughout Germany are considered impossible and dangerous. It is desired above all to do away with militarism, they add, and show the Allies that Germany is determined to take such a stand.

There are a few armed guards, but no real army to be seen. It is planned to have an old army commander, Captain Bredau, in charge of "the Security Guards," which is to be composed of workmen, who can be called to arms in case of emergency, but not regularly drilling as militia, which is what the workmen want to abolish.

our country demands, in order that every one in France and abroad should understand its nature and importance."

M. Tardieu then quotes Article 429, which provides: "If the conditions of this treaty are faithfully carried out by Germany the occupation referred to in Article 428 will be successively restricted as follows."

Then follow the provisions for the evacuation of the Cologne bridgehead in five years, of the Coblenz bridgehead in ten years, and of the Mayence bridgehead in fifteen years.

Then follows another paragraph: "If at that date the guarantees against unprovoked aggression by Germany are not considered sufficient by the Allied and Associated Governments the evacuation of the occupying troops may be delayed to the extent regarded as necessary for the purpose of obtaining the required guarantees."

"This final paragraph," says M. Tardieu, "was adopted from April 22 to April 29 at the demand of M. Clemenceau. What is its origin, and what does it mean? On April 23, at a private meeting, M. Clemenceau put to Mr. Wilson the following question:

"'The treaty as it is satisfies me from the point of view of guarantees. But the future is not in your hands nor in mine. You have a Senate, as I have a Parliament. Neither you nor I can be sure of what they will do ten years from now. If, for example, the treaties with the United States and Great Britain are not ratified, what will be the situation of France? What other guarantees will be at her disposal?'

"President Wilson replied:

The Guarantee of Article 429.

"This search lasted more than a week. On five occasions the President and Premier exchanged suggestions and texts. An examination of these texts, which are in existence, places their plan in the full light of day. On the evening of April 29, in accord with Premier Lloyd George, President Wilson and Premier Clemenceau fixed upon the definite wording which became final. It was Article 429. Read the text and understand it. It is at the end of fifteen years—Jan. 10, 1935—that the Allied and Associated Governments, by the terms of this final paragraph, would have to decide if the guarantees against unprovoked aggression by Germany were or were not sufficient.

"Of what guarantees is it a question? It is a question of the guarantees of the Treaty of Versailles and of the two other treaties, the English and the American. That is to say, for the distant future the League of Nations; for the nearer future the occupation plan completed by the two treaties.

"In what case can these guarantees be judged in 1935 to be insufficient? In the case manifestly where we lack the two treaties of guarantee—in other words, as is the case at present.

"In that situation what will happen? The evacuation may be delayed in the measure judged necessary to obtain the required guarantees. In other words, if, lacking the ratification of the English and American treaties, France has at the end of fifteen years no other guarantee than the occupation of the left bank of the Rhine, that occupation can be prolonged until there exist other guarantees—that is to say, until the two treaties are in force or their equivalents accorded.

Thus, to the question put April 23, 1919, by the Chief of the French Government to the President of the United States; to the question put in March, 1920, by the vote of the American Senate, the final paragraph of Article 429, crowning the efforts of M. Clemenceau, gives the precise response, which in any outcome safeguards the interests of France.

"Those who criticise the treaty without understanding it, and often without having read it, can reassure themselves. For, if by a hypothesis which is far from being a certitude the guarantees of the United States and Great Britain are not given, the treaty recompenses us in physical and territorial guarantees.

Calls Defeat of Treaty Political.

PARIS, March 24 (Associated Press).—Commenting on the rejection of the Treaty of Versailles by the United States Senate, André Tardieu, writing in L'Illustration, says:

"It was a political campaign conducted for a political aim, by political means. The aim was to deprive President Wilson and the Democratic Party of power; the means were negative expectancy during the negotiations, assault after the signing of the treaty.

"However, the Treaty of Versailles remains integrally in force, and the League of Nations remains constituted. No matter how great the regret one feels at the absence of the United States, nothing is lacking in the right of either the treaty or the League of Nations to live and function."

With reference to the guarantee to France against unwarranted attack by Germany necessitating abeyance owing to the non-ratification of the Anglo-Franco-American agreement, M. Tardieu says:

"While France deeply regrets the collapse of the treaty, it is no time to forget services rendered. France recollects 2,200,000 soldiers and 15,000,000,000 francs loaned at a time when neutral markets were closed to us, 400,000 tons of shipping placed at our disposal and thousands of tons of wheat, assuring bread for 11,000,000 Frenchmen. France remembers that if Marshal Foch was able to conceive and execute the offensive of July, 1918, it was due to the 300,000 American soldiers reaching France monthly.

"If, owing to non-ratification of the American, British and French protective treaty, France after fifteen years of occupation along the Rhine has no other guarantee of security than the occupation of the left bank of the Rhine, such occupation might be prolonged until other guarantees exist, whether they are obtained through the coming into force of the American, British and French compacts or other equivalent guarantees."

BUILDERS REJECT HYLAN AS ARBITER

Bricklayers' Refuse to Join Trades Council and Employers Hold New Conference.

TO REPLY TO MAYOR TODAY

Albany Hearing on Housing Bills Called Disgraceful — Curran to Ask Appropriation for Dwellings.

Mayor Hylan's efforts to stimulate the construction of dwellings by settling the dispute between the Bricklayers' Union and the Mason Builders' Association were halted yesterday when a committee of the employers reported to him that their organization had voted down the suggestion that the Mayor act as arbitrator in the dispute. The bricklayers were willing to have the Mayor or a committee of three arbitrate their grievances.

The employers asked the bricklayers if they were willing to join the Building Trades Council, and this the workers refused to do, saying they would abide by the decision of Mayor Hylan or a committee. The bricklayers said they were demanding $1.25 an hour and that they thought this was modest pay because of the unsteady character of their work, asserting that their income averaged $15 a week.

The employers' committee agreed to submit the question of arbitration again to their members and left the Mayor's office. The employers met late in the afternoon at the Building Trades Employers' Association and, after discussing the situation for several hours, framed a reply which will be submitted to the Mayor this morning. The employers would not divulge the nature of their answer.

Mayor Hylan is of the opinion that seven or eight men, whom he has not named, but who are understood to be officials of the Building Trades Council, Bricklayers' Union and Mason Builders' Association, can give the word to start a great building boom.

Attitude of Employers.

The bricklayers have been on strike since Jan. 1. The employers were willing to grant the bricklayers $9 instead of $10 a day. They desired the bricklayers to join the Building Trades Council, which includes a large section of the workers in the building trade, and with which the Building Trades Employers' Association negotiated new wage agreements covering all the workers except the bricklayers. The bricklayers have refused to join the council, because they do not like the way in which it is ruled.

After the conference at City Hall yesterday, Charles Curran, spokesman for the bricklayers, said: "The Mayor very kindly offered to act as arbitrator in the matter and the five unions of Greater New York accepted his offer. The Mason Builders declined the offer on the ground that they did not want a politician. We believe the refusal is due to the fact that the Mayor holds a union card.

"We will accept Corporation Counsel Burr or we will let the Mayor name one of our men. Let the other two men be a citizen and a newspaper man and this will be the Arbitration Committee. This committee to go to the Compensation Commission and they will discover that disabled bricklayers are allowed two-thirds of their weekly salary which is $15 on the average through the year."

Representatives of the builders declined to discuss the situation.

Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association; F. H. La Guardia, President of the Board of Aldermen, and others who attended the public hearing on the housing bills at Albany on Monday, returned yesterday and discussed the proposed legislation and the hearing.

Calls Hearing Disgraceful.

"The hearing was the most disgraceful affair I ever attended, both on the part of the landlords and tenants and elected officials," said Mr. Browne. "It was 'bedlam let loose,' and certain landlords by their extravagant language must have convinced the committee that the most drastic laws should be passed to curb what those present must have considered piratical landlords, and yet I know that the majority of these men haven't increased their rent over 20 per cent., if even that, while many who were silent have increased rentals 100 per cent. and 200 per cent.

"As regards the Joint Housing Committee's bills, I am certain there were not over six men present who knew what these bills contained, but they vehemently objected to them.

"The temper of the hearing was such that all I did was to correct the impression regarding my position and the United's conveyed by the newspapers; I said nothing regarding the bills in question. I have, however, asked for a hearing in executive session, and my own view is that, with very slight amendment, they can be approved by all sane realty owners who have the good of the State and city, and even of realty, at heart."

President LaGuardia said that a law limiting the profits of landlords to 10 per cent. could be enforced by the police power of the State. He said he believed the bills to be passed at Albany are "all right as far as they go, but they do not go far enough."

"The landlords at the hearing came out in the open and made a fair showing of the position they took," he said. "They intend to resist any law and resort to the very convenient phrase, 'supply and demand,' but in the meantime, and this is significant, they are not doing any building. One of their suggestions was to bring over more immigrants to compete with the local labor market. This would give more victims for rent extortion and also increase the already congested condition."

To Ask City Appropriation.

Henry H. Curran, President of the Borough of Manhattan, will introduce a resolution at tomorrow's meeting of the Board of Estimate calling on the city to appropriate a large sum of money for the erection of temporary homes to remedy the housing evil. He said yesterday that there were many owners of property in this city who would gladly turn their property over to the city for this purpose and who would not expect to be recompensed for permitting the municipality to construct buildings on the property. He received a letter yesterday from Samuel L. Fibre, a retired silk manufacturer, with land at the Queensborough Plaza in Long Island City. Mr. Fibre, said Mr. Curran, is willing to pay all taxes and assessments and to give the city the use of the property free.

Mr. Curran pointed out that the land in the vicinity of the Jerome Park reservoir owned by the city could well be used for this purpose. He probably will ask that the city appropriate $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 for building and will cite the action of Paterson and other cities which have made appropriations for similar purposes.

Frank M. Franklin of 309 Broadway, Chairman of the newly organized Office Tenants' League, said yesterday that his organization would extend legal aid free to all office tenants having grievances against property owners. A conciliation committee has been named to attempt the adjustment of grievances out of court. Mr. Franklin said that all who rent offices are entitled to membership in the league. A bill is being drafted by the organization to protect office tenants from exorbitant demands for rents. The 400 tenants of the office building at 309 Broadway have received notices to vacate their premises by May 1.

A mass meeting of the Real Estate Owners Protective Association will be held tonight at the Hotel Majestic to protest against the Gibbs bill, now pending in the Legislature, which would make it lawful to charge from 7 to 9 per cent. interest on real estate mortgages. City Magistrate Joseph S. Schwab is President of the organization. A committee will be named to go to Albany and oppose the Gibbs bill.

Max Kenneth Slayton, counsel to the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, said yesterday that an effort would be made to get the Black bill out of the Judiciary Committee and before the Legislature at the earliest possible moment. This bill provides that an oral agreement between landlord and tenant for the occupation of an apartment shall create a tenancy for one year, beginning on the date of occupancy, unless the duration of the lease shall be specified in writing. Mr. Mayer believes this will stabilize rents in houses where the tenants have not been in the habit of obtaining leases. Another advantage would be that the renting season would be scattered over the year rather than concentrated on Oct. 1 and May 1.

Mrs. Alice Cavanagh, acting for fifty-six tenants of 624 Trinity Avenue and 622 Jackson Avenue in attempting to adjust their grievances with their landlords, slapped the face of Julius Tobias, a lawyer, of 6 Beekman Street, in Municipal Court before Justice Robitzek yesterday. She resented a remark made by the lawyer. Without taking the trouble to notice who his assailant was the lawyer swung his fist in the direction from which the slap came, and it came close to Mrs. Cavanagh's face. Court attendants rushed to Tobias, but neither he nor Mrs. Cavanagh made a complaint.

In settling the grievances of their landlord the tenants paid their rent to Mrs. Cavanagh pending the court adjustment. Mrs. Cavanagh was asked yesterday to pay the landlords' counsel $1,029, but she said that only $1,681 had been collected under the old rental of $9 a room. The new rental of $9, a compromise brought about by Justice Robitzek, would make the total $1,929. The case was adjourned until today.

Loans amounting to $350,000 were made yesterday by the Long Island City Bank to finance building operations in the Corona and Jamaica sections, it was announced. The loans, it is said, will provide for the erection of about seventy-five houses.

The meanest landlord in New York was found yesterday in Long Island City. A year ago a young couple rented an apartment. Several days ago a baby was born, and the landlord, who dislikes children, has asked the family to move.

A story was told in real estate circles yesterday of a bank President and a business man who had sublet their Park Avenue homes, one for $30,000 and the other for $25,000. Their rent was $15,000. When the landlord heard of the deal he demanded part of the profits under threat of making the story public. The men, it was said, gave up half the profits.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., March 24.—A Housing Committee has been formed to formulate plans for an immediate campaign to stimulate housing in Montclair, a sub-committee to study the financial side of the problem has been appointed, comprising Colonel Isaac N. Lewis, inventor of the Lewis machine gun; Charles Fulle, Major W. J. Hawkins and Henry Lang. The committee will give special consideration to the problems of tenants who find their homes sold over their heads, school teachers and newly married persons.

Chicago Plans Rent Arbitration.

CHICAGO, March 24.—Representatives of Chicago landlords and tenants met today to work out details of a plan for the establishment of district arbitration boards to settle rent disputes. Real estate men, tenants and landlords would be represented on the boards, and advocates of the proposal asserted that a majority of the disagreements over increased rents could be adjusted by arbitration.

WOMEN CHALLENGE DALY TO BE INVESTIGATED

State Voters' League Meets His Assertion That He Would Welcome Inquiry.

ALBANY, March 24.—The State League of Women Voters today challenged Mark A. Daly, charged by it with being the principal back of a $200,000 lobby to kill social welfare measures, to ask the investigation of the lobby he asserted yesterday he would welcome.

In a statement the league asked Mr. Daly if he would "care to have Charles Evans Hughes to make a real investigation and sift to the bottom his activities in the Legislature during the last six years and his poisonous propaganda to influence public opinion."

The league says it could submit to an investigator much "interesting and startling information."

While he stated yesterday that the income of the Associated Industries for the fiscal year ending March 1, "was a trifle over $67,000," the league insists it has "reliable and definite information" to prove that the association had a fund of over $100,000 which it used for propaganda against health insurance legislation."

"Furthermore," says the statement, "we are reliably informed that Mr. Daly recently declared that his organization had spent $100,000 in making a study of absenteeism to be used as propaganda against health insurance.

"We know that the League of Americanism hired a lecturer at a weekly salary of $400 to go through the State giving so-called patriotic lectures to pave the way for Carleton D. Babcock, promoter of the league, in his propaganda work," said the statement. "Later, it continued, the lecturer was told that the League of Americanism was 'organized primarily to kill off health insurance and other such fool legislation, that he was a 'catspaw' and that he could 'go ahead and stir up sentiment on Americanism' in order that other men might 'follow along after you and attend to the fool legislation.'"

DENIKIN MAY MOVE TO THE CRIMEA

Would Be Easy for Him to Hold Narrow Entrances to Peninsula, It Is Said.

REDS HAVE NO WARSHIPS

Southern Leader May Ask Aid of American Ships to Transport His Army.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—General Denikin, in command of the anti-Bolshevist forces in South Russia, who is reported to be concentrating the remnants of his army in the vicinity of Novorossisk, on the Kuban coast of the Black Sea, will, according to information now reaching Washington, endeavor to transport his forces into the Crimean Peninsula to make a final stand there and hold his ground until such time as a change of conditions within Soviet Russia may enable his standard to become again the nucleus about which loyalist Russian elements may gather for action against the Bolsheviki.

With the final and definite split between Denikin and the Cossacks of the Kuban region it is believed no alternative remains for a move which would not be so fraught with danger to the remnants of the volunteer army as to make it an unwarranted risk. It is believed here that if Denikin can accomplish the transport of his men and supplies into the Crimea, the remnants of his forces will be sufficient to hold the two narrow strips of access on either side of the Sea of Azov against offensive action by the Red army.

The fact that the Bolsheviki have no navy in the Black Sea, it is thought, will enable Denikin to control the situation on the sea with the few warships which he still maintains, thus rendering his occupation of the Crimea secure against other than an attack by land, in the defense against which he would have a distinct advantage in strategic position. It is believed by authorities here that the supplies which have been obtained by Denikin from the Allies in the past would suffice to maintain for a long period the greatly reduced forces which he now controls. While the supply stocks are by no means intact it is said that they remain in sufficient quantity to provide for his present military needs for an extended period.

In the matter of sustenance it is also said that the district, which is rich and productive in food supply, could without difficulty sustain the forces of occupation in addition to the resident civilian population.

One of the most difficult problems which the last remaining leader of the anti-Bolshevist forces would be called upon to face in carrying out such a transfer of his forces to a Crimean base, it is said, would be to find a way in which to place in safety the thousands of refugees who are reported pouring in daily in the vicinity of his present headquarters at Novorossisk. These people, it is stated, are the remnants of the population which remained loyal to the Allies and to the anti-Bolshevist cause and great numbers of them are the families of the officers and soldiers of what remains of Denikin's army.

Only Bulgaria, it is said, will still admit these refugees within her borders. Greece, Rumania and other neighboring States are reported to have closed their doors, as their lands would not support the additional burden of caring for them.

The transport of troops and supplies is another problem which, it is said, can be accomplished by Denikin only with the greatest difficulty with the facilities which he can muster.

The statement is made that he may possibly appeal for aid to the United States for the use of American ships in the Black Sea to aid the movement of his forces.

SAY 16,000 SOLDIERS WERE FROZEN TO DEATH

LONDON, March 24.—More than 16,000 Anti-Bolshevist soldiers have been found frozen to death on the Steppes, it is announced in a Soviet military communique received today from Moscow by wireless. (The Steppes comprise the plains in Southeastern Russia and the Western Asiatic Provinces.)

The statement reports progress by the Red troops against General Denikin's forces along the railway in the Ekaterinodar region on the Caucasus front.

TO LET MARTENS STAY FOR THE PRESENT

Deportation Warrant Turned Over by Department of Justice to Labor Department.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, self-styled Soviet Ambassador to the United States, is to escape deportation for the present, members of the Senate sub-committee investigating Russian propaganda said today they had been informed.

The warrant for deportation of Mr. Martens as an undesirable alien has been given to the Department of Labor by the Department of Justice, and present plans contemplate release of Mr. Martens on bail or in the custody of his counsel until the Labor Department officials decide whether to deport him or dismiss the proceedings, Senators said.

An inclination to inquire why the warrant was transferred from Justice to Labor was manifested today by some committee members, who may take the matter up at the next meeting of the committee on Monday, it was stated. Senator Moses, Chairman of the sub-committee, was not in Washington today, and it could not be learned whether he had been informed of the reasons for the change.

Little more time, if any, is to be given to the activities of Mr. Martens by the committee, which early next week is to go over documents relating to other Russian activities.

MORE KILLED THAN IN WAR.

Deaths in Industry Nearly Treble Those in Battle, Figures Show.

DENVER, March 24—Industrial fatalities in the United States were greater than the country's battle fatalities during the period the United States was in the war, according to Isaiah Halt, Safety Superintendent of the Santa Fé system, who made an address here today.

"During the nineteen months America was at war," he declared, "while the Germans were killing 50,151 American soldiers in France, there were 120,604 civilians killed in this country, workers in our industries, men and women on our streets, children in our homes—an average of 220 per day."

Under Federal operation of the railroads, he said, the safety-first campaign resulted in a decrease of 1,321 railroad employes killed and 26,962 employes injured in 1918, compared with the previous year.

FALLING FRANC VALUE ALARMS FRANCE AGAIN

Even the German Exchange Rate Shows a Gain at Her Expense.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 23.—The landslide of French currency, which was checked for a time after the fall in January, has begun again with doubled velocity. At the last three sessions of the Exchanges the value of the franc has dropped 14 per cent. as compared with sterling and about 12 as compared with the dollar and Dutch, Spanish, Swiss and Scandinavian money. Today even Germany gains 7 per cent. on France.

Indeed, it is a remarkable feature of the present German crisis that in the last fortnight the Paris rate for 100 marks has advanced from 14 francs to 18 francs 25 centimes—between 25 and 30 per cent.

Curiously enough, the depreciation in French currency has been shared step for step by Belgian, despite the fact that all reports concur in attributing to Belgium the most rapid recovery from war conditions of any of the belligerents. This would be the case strengthens argument that a minority of French economists has been advancing for some time in the midst of the general clamor against strikes and for increased production, namely, that France is not suffering so much from idleness or unwillingness to work as from certain unfavorable conditions which tend to make work impossible.

Reducing the French economic situation to its simplest terms, the principal cause for the depreciation of the franc is that the country is obliged to buy abroad nearly six times as much in money value as it sells. That France has far too much floating paper is merely an additional handicap, not a basic source of the trouble.

All the other belligerents, including America, are in much the same plight; but the excess of import over export values involves France in a vicious circle from which there seems to be no issue. Such a condition naturally leads to depreciation of the currency and worse still, makes that depreciation increase not in arithmetical but in almost geometrical progression.

For instance, when the dollar was at 10 francs, suppose France bought $100,000 worth of goods from America and sold $15,000 worth. That disproportion drove the franc down to 12 for a dollar. Whereupon, instead of paying 1,000,000 francs for American commodities, France must now pay 1,200,000 francs for the same amount of goods. Today, with the dollar at fifteen francs, France must pay 1,500,000 francs for the same amount of goods. There is an added pressure of 50 per cent. the effect of which is bound to be that the depreciation of the franc increases with ever-growing rapidity.

Talk about work and augmented production sounds good, but does not help one lot, as production cannot be augmented unless imports are augmented simultaneously, and when that occurs the franc, of course, falls faster than ever. Imports have already been reduced to the lowest possible figure, so that there is no remedy in that direction. Yet, unless a remedy be found, disaster is inevitable.

TROOPS AND POLICE ARE SENT TO CORK

Churchill Tells Commons That Army in Ireland Will Be Increased If Necessary.

SINN FEINERS NOT UNITED

Belfast Reports "Republican Army" Honeycombed with Spies—65 Prisoners Taken to England.

CORK, Ireland, March 23.—More troops and Royal Irish Constabulary have been sent here, and empty houses at strategic points have been occupied by the military and police forces.

The Sinn Fein organization is maintaining secret watches and guards to protect its leaders, some of whom are reported to have received threatening letters similar to one delivered to Thomas MacCurtain, Lord Mayor of this city, before he was murdered last week.

Last night troops, supported by constabulary, were stationed at various points in the city with armored cars and machine guns. This protection was maintained while the streets were thronged, but later, when the crowds dwindled, the extra guards were withdrawn. Soldiers and police officers, however, remained in their barracks all night, ready for any emergency.

The inquest on the body of the murdered Lord Mayor MacCurtain was resumed at 7 o'clock this evening. There was a large police guard. It was announced on behalf of the Attorney General that all facilities would be given for the fullest investigation.

Several witnesses were examined concerning the circumstances of the murder and the subsequent visit of the military to the Lord Mayor's house. Their testimony, however, added little to the details already published. Nothing was disclosed to throw light on the motive or identity of the assassins.

QUEENSTOWN, March 24.—Sixty-five Sinn Fein prisoners, under heavy military escort, were brought by motor-lorry from the Cork jail to this city this morning, where they were put aboard a British sloop, which departed, presumably for England. The sloop was accompanied by two destroyers.

The Chairman of the District Council has received a typewritten communication warning him that he will be assassinated in the event of the shooting of any Queenstown policemen.

DUBLIN, March 24.—At 5:30 o'clock this evening a civilian was shot dead in the centre of the city. Three men walking close behind him whipped out revolvers and fired. The assailants ran off, pursued by passersby, but escaped.

LONDON, March 24.—The recent seizure of Dublin Castle mail bags, says an Evening News dispatch from Belfast, has disclosed the fact that the "republican army" ranks are honeycombed with spies and informers, to whom are attributed some of the more recent Irish tragedies.

The newspaper adds that today there were further transfers of large bodies of the Irish Constabulary from the North of Ireland to the South.

Since the armistice five have been found drowned in the lake off Montreux. The remainder shot or poisoned themselves in hotels.

Similar cases are reported from other Swiss towns.

The Swiss papers are suppressing the names, some of which are well known in New York society. Some of the victims married Americans who were killed or disappeared in the war.

Letters that Men really Read!

JUST how productive are your letters? Do you feel satisfied that they possess the first essential toward bringing results — that they will be read?

Hours spent on the details of composition, hours spent in building up a forceful argument, all prove fruitless if your letter lacks sufficient personality to keep it from the wastebasket.

Hooven letters have all the personality of those specially dictated. Though your mailing list may comprise a thousand or five thousand prospects, each Hooven letter bears all the earmarks of an individual communication, and is accordingly lifted high above the colorless ranks of process letters.

DECIDE TO RUSH RENT RELIEF BILLS

ment, or both, for a landlord to deny to a tenant the privilege of "natural and normal service," such as heat, water and operation of elevator.

11. The same defense is prescribed in actions for ejectment in the Supreme Court as has been prescribed for summary proceedings in the municipal courts in rent and eviction cases.

12. Mortgagees up to $40,000 held by one individual on dwelling houses are exempted from State income tax.

All the measures apply only to dwellings in cities of the first class. The last bill was drafted to stimulate new construction of dwellings.

Municipal Court Justice Frederick Spiegelberg of New York, who as the representative of the Municipal Court Judges, has acted in an advisory capacity in the drafting of the bills, Bill Drafting Commissioner Robert C. Cumming and Mr. Sammis of counsel for the Joint Legislative Housing Committee attended the conference, and beside Speaker Sweet and Senator Walters, there were present Senator Charles C. Lockwood of Kings, Chairman of the Housing Commieees, and Senator Walter W. Law of Westchester; Simon L. Adler, majority leader of the Assembly, and Assemblyman Franklin W. Judson of Monroe, George N. Jesse of New York, James H. Caulfield, Jr., and Harry Dimin of Kings, Thomas A. McWhinney of Nassau and Edward J. Wilson of Westchester.

Assemblymen Cuvillier today criticised President LaGuardia of the New York City Board of Aldermen for stating that "unless the Legislature enacts this rent legislation I predict that the next Legislature will not spend its time trying to unseat radicals, because the Legislature will be filled with radicals."

Not Leopold Weil Who Spoke at Albany.

In the Albany dispatch to THE TIMES yesterday reporting the hearing on the rent bills before the legislative Committee on Cities, the name of one of the spokesmen of the Real Estate Board who was silenced by the delegation representing the tenants was given as Leopold Weil instead of L. Victor Weil. Leopold Weil, who is also a member of the board, writes to THE TIMES:

"I did not attend the meeting and do not represent the Real Estate Board in this matter. I am solely a broker, and do not own any apartments or tenements in the Bronx or elsewhere."

EVERY 48 minutes a ship arrives at New York Harbor and one leaves. Among the greatest comforts of ocean travel are cool, refreshing drinks, and crushed ice—particularly on ships to tropic ports.

One of the greatest necessities on shipboard is plenty of ice for keeping green vegetables crisp, and foods fresh. It is significant that many lines noted for the luxury and comfort of their "floating hotels" are supplied with Knickerbocker Ice.

Some of the "noted" lines "booked" by the Knickerbocker Ice Company are the N. Y. and Cuba, the N. T. and Porto Rico, the Clyde and Mallory lines.

AGREE NOT TO HALT PRODUCTION OF COAL

TO WORK AT HIGH PRESSURE

Present Contract Ends March 31, but Operation Will Continue Until New One is Made.

There is to be no cessation of work in the anthracite coal fields April 1, though the agreement between operators and miners expires March 31 and a new one has not been negotiated.

Fear that the existing shortage, particularly in domestic sizes, would develop into a real fuel famine was averted last night when operators and miners agreed through their representatives that in the event no new agreement is entered into in advance of the expiration of the present working arrangement at midnight on March 31—an event that at present seems most probable—the mines shall continue to work at top pressure until the two sides of the wage question reach some composition or until it definitely is decided that successful negotiations cannot be maintained.

Representatives of the two sides met last night at the Union League Club. For a time it seemed they could not get together. The miners wanted shorter hours and more money. The operators opposed any wage increase and were disinclined to agree that any subsequent arrangement should be retroactive to April 1. In the end, both groups recognized the vital importance of keeping the mines working and agreed upon a program embodied in these resolutions:

"Whereas, the negotiations now pending between the anthracite mine workers and operators may require additional time to reach a mutually satisfactory conclusion, and

"Whereas, it is to the public interest that the supply of coal be not diminished, therefore

"Be it resolved, That pending a conclusion of the negotiations there shall be no cessation of work and that by mutual consent the working conditions of the agreement of May 5, 1916, and the war allowances supplemental thereto be continued pending negotiations, and that whatever agreement is finally reached shall be retroactive to April 1, 1920."

The joint committee will resume negotiations at 10 o'clock today, when it will consider data presented by the miners. The sessions will be held daily until an agreement is reached.

Mine owners had been particularly disinclined to grant any change in working conditions so long as the Government remained in control of fuel supplies. A committee was sent to Washington to make representations in the interest of immediate cessation of Government control, and it was upon the return of this committee that the meeting was called. It took an hour and a half of discussion before the decision so vital to the public was reached.

The General Scale Committee of the mine workers, representing the three districts comprising the anthracite field, will meet today to receive this resolution. Members indicated last night that upon receipt they immediately would send official notice to workers in the field that there would be no suspension of work April 1.

Labor leaders, however, were careful to point out that this would not mean that a strike might not be called later if continued negotiations failed to produce an agreement satisfactory to them.

Active preparations had been under way throughout the country for some days, as the situation took on a gloomy aspect, to meet the threatened shortage. Householders generally had been advised by their dealers to contract at once for their next Winter's supply, and dealers had been flooded with orders by persons who preferred to let coal lie in their cellars all Summer to risking being without fuel when cold weather comes again.

ALL COAL RESTRICTIONS WILL END APRIL 1

Hines, on President's Order, Notifies Distribution Committees Their Functions Will Cease.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Formal withdrawal of all restrictions on coal distribution was made tonight by Director General Hines, who, as Fuel Administrator, notified regional and district coal distribution committees that they would cease to function on April 1.

This action was taken pursuant to the order of the President.

ST. LOUIS, March 24.—Thomas T. Brewster, Chairman of the coal operators' scale committee in the central competitive field, announced today that he had notified John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers, that the operators' scale committee would meet the miners' committee here Tuesday to discuss the majority report of the coal commission.

Mr. Brewster said the operators' committee would meet Monday to consider the report. The notice was sent to Mr. Lewis following a request from him that such a conference be held.

LEXINGTON BOY KIDNAPPED.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 24.—While relatives of 12-year-old Paul Little, son of E. T. Little, a Lexington capitalist, were searching for him tonight after his disappearance late today, a note was received at the Little home saying that the boy was being held for a ransom supposed to be $25,000.

Paul disappeared with an unidentified white man soon after 5 o'clock this afternoon. Earlier in the day the boy had told his playmates that the man had promised him a dollar if he would deliver a box of candy. The man and the boy were seen on the principal street here a little while before they disappeared.

The note demanding the ransom was delivered to the home of Mr. Little by a messenger boy, who said it had been placed in his hands by a man in Main Street.

The father of the kidnapped boy refused tonight to divulge the contents of the note, but is said to have told the police:

"I don't care about the $25,000 if I can get my son back safely."

MAIL THEFT SUSPECT FLEES

Deputy Marshal Loses Prisoner in Downtown Traffic Jam.

Moe Slobodian and William Schneider, charged with robbing the mails, were being escorted from the Tombs for arraignment before United States Commissioner Hitchcock early yesterday when Deputy United States Marshal Murphy, who had them in charge, was compelled by traffic at Chambers and Centre Streets to stop. Slobodian got his hand out of the handcuff that connected him with his fellow-prisoner and darted into the Hall of Records. Murphy fired two shots in the air. Several policemen ran up and chased the fugitive.

Schneider tried to escape, it is said, but was caught. Slobodian got away.

A LINE drawn around a child's foot and one drawn around a Franklin Simon & Co. shoe are identical in contour. This means that the little foot rests as comfortably in the shoe as on the ground. More than that—our shoes for children are built to support and protect restless, growing feet in every position it is anatomically possible for them to take. Of course, the prices cannot explain all that and our meticulous care for the details of shoemaking besides. But then, Franklin Simon & Co. prices never do.

What's Good for "Foggy" Teeth?

Like so many others, you perhaps know what it is to wake up in the morning with your teeth looking a little dingy and foggy, and feeling rough to the tongue. On such occasions it is a fortunate thing to have a tube of Pebeco Tooth Paste on hand.

PEBECO
TOOTH PASTE
Counteracts "Acid-Mouth"

Its scientifically blended ingredients are of such a character that they literally "wake up" the mouth. Just a little Pebeco on the brush and plenty of water, and in a short time your teeth look brighter and feel smoother, the gums are refreshed and the whole interior of your mouth is keenly invigorated. Pebeco stimulates the normal flow of natural alkaline saliva, which is so effective for washing out mouth acids and other unfavorable secretions that form during sleep.

$908,000,000 IS PAID IN FEDERAL TAXES

COUNT 3½ BILLION IN YEAR

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Income and excess profits taxes aggregating $908,829,172 were paid as the first installment of the nation's tax bill for 1919.

While these figures do not represent an exact one-fourth of the taxes for last year, they indicate collection for the entire year of approximately $3,500,000,000, Treasury officials said tonight. The first installment more than offsets outstanding Treasury certificates of indebtedness, issued in anticipation of the payment, and leaves the Treasury in a position to continue its financial program outlined several months ago.

Collections for the first period of 1918 were approximately $1,200,000,000, the reduction this year being due to the lowering of the normal income tax rate. The Second District of New York, comprising the heart of the financial section, held its place in yielding the greatest amount of revenue of all collection districts, as it has for many years. Its total was $154,505,989.

Every Woman—

If economic conditions were reversed and women were the breadwinners instead of men, there would be a heap sight less misery and sorrow, owing to woman's highly developed instinct to protect and provide for her loved ones. As matters stand now, seventy-five per cent of all widows are left without means to provide for their comforts. Unpardonable, but facts nevertheless, which proves that we are far from perfect,—but we are improving. Here's a safe, sane, economical way out. Wouldn't it be a good idea to talk it over with hubby (after dinner) this evening.

AUTO BANDITS RAID 50 QUEENS HOMES

Visit Each of Twenty Houses in Bell Place, Woodhaven—Men and Woman in Party.

HOLD-UP VICTIM MAY DIE

Two Silk Robberies, One of $50,000, March 11, and Another $25,000, March 6, Disclosed.

Opposition to daylight saving would probably come from burglars and hold-up men who are diligently at work in the city as evidenced by the police happenings of a day, only a few of which are made public. It became known yesterday that there were fifty robberies on Monday and Tuesday nights in the Liberty Heights district of Woodhaven, Queens.

It is believed there were at least two male thieves, a woman accomplice and a chauffeur, for the unwelcome visitors are said to have arrived and departed from the borough in a green automobile. The raid is said to have been systematically carried out. More houses were visited than were entered. If a window did not yield readily when urged by a jimmy the burglars wasted no time but went to another house. When the burglars had any doubt as to the quality of a garment they carried it out into the yard and examined it by the light of day.

The home of Maurice Blum at 2,433 New Woodhaven Avenue was robbed and the couple are sure they saw the thieves. The chauffeur of a car stopped near their home and asked Mr. Blum to direct him. Mr. Blum says those in the car covered their faces. The burglars made an unsuccessful attempt to rob the house of Emil Midenberger, 9,491 Bell Place.

Rob Twenty Houses in Bell Place.

There are twenty houses in Bell Place, Woodlawn, and jimmy marks reveal that the thieves visited every one of them. They broke into three—the homes of Abraham Schneider, at 9,479; Abraham Margolis, 9,483, and John Knight, 9,490. There are eight houses along Franklin Avenue, two blocks away. Every one of them was visited and two were robbed. The victims were Mrs. Harris Sarrow, 9,434, and her son, L. A. Sarrow, of 9,430. At the latter house the burglars made their biggest haul, obtaining jewelry and cash aggregating $800. Almost as much was obtained from the home of Benjamin S. Nelkind of Freeland Avenue.

The homes of Thaddeus Decker, an inspector of the Department of Health, 1,596 Oceanview Avenue; Isaac Herschel, 1,629 Oceanview Avenue; C. F. Storms, 1,544 Oceanview Avenue, and John Adler, 1,546 Oceanview Avenue, were robbed. Ten houses were robbed in Queens in one night a week ago.

A theft of seventy-seven cases of silk hosiery, valued at $50,000, from a truck on March 11 was disclosed yesterday by the arrest of Jacob Horowitz, proprietor of a dry goods store at 2,171 First Avenue, and Samuel Somlowitz, a salesman in his employ. They are charged with receiving stolen goods. The merchant was held in $2,000 bail and the salesman in $5,000 bail by Magistrate Levine in Harlem Court. Nine cases of hosiery, believed to be part of the stolen property, were found in the basement of the store. It was stolen from a truck at Nineteenth Street and Eighth Avenue while the driver was in a restaurant, the police testified.

Clear Up Silk Theft.

The arrest yesterday of Abraham Schwartz of 148 East Ninety-eighth Street has cleared up, the police say, the theft of $25,000 worth of silk from the Independent Warehouse Company, 15 Vestry Street, on the night of March 6. Schwartz was charged with burglary. The stolen goods were placed in a garage in West Sixteenth Street, and next day the garage was destroyed by fire, with the auto truck and the silk.

The police yesterday arrested Leo Joseph of 29 Hester Street and Morris Braff of 383 Grand Street and charged them with having taken part in a hold-up. The victims were the cashier and clerks of the Prechter Bakery, 468 Cherry Street. On the night of Feb. 23 several men entered the bakery, displayed revolvers and got away with $5,400.

Milton Traun of 746 East 179th Street was locked up in the West 125th Street Station last night charged with taking $1,000 worth of jewelry from the home of Mrs. Moses Rosenberg of 408 West 130th Street. Traun, who is 18, called at the house to deliver laundry.

Anthony Perakin, proprietor of a restaurant at 137 Columbia Street, when passing 164 Degraw Street, Brooklyn, on his way home at 9 o'clock last night was confronted by two hold-up men with revolvers, who demanded that he turn over the receipts of his store, amounting to $150. Perakin lives at 35 Strong Place. He grappled with one of the men who pulled the trigger of the revolver, and Perakin fell to the sidewalk with a bullet wound which the police fear will prove fatal.

Policeman Arthur Everson of the Amity Street Station, who was less than half a block away, pursued and caught a man who later described himself as Gaetano Ceci, 20 years old, of 573 Henry Street. Policeman Everson brought his prisoner back to the dying man, and, the policeman declared, Perakin identified Ceci as the man who did the shooting. Ceci was locked up on a charge of felonious assault, and Perakin was removed to the Holy Family Hospital.

When Mark Meyers, a 15-year-old bank messenger did not return to his home, 106 East 204th Street, last night his parents asked the police to look for him. It was ascertained that he had left the Bank of Washington Heights, where he was employed, and had gone to the Gotham Bank at Broadway and Fifty-ninth Street and had drawn $4,000 to carry back to his employers. He did not return to the bank. His father said he feared his boy had been the victim of thieves and had been spirited away.

To Sell 150 Submarine Chasers.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—An offer of sale to the public of 150 submarine chasers built during the war was announced today by the Navy Department. Constructed at an average cost of $67,000, including engine plant, consisting of three standard gasoline motors developing 675 horse power, these craft are now appraised, it was said, at $20,000 each. In inviting offers from yachtsmen or commercial firms, however, it was said, several already had been sold at a figure slightly below this.

DR. MANNING URGES SINGLE DIVORCE LAW

Trinity Church Rector Says Present System Tends to Abolish Marriage.

REMARRYING IS OPPOSED

Question Called Most Pressing One Now Confronting Church and Nation.

No such place as Reno should desecrate our national life and there should be a Federal divorce law supplanting all the State divorce laws, said the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity Church, who preached last evening to an overflow congregation as a united Lenten service of Trinity parish in St. Luke's Chapel, Hudson Street, near Christopher Street. His topic was "The Modern Assault on Morals; is Christian Marriage to Continue?" He announced that no clergyman of the staff of Trinity Church was permitted to remarry anyone.

Dr. Manning held that this was the most "pressing question" now before the Church and the nation. He declared that our "present system of easy divorces is in some respects less moral than polygamy." Dr. Manning stated that many of the so-called marriages of today were not marriages at all, but "legalized free love.") He asserted that the Episcopal Church at its next general convention should adopt a canon making remarriage impossible during the life-time of the former husband or wife.

"We are sinning against the law of God and against the law of our own life in this respect as no nation calling itself Christian had ever done before," declared Dr. Manning. "I do not wish to exaggerate or overstate the case," he continued. "There are still millions of happy homes in our land and these are the very salt of our life as a people. But the situation is one that must give deep concern to every earnest American as well as to every Christian."

"In some of our States the grounds for divorce are such that the marriage relation is terminable practically at will. A marriage bond which is dissoluble at will, or practically so, is not a foundation upon which a civilized society can endure.

"To say that men and women may live together for a time and then, with legal sanction, separate and form new alliances as often as they please, is practically to abolish marriage and to substitute a system of legalized free love.

And this is the situation which we as a nation have reached. We have now to face the question whether the institution of marriage in any real sense is to continue among us or whether America is to be a land in which marriage is regarded as a permanent relation only in the private view of certain individuals or of certain religious groups of people.

"On Manhattan Island alone 1,335 divorces were granted in 1919 as against 886 in 1918, an increase of about 50 per cent. over the year previous. In the States of Oregon and Washington a recent investigation is said to show that during a six-months' period the ratio was one divorce to every two marriages.

"Statistics published some time ago by Mr. Carroll D. Wright of the Department of Labor, in Washington, showed that in twenty years nearly 1,000,000 persons in the United States had applied to the courts for divorce, and that more than 650,000 had been granted. Think of the number of children, relatives and friends affected by these broken homes and of their influence among our population as a whole. There are comparatively few families which are not in some way touched by this influence.

"Our present system of easy divorce is in some respects less moral than the system of polygamy. Under the system of polygamy a man remains in responsible relation with the wives whom he marries. Easy divorce allows any number of successive wives or husbands to be cast loose upon society, with cessation of all mutual responsibility as soon as the divorce is secured.

"From my own ministerial and pastoral experience, I am convinced that if the divorce courts were abolished, the overwhelming majority of those who now seek divorces would find it possible to live together with reasonable contentment and that many of them would find the full happiness and reward of faithful married life.

"The present destructive movement in regard to marriage is not going to stop and cure itself. Unless it is opposed by some strong counter force its progress will continue of its own momentum."

Printing Facts

Line cuts can be printed on any kind of printing paper.

SAY I. W. W. ATTEMPT TO WIN SERVICE MEN

PROPOSE NEW RELIEF BILL

It Provides Land Settlements, Vocational Training and $1.50 Pay for Each Day of Service.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Representatives of the American Legion, presenting today to the House Ways and Means Committee a revised optional plan for soldier relief, asserted that agitators were trying to recruit into the I. W. W. former service men who were discontented because of the failure of Congress to provide aid.

J. E. Holden, Adjutant of the Utah Legion testified that organized propaganda to discredit Government aid and undermine the American Legion was being disseminated by the I. W. W. throughout the country. While some soldiers had been misled into joining that organization, most of them, he said, stood firm against such influences.

Urging immediate relief, J. G. Scrugham of Nevada, a member of the Executive Committee of the Legion, declared that there was "seething unrest among former service men and women who felt they had not received a square deal."

"They are chafing with unrest and believe Congress should take some action for their relief," he said.

Mr. Holden told the committee that while he was partly disabled and in hospitals young men gave him I. W. W. literature which said that the Government had protected munition workers, war contractors and others from great losses, but had done nothing for former service men. These pamphlets urged ex-soldiers to join the I. W. W.

"In Chicago the I. W. W. claim to have 20 per cent. of the service men of that locality in their organizations," Mr. Holden said. "In the Utah mining camps the I. W. W. outnumber the former service men 6 to 1, and are making vigorous efforts to wipe out Legion organizations."

Any beneficial legislation for former service men should include heirs of those who died or were killed, in the opinion of Mrs. Herman H. Birney of Philadelphia, representing the war mothers of America.

"Our first duty should be to the relatives of those who did not return and to the wounded," she added.

Gilbert Bettman of Cincinnati asserted that less than half of those entitled to the $60 discharge bonus had applied for it, and that the Legion's educational plan would prevent the squandering of a cash payment.

Mr. Scrugham urged the passage of a new bill framed by the Legion and providing privileged land settlements, as suggested in the Lane-Mondell bill; home building aid, vocational training and payment of adjusted compensation at the rate of $1.50 for every day of service.

Representative Gardner, Democrat, of Texas wanted to know how the funds to carry out the Legion's plans were to be raised.

The witness said he would leave that to the committee, but he estimated the total cost at approximately $3,160,000,000.

The proposal is a substitute for the original bill explained to the committee earlier this month by Commander Franklin D'Olier and Thomas W. Miller, Chairman of the Legislative Committee. The fourfold plan, carrying new rates of compensation, was approved last night at a meeting of the Executive Committee.

Under the bill land projects in all States would be available to former service men, and credit at the rate of $1.50 for every day of service, together with a loan at the rate of 4½ per cent. interest, would be authorized. Compensation at $2 a day would be paid those who desired to acquire homes in city or country sections.

Vocational training would be extended for a time equivalent to service in the army or navy, and compensation at $1.50 a day would be paid. Adjusted compensation for those not desirous of participatin in land projects, home building aid or vocational training would be paid at $1.50 for each day of service, to be available within a year from the passage of the bill by Congress.

Former service men would have ten years in which to file applications exercising one of the four options.

Representative Gallivan, Democrat, of Massachusetts, supporting the proposed relief plan, declared that soldiers had returned from France to find an orgy of reckless spending, and as a result felt that they had received a "raw deal."

"No adequate compensation has been made to them," he said, "and the only example of the Government's gratitude was the $60 tip they received when discharged."

Cedric's Crew Gives a Concert.

The crew of the White Star liner Cedric, which is held in port to have a new top section fitted to her rudder stock, gave a concert last night in the large waiting room on pier 61, attended by officers and men from other steamships at the Chelsea piers and their friends. Albert Pattou, who is well known to New York musicians, presided. The program consisted of twenty-seven songs, dances, sketches and musical turns given by the crew of the Cedric. All were well received, especially the character sketch of the "Chambermaid of the Hotel Cecil," by S. C. J. Freeman-Matthews, purser. The accompanists were Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Florence C. Williams.

ASKS CANDIDATES TO TELL EXPENSES

Labor Paper Sends Questionnaire to Presidential Aspirants.

RUMOR OF LARGE EXPENSES

Request Made to Join in Appeal for Legislation to Compel Sworn Returns of Outlays.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Another questionnaire for Presidential aspirants, this time relating to campaign expenditures, was made public today by Labor, a weekly paper published by the fourteen recognized railroad labor organizations.

Reports that some candidates were spending large sums were given as the reason for the questionnaire, which was in the form of a letter to a dozen Democrats and Republicans mentioned for the nomination. Pointing out that the President is intrusted by the Constitution with the appointment of the Federal judiciary and that he is "becoming more and more influential in shaping legislation," the letter declared that the gravity of charges concerning improper expenditures could not be exaggerated.

"Apparently there is no adequate provision in the law," the letter continued, "to safeguard the selection of delegates to national party conventions. Candidates for the Presidency and their friends may, so far as Federal statutes are concerned, expend as much money as they see fit to affect the result.

"In view of these self-evident facts, labor respectfully asks you to answer the following questions:

"First — How is your campaign financed? How much have you expended to date and how much do you expect to expend before the national convention of your party meets? Will you be good enough to furnish the names of contributors to your campaign fund or to any fund which is to be used in your behalf and the amounts of the contributions? Will you, before your national convention meets, make a further sworn statement of expenditures, together with lists of contributors, and furnish same to the press?

"Second—Are you willing to join in an appeal to Congress to immediately enact legislation which will compel all candidates for the Presidency to make sworn returns to some official of the National Government showing all moneys expended by the candidates or any one acting in their behalf, together with the names of all contributors to the candidates' campaign fund or to any fund which may be raised in their behalf?

"We want to assure you that this letter is not to be construed as an indictment of the methods of any candidate."

Sues to Recover Income Tax.

Horace Havemeyer sued Revenue Collector Edwards yesterday to recover $10,256 income tax paid in 1916, on the ground that the payment was made under duress. Mr. Havemeyer alleges that for the year his net income was $507,227, on which the rightful tax was $53,722, but he was compelled to pay the additional sum on $72,532 as the net profit from the sale of securities and on $17,478 as a stock dividend from the South Porto Rico Sugar Company.

SAY STATE CANNOT RAISE SCHOOL PAY

Legislators Approve Principle, but Assert Treasury Lacks the Funds.

CITIES OPPOSE BILLS

Representatives at Hearing Say They Are Already Too Close to Debt Limit.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 24.—Lack of money in the State Treasury means an end to legislative attempts this year to obtain increases in teachers' salaries from the State, legislators admitted this afternoon after listening for three hours to appeals from teachers urging the enactment of the pending increased pay bills. There is little opposition to the principle involved, but the leaders say that if the State is to pay the measures must be killed.

Representatives of various cities, including William Mayer, Assistant Corporation Counsel of New York City, filed protests against the bills at the hearing before the Assembly Ways and Means Committee because of the increased taxation needed to meet the higher salaries. Senator John G. Mullan of Monroe suggested that the entire educational system of the State should be taken over and run by the State itself.

Senator Mullan said his bill increasing teachers' salaries would take about $20,000,000 out of the State treasury.

"Where is the State going to get that amount?" asked Senator Sage.

"The State could get it if it 'junked' some of the things we are trying to do in this State and paid a little more attention to education," replied Senator Mullan. "Take the barge canal."

Senator Sage said, "I'm with you."

Assemblyman Amos of New York City said the amount could be raised if "you tax war profits, bachelors and foundation funds."

Mr. Mayer said that Mayor Hylan, while a firm friend of adequate compensation for teachers, opposed the bills because they "are mandatory and take away the right of each locality to self-government." The assertion of some New York teachers that they could not get adequate compensation from the Board of Education was "fear rather than fact," and that if the proper application was made the situation would be met.

Representatives of other cities oppose the bills especially on the ground that all municipalities were rapidly nearing their constitutional debt limit. New York City, according to figures submitted by William C. Capes of the State Mayors' conference, was within $50,000 of its limit, while Rochester was within $1.31, Syracuse $4.78, and Buffalo had exceeded its limit. All expressed opposition to the mandatory provisions of the measures.

Teachers arguing for passage of the bills cited the alarming shortage of teachers. They asserted that women long pensioned, were put on as substitutes in many of the schools, and that girls not out of high school were being placed in rural schools.

SAYS HE HELD UP OWN CLUB

President of Political Organization Held in $5,000 Bail.

Harold Welch, 21 years old, of 22 West Tenth Street, who, according to the police, is President of the Young Republican Club, 84 Greenwich Street, and Thomas Falasca, 19 years old, of 109 West Tenth Street, were each held in $5,000 cash bail yesterday by Magistrate Nolan in the Jefferson Market Court on charges of robbery. They are charged with being implicated in a holdup at the Young Republican Club on March 21, when thirteen men in the club were robbed of their money, amounting to $200, and jewelry.

The police say that the intended victim of the holdup men was a wealthy contractor who went there frequently, but who was not there on the night of the robbery. The contractor always wore several large diamonds and often had a considerable sum of money with him.

$200,000 SUIT ON TRIAL.

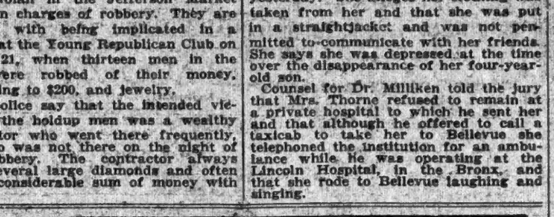
Mrs. Thorne Says Dr. Milliken Sent Her to Bellevue Unjustly.

The suit of Mary Casey Thorne, wife of Joel Wolfe Thorne, against Dr. Seth M. Milliken for $200,000 damages on the ground that without cause he had her sent to the Bellevue psychopathic ward in 1918 went to trial before Supreme Court Justice Lehman and a jury yesterday. She alleges her clothing was taken from her and that she was put in a straightjacket and was not permitted to communicate with her friends. She says she was depressed at the time over the disappearance of her four-year-old son.

Counsel for Dr. Milliken told the jury that Mrs. Thorne refused to remain at a private hospital to which he sent her and that although he offered to call a taxicab to take her to Bellevue she telephoned the institution for an ambulance while he was operating at the Lincoln Hospital, in the Bronx, and that she rode to Bellevue laughing and singing.

LAZY BOYS AND GIRLS

Don't scold them—the chances are they are undernourished. They have plenty to eat, but not enough real food—the kind that builds bone, tissue and brain. Shredded Wheat Biscuit is all food. It is 100 per cent whole wheat, nothing wasted or thrown away. It is a food that gives strength and health to youngsters and grown-ups. A boon to mothers because so easy to serve. Two of these little loaves of baked wheat with hot milk make a nourishing meal.



The Dalton makes for contentment and industry among employes—it makes possible the handling of the largest amount of figure work in the shortest time, with the least labor.

This simpler, faster adding and calculating machine keeps employees contented. While producing more for the employer, the Dalton takes the tiredness out of figure work for the employee, as does no other machine.

Consider the usual method of figuring—the operator has to memorize the item, then turn to the keyboard—constant movement of the head and eyes all day long.

On the 10-key Dalton, this strain is done away with—the operator can use the Dalton as a stenographer does a typewriter—by the touch method. 6,000 to 20,000 fatiguing movements are eliminated daily. 80 per cent fewer errors are made. The operator is less fatigued; 25 to 80 per cent more work is handled in the same amount of time.

And the Dalton is more than an adding machine—it is an adding-calculating machine combined; a machine that adds, subtracts, multiplies and divides, figures fractions and percentages, takes trial balances, makes out statements—does everything that any adding-calculating machine can do.

Merchants, executives, and office workers in every business find it highly advantageous to use the Dalton.

The Metropolitan Opera company made its last new production of the season last evening, according to the specifications of the prospectus, which have now all been fulfilled. This was Tschaikowsky's opera of "Eugene Onegin," originally written in Russian, and, like the other Russian operas given at the Metropolitan, translated into Italian for the New York audience.

There was an enormous audience present, one of the largest of the season, in which there were apparently many fellow-country men and women of the composer. There was a correspondingly large amount of applause, lavishly bestowed upon the singers, not always in due proportion to their merits, in song, at least.

The reception of the opera was the warm and demonstrative reception of a first-night audience, with strong elements of a national bias in its favor. It may be hoped that this friendliness was the forerunner of a lasting favor, yet it is not always thus to be relied on.

Based on a Work of Pushkin.

Tschaikowsky was first made known to the New York public as a dramatic composer ten years ago by the production at the Metropolitan Opera House of his opera of "Pique Dame." It interested the music lovers, but it did not retain its place in the repertory. The music of "Eugene Onegin" itself was heard here also some ten years ago, when Mr. Walter Damrosch gave a concert performance of it.

"Eugene Onegin," like a number of other Russian operas, is based on a work of Pushkin, one of the greatest and most popular Russian writers of the first third of the last century; one of the founders, indeed, of modern Russian literature. And of his works "Eugene Onegin" is the one best known and best beloved by the Russian public, or what was the Russian public till recently. It has even been said that it is, or was, held in the same esteem in Russia as Goethe's "Faust" in Germany. This classic of Russian literature is a "novel in verse," and it shows strongly the influences of the romantic movement that overturned literary standards and judgments in Europe in the thirties of the last century.

The story was told recently in THE TIMES. It will be recalled that Onegin, whom Mrs. Rosa Newmarch in her analysis of the opera, calls a "demon hero," of the early romantic type, "a Muscovite masquerading in the cloak of Childe Harold," and others have described as a retired Don Juan, accompanies his friend Lensky on a visit to the family of Lensky's fiancée, Olga, on their estate in the country. There her sister, the gushing Tatiana, falls in love with him and, model of propriety though she is, writes him a letter to tell him so. It should be stated in fairness to Onegin, that he has given her not the slightest encouragement; Don Juan though he may once have been, in his retirement he is also a model of propriety.

He does not at all care for Tatiana's advances and frankly tells her so, with the addition of some excellent advice. There is a ball in the country house, which Onegin finds rather boring. To make things more interesting, he flirts a bit—very mildly, it will seem to this day and generation—with Olga. Lensky, a being born for blight, observes it gloomily and finally desperately, and challenges his friend to a due. It takes place and Lensky is killed.

Onegin Again Meets Tatiana.

After an interval not stated, Onegin, a wanderer over the earth, tormented by his guilty conscience, turns up at a great ball in Petrograd and meets again Tatiana, the wife of g orgeously attired Prince. She now strikes him as a very beautiful, attractive and desirable person; and when occasion offers makes violent love to her. She has not forgotten her early passion for her; but she pointedly reminds Onegin of the rebuff he gave her, of her duty to her husband and of his duty now to leave her. Thereupon the curtain falls on his despairing protestations as she turns and leaves the room. "And Charlotte, after some brief tribulation, went on cutting bread and butter."

An excellent ending for a psychological novel. In an opera it leaves things very much in the air. When "Eugene negin" was first given in Vienna, the audience was not at all certain whether it was time to go home when the curtain fell on the scene.

These are perhaps, Russian types; at least literary ones of the romantic period. But it is not very easy now to sympathize with such an inefficient and dog as Onegin who scarcely succeeds in doing anything in the opera, except kill his friend; or with Lensky, who loses all hope because his fiancée dances a little with another man; and perhaps least of all with the "sensibility" of Tatiana, her romantic impulsiveness, her prim propriety. Mrs. Newmarch calls her a Russian Pamela, who might have stepped out of one of Richardson's novels.

Characteristic of Tschikowsky.

The music is thoroughly characteristic of Tschaikowsky in certain moods; not his most exalted, his most passionate or gloomy; nor, unfortunately, not always his most dramatic ones, such as he is able to command in the climaxes of his symphonies and symphonic poems. The mood is plangent; one of gentle melancholy, suiting the spirit of the drama. In the few places where the dramatic interest becomes tenser, as in the quarrel at the country ball, or in the whole scene of the duel, Tschaikowsky hardly rises to the occasion. And when the climax of the drama is reached in the scene between Onegin and the Princess at the end, the composer has not put his best foot forward; he has done better by less important moments and has left the oper with as little of a musical climax at the end as it has of a dramatic one.

And yet the music has undeniable charm for those who are willing to hear it and submit to it. If it be not dramatic, Tschaikowsky's own protestations should be remembered, and his characterization of it on the title page as "lyrical scenes," rather than as an opera. He knew it was not effective for the stage; he knew he had no dramatic vein and "he did not trouble about it." There is, at any rate, nothing written in it for "effect." It is throughout characteristic of the composer, a genuine expression of his talent. Even in the less successful pages of the score the hand of Tschaikowsky is apparent, as it is all through, in the quality of the melody, the finely felt, restrained and skillful treatment of the orchestra.

Much Melodious Arioso.

Tschaikowsky, in "Eugene Onegin," as in his "Pique Dame," employed a style like that of many another composer who has gone beyond the act forms of the older operas and has not accepted that of the "music drama." He writes airs, duets, choruses, dances, but they are used with dramatic appropriateness and with a fusion that puts no bar to the dramatic program of the work. There is much melodious arioso; and to the orchestra is given a function something more than that of a mere accompaniment. There is at least one "leading motive" that happens several times in the earlier scenes, a falling chromatic phrase that seems to be associated with Tatiana's "serious, thoughtful disposition."

Nor is there a strongly marked Russian character in this opera, which is much more Russian in its subject and nature than "The Pique Dame," heard here ten years ago. This music is personal to D. Tschaikovsky, not national. In the first act when the peasants defile before the ladies of the household there is a chorus and a dance that are tinged with the color of folk-song. And there is hardly more. The polonaise and the polonaises are good specimens of their kind, which is not more Russian than the tuneful waltz.

The performance, under the vigilant direction of Mr. Bodansky, was unquestionably a suitable interpretation of Tschaikovsky's score. He found it desirable to make certain omissions which are to the advantage of the performance; and the last scene is made to play in the ante-chamber of the ballroom of Prince Gremin, instead of in the reception room, thus avoiding the delay of another curtain and another stage setting.

Miss Muzio as Tatiana.

Of the singers Miss Muzio as Tatiana gave a sharply drawn portrait of the composer's conception. Her singing was unfortunately often much forced, to the detriment of her tonal quality. Dr. De Luca gave an agreeable and polished representation of Onegin; though he was less the "demon-hero" that fascinated the yearning Tatiana than an urbane and agreeable young gentleman with a well-turned leg, a dab at waltzing and a singer of excellent parts and no great intensity of passion. Intensity of passion there was in Mr. Martinelli's Lensky; but there was often something to seek in the purity and beauty of his tones in the impassioned spots. Miss Ingram's Olga, Miss Perini's Lavinia and Mme. Howard's Filipievna were acceptable in varying degrees.

The stage setting requires six scenes, which are devised with the elaboration now cultivated at the Metropolitan. The first is the entrance to the country house, shaded by big trees, with a view of rolling fields and a distant village, an effective landscape. The garden of the same estate is picturesquely shown. The scene of the duel, a river bank heavily covered with snow, has also landscape value. The interiors are pleasing, particularly Tatiana's bedroom. The costumes are those of the early nineteenth century, which gives an opportunity for picturesque variety, to which the Russian peasants in the first scene add a richer note.

The Schola Cantorum.

The Schola Cantorum, at the second concert in Carnegie Hall last evening, devoted its program to some of the out-of-the-way manifestations of music in which Mr. Schmidler is interested and in which he knows how to interest his audience. This time it was various forms of Spanish music, or music indigenous within the geographical boundaries of Spain; chiefly Basque and Catalonian for the chorus, with some folksongs sung as solos from other parts of Spain.

The Basques are an ancient people supposed to antedate the prevailing race of Spaniards. The Catalonians are more nearly allied to the Provencal French than to the Spaniards. In both provinces there has been a new musical awakening, especially in choral singing; and there are composers of both races whose works are little known outside of their native land.

This music formed the most interesting of the numbers of last night's program. Basque folk-songs were sung in settings by Jesus Guridi and Norberto Almandoz; songs of great beauty and set with admirable skill. They have an authentically fresh note, a new flavor. The humorous drinking song, "Goixian On," with its persistently repeated phrase, presents an old subject under a wholly new aspect.

The songs and settings of folk-songs by Catalonian composers, whose names are equally unknown here, are somewhat more complex in structure. Here, too, the grave and the gay are mingled. The "Sardana," the national Catalonian dance, was represented by a "Dance of the Nuns" with a marked dance rhythm and more suggestion of the conventional Spanish turn of melody than was often heard last evening. The "Song of the Vagabond," for mixed chorus with tenor and soprano solo, has an especial beauty, mournful in character and of an interesting contrapuntal structure.

But the finest of these compositions is the "Good Friday Music" of Antoni Nicolau, venerable director of the Conservatory of Barcelona. It is for four choruses in thirteen parts, and is written in the manner of the old church composers with a remarkable fluency and flexibility, but with a modern freedom of harmony that is implanted upon the old style with a singularly sure touch. The text is Latin, over which a soprano solo imposes a melody in Catalonian; at the end the choruses all break into the vernacular.

The songs were all sung in the Basque and Catalonian tongues, the former of which, especially, may conceivably have afforded some difficulties to the chorus. Mme. Rafaelic Diaz's eight songs, to which his clear diction gave added zest, were redemanded, while as many of the choral numbers were asked for twice over and four actually encored by Mr. Schindler, who, however, found the hour too late to repeat the last favorite, "Nightingale."

PEACE ONLY BY TREATY.

The Treaty was rejected by the Senate less than a week ago, yet already there are signs of a revulsion of feeling, even at Washington. They are visible to any one capable of rising above the passions of partisanship, of looking beyond the fog of controversial utterance.

We must have peace with Germany, and peace can be established only by a treaty. Even the Senators who dislike Mr. WILSON have lost faith in the absurd Knox resolution. It is worse than an absurdity. It would be disgraceful for this nation to seek to bring about peace with Germany on the basis of our demand that she accord to us every benefit and advantage we could have secured under the Treaty of Versailles, while we assume none of the duties and obligations accepted in our behalf by the negotiators of that Treaty. No great nation could with dignity and self-respect seriously propose such an arrangement. There is no substitute for a peace treaty.

Senator COLT of Rhode Island, a Republican, whose long experience on the Federal bench gives him qualifying authority to speak upon this subject, said in an address at Providence on Tuesday that the Treaty " is " only temporarily laid aside as far " as the United States is concerned " and it must eventually be ratified." A resolution declaring peace, he said, " would not accomplish anything," and further:

> Peace has to be made. Terms have to be agreed upon. The common-sense thing to do is to stay with our associates and to make with the common enemy the peace they make.
> If we permanently stay out of the League of Nations, instead of having the bulk of the world with us, we shall have forty-five nations in the League all allied against us. Our Monroe Doctrine will be gone, for the South American countries are going into the League. Our world leadership will be gone.
>
> The time will come, and it will not be a distant time, when the President will be able to resubmit the Treaty to a Senate that, benefiting by sober second thought, will be far less insistent upon reservations that mutilate and destroy, will be disposed to ratify the Treaty with reservations dictated by reason, under a sense of responsibility, reservations that will declare our understanding of the Treaty, but will leave intact its vital guarantees of justice and peace among nations and will bring the United States into association with the other great Powers for the attainment of those objects. The people of the country desire the ratification of the Treaty, they do not want it to be made the subject of campaign wrangling.

VOTING IN A BLIZZARD.

South Dakota held her primaries in a blizzard. General WOOD appears to have carried them, but not many returns from the country districts have come in yet; the vote as reported is from the cities. That, however, is rather favorable to WOOD than otherwise; the country districts have not been supposed to be very strong for Governor LOWDEN, his principal opponent, and the General's remarkable and really daring campaign through the blizzard may be supposed to have made some impression on men who appreciate sturdiness and physical courage.

Despite all the stories about money in the campaign, money has been used as freely by the friends of one candidate as by those of another, with the possible exception of Senator JOHNSON, and even in his case it is difficult to see how his expensive tours from coast to coast could have been financed without friendly contributions. The Rough Rider feeling is strong in South Dakota, the old Progressives and followers of ROOSEVELT are still powerful there, and if there was a division of their vote it was between WOOD and JOHNSON. Governor LOWDEN in that State had a divided opposition, and it is not surprising that he ran second.

The comments on the " light vote " in the country, as contrasted with that in the city, are superfluous. In a blizzard a light country vote is to be expected. As for the woman vote, it is much more trouble for a farmer's wife to get ready for a journey to town and make it than it is for the farmer himself, and it may safely be assumed that every South Dakota farmer who voted did so for the family, unless he had a wife who didn't mind blizzards.

MISGUIDED LANDLORDS.

The United Real Estate Owners' Association is likely to regret its exhibition of ruthless greed in the meeting of last Sunday. Individually tenants may be as sheep before a pack of ravening wolves, but when they appear collectively in the chambers of Albany the tables are turned. Politics is " something else again." Unless a spirit of reason and fair play is invoked to solve the housing difficulty, the landlords are likely themselves to experience the life of the hunted. Their wiser leaders have, apparently, grasped the truth of the situation. On the catabasis from Albany Mr. STEWART BROWNE, who a few days before had talked of profits of 20 per cent. as reasonable, reduced his figures to " 10 or 15 per cent." This time it is not reported that any hearer " roared disapproval."

The present danger is that the tenants will place too great reliance upon legislation and that the laws will be made too drastic. The proposal to prohibit rent profiteering, as usury is prohibited, sounds plausible and may prove workable, but even its warmest advocates admit that it involves delicate constitutional questions. To subject the urgent daily needs of the community to a series of judicial decisions would be unfortunate, and if legislative zeal made the legitimate profit too low building enterprise would be checked. Equally important, and equally difficult, is the question of attracting money for real estate mortgages. A remission of the State income tax would bring some relief, but in comparison with the Federal income tax that is trivial and there is little likelihood of relief from Washington. Yet without abundant new capital there is no prospect of supplying the dwellings which are urgently needed to the number of 100,000 or more. From every point of view the situation calls for ripe wisdom and steady forbearance.

In Chicago landlords and tenants have met to work out a plan for establishing district arbitration boards upon which all parties shall be duly represented. That is the traditional American way. In the orderly proceedings of an open court we are not as a people disposed toward the mood of a pack of ravening wolves. The great majority of disagreements can be settled by the enlightened sense of the community. It was in this belief that Mayor HYLAN recently called a conference of employers and employés in the building trades and of merchants of building materials. But that conference came to a standstill before the labor difficulty, which is still apparently as far as ever from being solved.

Only one thing is certain. As long as the present impasse endures all parties are equally sufferers—tenants for the lack of housing, landlords for the lack of a stable business future and workmen for the lack of both. It is a situation that can scarcely become worse. Eventually common sense must emerge and assert itself.

THE BITUMINOUS COAL TRADE.

The public will share the President's disappointment that the commission to which he referred the bituminous coal strike has been unable to agree upon the issues presented. In that case public opinion would have required submission to the award, which now serves only as the basis for negotiations between the miners and the operators, with a strong presumption in favor of the majority opinion. The overruling of the minority carries with it belief that the miners asked too much, just as the agreement of the majority carries with it the conclusion that the operators conceded too little. There is an excess of both capital and labor in the bituminous industry under normal conditions. In ordinary times the country cannot use the capacity of production of either the labor or the mines, but neither labor nor capital is able without hardship to abandon the industry which is the support of both.

The country cannot afford to pay enough for coal to enable the men and the mines to live part of the time in idleness, but there is no reason why both may not do very well in the immediate future if only they will supply the abnormal demand now available for export. If the men will work the awarded hours for more days, they can earn more than they said they would be satisfied with if only they could get the work to do. The enlarged output would enable the operators to pay more wages without any advance of rate of pay. It is tantalizing to know that there should be a surplus available to relieve need and suffering abroad not realizable because of inchmate quarrels. Restriction of output to the capacity of a thirty-hour week at enlarged pay would be, as the majority say, economically criminal. If trade reports are to be believed, it is possible to make profitable sales of millions of tons for foreign consumption. Within the week there were available 400,000 tons of shipping and only 40,000 tons of export coal. There never were such favorable conditions for mutual benefits running all through both the domestic and foreign coal trades, and they will not long be available.

Most of the majority report is given up in counsels of perfection for the undeniable benefit of the industry. Theoretically people ought to buy coal when it is plenty, the railways ought to move it more cheaply when they are not gorged with the crop movement, and the banks ought to advance the cash to make the plan easy. There is nothing reasonable to be said to the contrary, but it would be unreasonable in the light of experience to expect the advice to be acted upon. No consumer likes to buy before he wants to, and many consumers cannot store large supplies. The railways which cannot carry at present rates are not likely to carry more cheaply for the convenience of others, and there is no surplus of cars. The banks are as much overworked as the railways, and do not care to take over the financing of a billion-dollar account. Yet something might be expected from each, with a considerable betterment of conditions. The public should lend a hand as well as the miners and the operators. It is said that $200,000,000 will be added to costs and that the public may expect to pay it. But a full working year and the exportation of a capacity of millions of tons might so enlarge profits that the addition to domestic prices would be reduced or entirely absorbed.

A UNION LABOR PARTY.

By the circular of its Campaign Executive Committee, urging the nomination and election to political office of members of trade unions, the American Federation of Labor has reversed the policy which it followed so long and has become a separate and distinct class party. This is in imitation of foreign models and foreign radical ideas, whose recent mastery of that great organization, which made itself powerful and successful under conservative management, has been only too evident. A little while ago the Federation declared its purpose of taking an active part in the elections, of rewarding its friends and punishing its opponents. Now it proposes " a smashing effort " to " nominate members of trade unions for elective offices."

With a curious forgetfulness of facts, this union labor campaign is called a " non-partisan campaign." It is a strictly partisan union labor campaign. Union labor candidates are to be nominated and, elected, if possible. In communities unblessed with such candidates, union labor is to exhaust all its " resources to defeat every enemy of labor." Both positively and negatively it is a class party movement and campaign. The " co-operation of sympathetic farmers and farm organizations " is to be sought, but cannot be found. Farmers and genuine farm organizations have no love for the excessive pretensions and demands of the present leaders of the Federation.

Here, then, if the officials of the Federation represent the opinions of the majority of its members, we have a labor party, a class party that segregates itself from the body of the people and pursues seperately its own end. Hitherto organized labor has exerted its influence on and in both parties, and notably among the representatives of both in Congress. That was a sagacious and an American policy. What will be the fate of the new venture? Is it now possible, though it has never been possible before, to make members of labor unions cease to think and to vote as Democrats and as Republicans, to make them abandon the course by which so many economic advantages and legal privileges, exemptions and immunities have been won?

THE STEEL REPORT.

The Steel Corporation makes a report which suggests that good and bad times are much the same to the momentum of a mass so large as its business. Its undivided surplus now approximates its common stock, and its bonded debt has been reduced by $128,710,000. Its current assets are $672,295,388, including more than half in Liberty bonds, cash, bank deposits and such undeniable items. It has a quarter-million employés and pays a little less than a half billion wages annually. Its volume of business decreased by $296,754,328 from the war total and remained about a billion and a half.

These are the results of a year in which the steel trade was disturbed by strikes within itself and related industries, and by the price and business fluctuations incidental to the end of war and return of near peace. The corporation is so far from being a dictator of prices that it accepted the scale of prices fixed by the Department of Commerce, although others did business at higher rates, as it might easily have done. Yet business steadily accumulated on its books, and unfilled orders were nearly a million tons larger at the year's end than at its beginning.

This is the safe and sane record of a corporation formed for the " stabilization of investment," according to its prospectus, and which has been relentlessly pursued by Government prosecutors, labor trusts, and critics of methods which they did not understand and failed to sympathize with. The " trust " has become an institution rather than a corporation, and has established its character in practices so firmly fixed that it must maintain them long even after the prosecutors relax their vigilance, if ever. The appreciation which the Chairman expresses for the loyal and faithful service of his colleagues is due to him from the country, for corporations have no mind or conscience of their own, but reflect those of the men behind them.

A MATTER OF JUSTICE.

Whatever opinions or differences of opinion there have been and are as to the special qualifications of Mr. BAINBRIDGE COLBY for the post of Secretary of State or as to the political wisdom of his appointment, there can be but one opinion about his modest hope, expressed to Mr. LODGE, Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, that " a way may be found to " lift the secrecy which surrounds the " evidence taken by the committee " on the subject of his confirmation. To be sure, the fulfillment of that hope depends upon the sense of justice of the committee, and that committee loves to screen itself in an almost impenetrable, arcane, mysterious sanctity of secrecy.

Suppose for a moment, however, that these gentlemen, collectively so aloof and majestic, are individually subject to the sense of fair play and the generous instincts of ordinary men. How do ordinary men feel about Mr. COLBY's passage, so to speak, through that committee? For a time it does nothing about the nomination. Then we begin to hear of witnesses and testimony. The slender stream of knowledge that is allowed to escape the committee room is rich in implication, surmise and innuendo not flattering to Mr. COLBY. First, there seems to be a suggestion that he was mixed up in some way or other with pro-Germanism. Heads with nothing in them are sagely shaken. Is it unprofessional conduct that is attributed to Mr. COLBY? If not, with what offense is he charged?

Nobody knows. The curtain is not drawn. The receiver of the gossip telephone is not hung up. The public knows only that no objection to Mr. COLBY's confirmation is raised by the committee. The nomination is confirmed. Is it not reasonable for the Secretary of State to ask, is it not right that the public should know, of what, if anything, he was accused? If it be said that the action of the Committee on Foreign Relations and of the Senate on his nomination sufficiently answers an disproves whatever charges or objections were made against him, that is not the point. For some weeks he was exposed to suspicions. Evidently those suspicions were unjust, but in common fairness to Mr. COLBY ought not the committee to make public all the evidence or tittle-tattle submitted to it in the matter?

TOO MUCH NICKY.

The inability of the police to keep up with NICKY ARNSTEIN was a joke for a while, but any professional humorist knows that the same joke can be played upon too long. Mr. MCGEE, counsel for the gentleman who so modestly denies that his mind is masterly, has pretty nearly used up the possibilities of humor in the affair. He admitted that ARNSTEIN had given him the keys of the safety deposit boxes, which the unwordily Mrs. ARNSTEIN said she had lost. Where were the keys now? Mr. MCGEE didn't know; apparently he leaves keys of safety deposit boxes almost anywhere. Mr. MCGEE would smoke while on the witness stand, and seemed to regard it as oppression when a Federal Commissioner forbade him. When the Commissioner asked a question Mr. MCGEE " objected to his comments." Apparently it is impudent for any Federal or State official to ask embarrassing questions of members of the Arnstein circle.

Somebody stole some bonds. NICKY is accused of knowing something about it. If he is innocent, as he asserts, there is at least a good chance that he could demonstrate his innocence in court. But he has an aesthetic abhorrence for the façade of the Tombs, and rather than see the outside of the building he will stay away, sacrificing with a heavy heart the opportunity to prove his innocence that a trial would afford him. It was funny for a while, but it requires a profound sense of humor to appreciate it now. Yet Federal and State authorities seem powerless.

IT SOUNDS WELL.

Mr. LITVINOFF's statement of Bolshevist foreign policy given out to a waiting world is attractive enough for anybody. The Bolsheviki will make peace, disband their army, and pay the old Russian debt with interest if their republic is recognised and other countries agree not to interfere in their internal affairs as they agree not to interfere in the internal affairs of others. " Mutual and serious guarantees " are to be given to back up this promise. Says LITVINOFF:

> We must be left in peace to work out among ourselves our social experiment. If that experiment succeeds other peoples will follow it. If it fails we shall be obliged to try another method.

His remarks would be more convincing if various highly placed leaders of Bolshevism had not told us, in past days when they had no particular reason to seek the favor of the rest of the world, that the " other method " to be adopted in case of the failure of Bolshevism in Russia was the inciting of a world revolution. They did not even express it so mildly as that; they said a few months ago that Bolshevism could not succeed in Russia without a worldwide revolution. Now worldwide revolution has been forgotten and we are merely to contemplate a peaceful experiment. This is important, if true; but the program of the Third Internationale may make some of us a little slow to believe in it. The Bolshevist Government officially makes peace and abstains from revolutionary propaganda; the Third Internationale, organized under the wing of Russian Bolshevism and led by the sweetly spoken Mr. ENOVIEFF, will do the rough work while the Government waves the olive branch and unchains the dove.

" We are pacifists," Mr. LITVINOFF tells us. The idea of a secret German alliance, or of any alliance, is abhorrent to the Bolshevist soul. " Polish imperialism, which German militarists are supporting "—a statement which is somewhat extraordinary, to say the least—is the only thing that keeps the Red army in the field at all. The Bolsheviki have offered Poland " a loyal peace," but the Poles insist on a protectorate over Russian territory. The apostles of internationalism are appalled by this offense against Russian national patriotism, so they have to keep their Red army in the field unless somebody else compels the Poles to withdraw to the neighborhood of Brest-Litovsk. A few weeks ago the Bolsheviki seemed willing to make extensive territorial concessions to Poland, before Mr. LLOYD GEORGE and Mr. NITTI began to talk peace. Now they think that the British and Italians want peace so badly that they will force the Poles to give up territory whose ultimate allegiance may be a matter of dispute, but which the Poles need now as protection against a possible Bolshevist attack. If Bolshevist professions of mildness are not taken seriously now, it is because people took the Bolsheviki seriously when they talked in a quite different tone. And if the breakdown of the Russian transportation system is anything like as serious as is indicated by yesterday's dispatches from Warsaw—and Mr. MARTENS's eagerness to get locomotives would suggest that it is very serious—a motive for this change of tone is easily visible.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

They Lost the War Just There.

It has been said more than once, and by more than one high authority, that the Germans lost the war in the September of 1914, when VON KLUCK's march on Paris was stopped by JOFFRE in the first battle of the Marne. The statement is true, of course, only in the sense that then the Germans had to abandon the kind of warfare for which their elaborate preparations had been made, and that thereafter, with plans disarranged or wrecked, and forced to make a quick revision of purposes and methods, they were no longer doing the sort of things in which by temperament and training they were most skilful.

That they were not beaten then was made lamentably certain by four more years of fighting, in the last one of which years victory for a while seemed in their grasp, but it is a fact, as the culminating events proved, that the September battle rendered possible the final triumph of the Allies.

For these reasons there is full justification for raising on the bank of the famous river a permanent expression of the world's gratitude for what the French General, his officers and his men did there in the days that now seem so remote only because so much has happened since then. To do so is a privilege as well as a duty, and of all the nations whose liberties were saved or served by French heroism and French military genius, the United States is best able to perform the pious and gracious task.

We were among those whom the French arms protected, and we cannot claim, as can the other beneficiaries of JOFFRE's amazing exploit, to need all our own resources for the meeting of our own desperate necessities. We are faced by problems many and great, but we are not starving, our cities have not been decimated, and our industries are active and prosperous.

Americans Will Give The Statue.

Considerations like those just stated are the basis of the effort making this week to raise in the United States funds for the erection on the Marne near Meaux—the exact spot to be fixed by Generals JOFFRE and FOCH—a colossal memorial statue in token of American appreciation of what the French, not less for the world than for themselves, did there. The sculptor selected to make the statue is FREDERICK MACMONNIES—a choice that insures its merit and adequacy as a work of art—and the names of the men on the National Committee which has undertaken the raising of the funds required give the full assurance of responsibility that fairly can be demanded in these days of innumerable demands upon the public's purse and generosity.

The amount for which the committee asks—$250,000—seems strangely small in comparison with most of the other " drives " now making, but it is enough fittingly to carry out an admirable purpose. It is desired—and desirable—that just as the statue of Liberty Enlightening the World was the gift, not of a few Frenchmen, but of many thousands of them, so this one shall be paid for by many Americans instead of a few. The contributions should come from all over the country, and none of them needs be large if the response is general.

The Treasurer of the National Committee, CHARLES H. SABIN, can be addressed at its headquarters, 120 Nassau Street, by those who want to send him a check, but another good way to help is to drop a coin into any of the easily recognizable receptacles now to be seen on the sidewalks of this and other towns.

A Californian View of Easterners.

A correspondent of The Los Angeles Times, who must be own brother of the landlords who went to Albany on Tuesday, has sent to that paper a curiously frank explanation of why he now charges $25 for a room that he rented a few years ago for $10 or even $8. The reason, he writes, is because he can get the higher sum, and that, he insists, is the same reason why the price of The Los Angeles Times is now twice what it used to be, though its size has been halved.

The difference between the two cases must be obvious to anybody except a profiteering landlord, but, instead of elaborating that simple point, it is more interesting to reproduce some feeling remarks of this correspondent that reveal how he regards visitors from the East. He hotly denies the charge that he and his kind will drive tourists away.

" Not on your tintype," he elegantly replies. " We can depend upon you, the Chamber of Commerce, myself and other highly respected citizens inventing a new and improved bait to bring in the lambs to be shorn. Anyway, statistics show that a new sucker is born every second, and there are a great many seconds between now and the first of next November."

A Sensation Speedily Evaporated.

Much pity and indignation were excited when there was told in court, the other day, the story of two old women who, according to the narrators, had been for ten years prisoners in a madhouse, though they both were entirely sane. It seems now that the two women were not, are not and never will be sane, and, as there is no charge that their treatment in the State asylum was ever unkind, it is evident that the sympathy—as regards their confinement—was wasted, and that the indignation, if any, should be directed elsewhere than against their guardians.

For according to the doctors who have examined the BAUSH sisters for the State Hospital Commission, their commitment was entirely legal and they are the victims of a form of paranoia from which recovery is impossible. Their delusions are characteristic, but characteristic, too, is the fact that, except for these illusions, their minds function normally enough, and for prolonged periods, to the non-expert, they show no evidences of insanity.

The case is one in a category of considerable size, and in such cases public judgment should not be either hasty or confident. Many people seem to have forgotten that State asylums for the insane are crowded, and that they are more likely to turn patients out too soon than to keep them too long.

SENATE AS TREATY-MAKER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Let it not be forgotten that the background for the disgraceful scene witnessed at Washington for months past is the theory of Lodge and his followers that the Senate should take part in the actual negotiation of treaties, rather than to ratify or reject after due examination the measures negotiated by the President, acting directly or through such agencies as are provided for his aid, in pursuance of the terms and necessary implications of the Constitution.

Now if there is any one thing that the events of the past months have demonstrated to perfection, it is the absolute unfitness of the Senate to act as a treaty-making agency of the Government. And this unfitness does not rest on the mere chance that an absolutely unfit man happened to be Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations. The reasons are fundamental. The Senate can by no possibility meet and discuss with the other parties concerned. If it be said that it could appoint some one or more of its number to do this, then there could be no guarantee whatever that the report of this small committee would be accepted by two-thirds of the entire body. The Senate as " a treaty-making body " would immediately proceed to unmake what its small committee had done, and we would have over again just the disgraceful sacrifice of the nation's dignity and interests, just the same unspeakable political littleness, just the same reckless imperilling of our relations with foreign powers as Lodge and his fantastically impractical theories of Senatorial prerogatives have subjected us to in the present case. Aside from the impossibility of direct negotiation by the Senate, its very size and makeup add to certainty that the necessary two-thirds majority could almost never be attained for a treaty actually built up in the midst of its own political wrangling. Very rarely has one party a clear two-thirds majority in the Senate, and in the present case the attempt to make the treaty over has so split the Republican Party that neither faction has anywhere near one-half the Senate, to say nothing of two-thirds. Furthermore, it has so split the party that even if it should carry the Presidency in November it can have no prospect whatever of a treaty-making control of the Senate during the entire four years of the coming Administration.

A man must be blind indeed who cannot see that these conditions, if continued, will leave the United States completely hamstrung so far as any real power in international relations is concerned—not merely power to aid in guarding the peace of the world at large, but power to safeguard even our own material interests. The Senate had the unquestioned constitutional right to vote the treaty down, if it wanted to. It could easily have come to the conclusion whether it wanted to do so within a month after the treaty was submitted. Does any sane man doubt that some passable result could have been arrived at before this if the Senate had not abandoned that attitude and set itself up to make the treaty over? The height of absurdity is reached when we assail the President's treaty-making work as " unpractical " and then expect a body such as the Senate to go to work and make a really practical document for the settling up of so complex a problem as that left by the recent World War.

W. H. JOHNSON.

THE FALLEN LAND.

More desolate and bleak than wreck-strewn shore,
Whose jagged ridges echo evermore
Only the sea-mews' plaintive threnody,
Wailing above an unsailed, sullen sea?
What sadder than men's dwelling-place of yore,
Now waste and weed-grown, like a giant sore
On Nature's breast, which all her lovers flee?
Thus lorn, abandoned, left of spirit's grace,
Thou, Hunland, once for legend, art and song
Beloved; now justly scorned, in swift decline
Fallen to impotence and whinings base,
Still slave to pride, impenitent of wrong,
Still cursed by Father's hoard beneath thy Rhine!

HERMAN MONTAGU DOMMER.

YEATS THOMPSON SALE.

Quaritch Buys Gem of Collection, a Boccaccio M.S., for £8,900.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 24.—Today's sale at Sotheby's of the second part of the Yeats Thompson collection of illustrated manuscripts and fifteenth century books realized £17,095. Many dealers and collectors from various parts of the world were in attendance. J. P. Morgan's librarian, Miss Greene, A. Chester Beatty and L. Harper were among the American visitors.

Quaritch was the biggest purchaser of the manuscripts, and at times there was spirited bidding between him and Continental and American visitors. He bought the most precious volume of all, a manuscript Boccaccio " Des Cleres et Nobles Femmes," for £8,900. He also obtained a fine Paduan Psalter, with about 200 miniatures and dating from the thirteenth-fourteenth century, at £600, as well as a Psalter of Cosimo de Medici of about 1490, at £1,735, and a Book of Hours of Dionora, Duchess of Deogants bought a breviary of Duke Hercules of Ferrara at £1,800 and a Horae of René of Lorraine, one of the smallest books in the sale, dating from the first half of the fifteenth century, with forty miniatures, at £4,800.

Three French manuscripts, formerly the property of Jean, Duc de Berri, a great book collector of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, all fell to Quaritch, the two principal ones being the Duc de Berri's " Bible Historiée," at £1,250, and Vincent de Beauvais's " Speculum Historiae," at £6,700.

Of fourteen English MSS. the highest price, £5,700, was paid by Deogants for an Apocalypse with a commentary of Berengaudus, a fine work partly executed probably at Canterbury in the thirteenth century and finished in Italy. " The Life and Miracles of St. Cuthbert " was sold for £5,000. A Carrow Psalter, dating from 1240-1250, brought £4,100. A Horae of the Salvin family of Croxdale brought £2,000; a Le Tyrevit Psalter of about 1220, £195; a Psalter of John of Gaunt, dating from about 1360, £4,000; the " Houra of Elizabeth, Queen of Henry VII.," a work of the highest artistic excellence, produced in England during the civil wars, £4,000, and a Wingfield Horae dating from about 1460, £2,200. These were all purchased by Quaritch.

A Sarum missal of the Sherbrooke family went at 1860 to Mr. Blaker, who also bought a De Grey Horae at £1,270.

Catalogued to be sold immediately after the Yeats Thompson collection was a volume of rare Shakespeare pieces discovered at Longner Hall. It was announced in the saleroom that the volume had been sold privately to Quaritch, who is understood to have acquired it for a private collector. No price was mentioned. There is a general impression that the Longner treasure will cross the Atlantic, possibly to the Huntington Library.

ITALY'S CABINET SHAKY.

Nitti Said to Doubt That Chamber Will Support It.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, March 23.—The possibility of a Cabinet crisis in Italy is suggested by the Giornale d'Italia today. It says Premier Nitti himself admits that he may be unable to obtain a vote of confidence in the Chamber.

In this case, says the newspaper, either Professor Luigi Luzzati, the Minister of the Treasury, or Signor Benomi, the Minister of War, would succeed Signor Nitti as Premier, or Premier Nitti would be intrusted with the task of forming another Ministry.

MILAN, March 24.—Touching upon the question of foreign policy in his opening speech before the reassembled Parliament in Rome, Premier Nitti affirmed that while other powers were engaged in imperialistic prizefights, Italy had resolved to treat affairs on a democratic basis and by promoting a spirit of concord to work out her own salvation and to contribute to the salvation of other peoples. Italy's relations with France and Great Britain, he said, were truly sincere and cordial.

Although the Premier's speech was persistently interrupted by the Socialist opposition with loud cries for demobilization and with protests against the dispatch of Italian troops to Turkey, it was a big success. Nitti was especially applauded when he expressed the hope that Leninist Russia, which has a larger army on a war footing than any allied power, would soon disband the million and a half of men actually under arms.

MORE SUBWAY CARS TODAY.

New Schedules for Better Service Become Effective Today.

New schedules for an increase in service on the east and west side subway lines of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company will go into effect today. The order of the Public Service Commission called for an increase sufficient to equal during nearly all of the twenty-four hours of each day the rush-hour service. It was estimated this would be equivalent to the addition of 600 cars, but the order was later modified so that it was reduced to the equivalent of 450 cars.

Instead of the six-car express trains operated on the east side subway the shortest express trains will consist of eight cars. Local trains will be increased by the addition of one car. On the west side subway the ten-car express trains will be retained and local trains will operate on a shorter headway, thus increasing the trips and gaining the same end as if the number of cars were increased. If 450 cars are not enough the original order for the increase to the equivalent of 600 cars will be reinstated. The city has threatened to begin legal proceedings to seize the lines of the company unless adequate service is rendered.

TRAFFIC ILLS REMEDIED.

Fifth Avenue Towers Do Good Work —One-Way Plan Postponed.

Traffic conditions in Fifth Avenue during the two weeks' test of the signal towers have improved to such an extent that the one-way plan for the avenue has been postponed indefinitely, according to John A. Harriss, Special Deputy Police Commissioner in charge of traffic problems. Dr. Harriss said yesterday that, although the one-way scheme has not been withdrawn officially by the Police Department, the present system, installed merely as a temporary measure to accustom tower men to the manipulation of signals, will be continued.

" Not only do the five towers control traffic in the congested district between Thirty-fourth and Fifty-seventh Streets, but police stationed at crossings as far down as Fourteenth Street keep one eye on the winking lights and regulate the stream of vehicles by the numbers." Pedestrians move in the same direction as vehicles, traffic is smoother and, as a result, a taxi can go from the Plaza to the Waldorf in less than seven minutes. Since the towers have been in operation the traffic snarls have been straightened out.

DISCOUNTS SPIRITUALISM.

Prof. Miller Says Its Believers Accept Insufficient Evidence.

" Spirit Communication from the Dead " was the subject of a sermon by Professor Dickinson S. Miller of the General Theological Seminary before the Churchwomen's Club in St. John's Cathedral yesterday afternoon. The speaker made skeptical references to Sir Oliver Lodge and the Italian medium, Eusapia Palladino.

" We are led to believe in these communications," he said, " by the human weakness of accepting insufficient evidence. The best that can be said of the supporters of spiritualism is, ' They know not what they do, and thus they do harm.' Humanity, as through all the ages, is being crucified by ignorance."

REGULATIONS ISSUED ON BANKING ABROAD

ACTS UNDER THE EDGE LAW

Care Taken to Keep All Organizations in Hands of Citizens of United States.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Regulations were issued this afternoon by the Federal Reserve Board for administration of the amendment to the Federal Reserve law recently adopted by Congress which was introduced by Senator Edge of New Jersey, and allows the incorporation of institutions to engage in international or foreign banking or other financial operations, national banks, individuals, firms, and other corporations being permitted to invest in their stocks.

Governor Harding of the Federal Reserve Board, in announcing the regulations, said:

" While the public discussions for the purpose of this law have emphasized the fact that it is to permit American investors by means of Federal corporations to assist in the reconstruction of Europe at a time when such assistance is most vitally needed, nevertheless the real purpose is a broader one, that is, to provide for the establishment of a Federal system of international banking or financial corporations operating under Federal supervision, with powers sufficiently broad to enable them effectively to compete with similar foreign institutions, and to afford to the American exporter and importer at all times a possible means of financing his foreign business. Although it is true that the immediate effect of the operation of corporations under the terms of this section may be greatly to aid in the extension of much-needed long-term credits to Europe, that effect is in reality only one incident to the permanent development of the American export market."

Restrictions Imposed.

The board, according to Governor Harding, " while realizing the importance of making its regulations sufficiently liberal to enable corporations operating under them effectively to compete with foreign institutions or State institutions doing a foreign business, has been impelled by the ordinary principles of banking prudence to impose restrictions which it believes will ultimately do much to command the prestige and public confidence upon which must depend the success of every corporation of this character."

Details as to incorporators, capital stock, &c., are demanded by the regulations, which also provide that no corporation issuing its own bonds, debentures or other obligations, or having the word " Federal " in its title, will be allowed to use the word " bank " as part of its name.

At least three of the Directors must specify that each Director is an American citizen, that a majority of the stock is American-owned, that 25 per cent. of the capital stock has been paid in cash, and that each shareholder has individually paid in 25 per cent. of his subscriptions. No corporation may be organized with less than $2,000,000 capital stock.

" To preserve the American status of a majority of the capital stock, Directors must approve all stock transfers, and, as regulations must make," affidavit whether they are American or foreign. The Directors must refuse transfer of stock which would result in 50 per cent. being held contrary to law. The regulations read:

" If at any time by reason of the fact that the holder of any shares of the corporation ceases to be a citizen of the United States, or, in the opinion of the Board of Directors, becomes subject to the control of any foreign State or foreigner or foreign corporation or corporation under foreign control, 50 per cent. or more of the total amount of capital stock issued or outstanding is held contrary to the provisions of the law of these regulations, the Board of Directors may, when apprised of that fact, forthwith serve on the holder of the shares in question a notice in writing requiring such holder within two months to transfer such shares to a citizen of the United States or to a firm, company or corporation approved by the Board of Directors as an eligible stockholder."

If the shares are not transferred, they are to be forfeited to the corporation.

Business Only Abroad.

Under the regulations no corporation shall carry on any part of its business in the United States except such as shall be incidental to its international or foreign business, although agencies may be established in the United States, with the approval of the Federal Reserve Board, for specific purposes.

Except with the approval of the Federal Reserve Board, no corporation shall invest more than 15 per cent. of its capital and surplus in the stock of any corporation engaged in banking, or more than 10 per cent. in the stock of any other kind of corporation.

No corporation shall purchase any stock in any other corporation which is in substantial competition therewith or which holds stock in such competitors. This restriction, however, does not apply to corporations organized under foreign laws.

No corporation shall issue debentures, bonds, notes or other such obligations without the approval of the Federal Reserve Board, and this restriction shall not apply to notes issued in borrowing from banks or bankers for temporary purposes not to exceed one year.

No corporation shall offer for sale any foreign securities with its indorsement or guaranty except with the approval of the board.

Acceptances Regulated.

Provision is made for acceptance by a corporation of drafts and bills of exchange drawn upon it " which grow out of transactions of the kinds which form the basis of eligible bankers' acceptances under the terms of Section 13 of the Federal Reserve act." A 15 per cent. reserve must be maintained against thirty-day acceptances or of less time, and 5 per cent. against acceptances of greater length than thirty days.

Regulations governing deposits provide that no corporation shall receive in the United States any deposits except such as are incidental to, or for the purpose of, carrying out transactions in foreign countries or dependencies of the United States where the corporation has established agencies, branches or where it operates through the ownership or control of subsidiary corporations. Outside the United States a corporation may receive deposits of any kind from individuals, firms, banks or other corporations unless such corporation has any of its bonds, debentures, or other such obligations outstanding. In that event it may receive abroad

BELLES IN TINY STATUES.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—A portrait show of a new order is attracting the fashionable world and art lovers to the studio exhibition of Mrs. Lithrow Osborne, where one finds tiny statues of well known belles, a few men and many children in bronze, plaster and marble.

Mme. Brambilla, wife of the counselor of the Italian Embassy and daughter of the former Secretary of the Navy, George von L. Meyer, appears just about to dance with all the grace of her girlhood days. Miss Gladys Hinckley stands tall and fair in a dinner gown on classic lines. Miss Ruth Perkins, in bronze, is one of the best likenesses. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Grafton Minot, Billy and Nannie, in a group that could be completely hidden under an ordinary silk hat, shows them at play.

Another group consists of Sylvia and Hennen Hackett, children of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Hackett of this city. Miss Alicia Rodgers, who stands alone, seven inches high, is the small daughter of Commander and Mrs. C. R. Rodgers and a great-granddaughter of the late Senator Donald Cameron of Pennsylvania.

To be "sculped" is the right thing right now, with the result that this branch of art is taking precedence over miniature paintings in many homes.

Mrs. Osborne, who has inaugurated this fashion, was before her marriage Countess Lillie Raben-Levitzau, daughter of a Danish statesman and diplomat.

Helen Yorke Captivates Audience.

Helen Yorke, a young singer from Maine, "and from the neighborhood that produced Annie Louise Cary and Emma Eames," as Mr. Bispham introduced her, captured with a rush—like the Yankees at the Argonne—her first audience in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon. Though of some experience in grand opera at Naples, she has perhaps yet to find her true field in opera of a lighter sort. Young and animated, she still overacts and attempts all styles of singing, as yesterday in airs from "The Barber" and "Lucia," a "Villanelle" by Del Acqua and "Spring Voices" or Strauss. Her skill in coloratura is not ripe for New York, but youth and charm won their way with the house, which redemanded little song pantomimes like Lemaire's "Vous Danses, Marquise," that Mabel Garrison last gave here. Miss Yorke was accompanied by Francis Moore in these songs and others by Edward German, Scott and Seller.

ASKS MORE LIGHTS IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

LARGER DESKS REQUESTED

Board of Education Demands to be Heard on Bill to Increase Salaries of Teachers.

Miss Vell Gurnee, chairman of the American Civics Committee of the Woman's Branch of the Civic Federation, representing also the Women's League for National Service, asked the Board of Education at its meeting yesterday to improve conditions in the night schools so the work of Americanization of foreigners might be carried on properly and people be attracted to and not kept from the schools.

Speaking of the lighting of the evening school, she said the foreigners who attended Americanization classes in the evening were compelled to go up dark stairways. The seats and desks also ought to be changed, she said, as they were for the use of children and a man seated at one of the desks had to twist himself into an uncomfortable position. The classes, she suggested, might be on the ground floor and not upstairs.

The board had been granted $20,000 last year to conduct these classes, the speaker said, and she thought the teachers should be better paid, saying other cities paid their teachers more than New York did. President Prall promised that the Board of Education would investigate the matter and do what it could to comply with Miss Gurnee's requests.

Mr. Prall told the board he had excused a large number of teachers to go to Albany for the hearing on the Lockwood-Donohue bill, increasing the salaries of teachers 20 to 40 per cent. He asked its approval of his action. Arthur S. Somers thought that in the present shortage of teachers it was not wise to allow so many teachers to be absent from their duties. He said that four or five would represent the teachers as well as 100 and that the board should be heard on the salary question at Albany. On his motion President Prall was asked to send a telegram to the legislative committee in charge of the bill, requesting it not to make any decision in the matter until it had granted a hearing to the board.

George J. Ryan, Chairman of the Committee on Shortage of Teachers, said that it would have his report ready by one week. That much report would deal not only with the teacher shortage question but other matters affecting the schools and needing reform.

Benjamin B. Greenberg, Principal of Public School 11, in West Seventeenth Street, completed yesterday a survey of all the teachers in the public schools of Manhattan, the Bronx and Richmond on the Lockwood-Donohue bill, with the exception of one school, No. 168, in Manhattan. There are 6,899 teachers in these schools, and 6,840 voted in favor of the bill. It is understood that in No. 168 the teachers are unanimously for the bill.

The returns from the poll o teachers on the Lockwood-Donohue bill taken by the New York City Teachers' Association show that 20,568 teachers have already been canvassed and that 20,180, or 98 per cent., have signed a formal indorsement of the bill. The sentiment for the percentage increase is equally strong in all boroughs.

The Board of Education ordered the clocks of the department set on Sunday nearly two hours to comply with the daylight saving law.

Frederick Handley Page, the English airplane manufacturer, at a luncheon yesterday in the American Flying Club expressed his opposition to Government control and operation of commercial aeronautics, with the exception of licensing of pilots, planes and airdromes.

"In England we have had bitter experience with Government regulation," he said. "We have found that in every instance of Government operation there has been unnecessary expense, waste and inefficiency. There is an exception, however, in the cases of licenses, where Government conrtol has worked to the benefit of all concerned."

Mr. Page said that commercial aviation would never be a success until there was "a living propaganda of actual flying." Talking and writing about aviation would never accomplish as much as taking people up in the air and demonstrating to them how safe flying was, he said.

COLUMBIA'S PLAY BRIGHT.

Music that sparkled from the rise of the curtain to its last descent was the gayest feature of the Columbia University Players' gay musical comedy, "Fly With Me," in the Astor last evening. An island ruled by the Soviets fifty years from now was the scene, where the ladies danced in manly fashion, and the men tried hard to be graceful, and every one was happy.

The songs were written by Richard C. Rodgers, '23, who led the orchestra; the lyrics, by Lorenz M. Hart, '18, kept the audience laughing, and the costumes and scenery had all the charm of a typical Broadway production. William T. Taylor, '21, as the hero, and T. J. Farrell, '20, in the rôle of a charming Chinese maiden named Tien Tong, had the honors of the evening, but Harvey McGugin, a Bolshevik "tough," Professor Theophilus Lamb of the Futurist College, his lady-professor of love, the Bolshevist artist, and many others brought applause.

The best songs were "Dreaming True," "Beek-in Pekin," "Moonlight and You" and the rollicking finale, "A College on Broadway." The performance will continue each evening in the Astor for the rest of the week.

MRS. HUMPHRY WARD NOVELIST, DIES AT 68

NOTED SOCIAL REFORMER

Held a Distinct Place in World of Letters and Was a Strong Opponent of Woman Suffrage.

LONDON, March 24.—Mrs. Humphry Ward, the novelist, died today in a London hospital. She had been living for many months in virtual retirement in her residence in Aylesbury. She had been suffering from heart disease and this recently became acute, necessitating her removal to London.

The literary work of Mrs. Ward first came into great prominence through Gladstone's high praise of her novel, "Robert Elsmere." She was also a keen educational and social reformer, but of late years was chiefly known for her strong opposition to granting women the suffrage, an attitude which kept her continually in hot newspaper controversy.

To an older generation of novel readers the death of Mrs. Humphry Ward will come as a distinct shock, marking for them the passing of a revered literary landmark. To a perhaps more lazy-minded present generation her passing, and with it the ending of a long series of earnest novels with a purpose, may mean less of deprivation. For, popular as she was to the end of her literary career, she did not find her audience among those who preferred "easy" books, nor even among those who liked their "heavy" and their "light" reading distinctly separate.

There can be little question that her exact position as a novelist will be debated for some time to come. With a distinct ability at delineation of character, with a grasp of and an interpretative passion for English ruling class life, she has been credited even by those who have not found her work wholly admirable. But for many her instinct for discursiveness, her unconquerable (if indeed she ever sought to conquer it) habit of interpolating problem discussions, of religion, of social questions or of whatever world enigma happened to engross her at any particular period, proved insuperable stumbling blocks. There can be little question that, had she chosen but to interest, she could have shared in the transcendental popularity of authors who have been content to prostitute real literary genius to the demands of the instant success. But she was not that, what she was, a woman of literary and cultural traditions, of education and refinement, an occupant of a distinct niche in the world of letters. So it was that she went on to the end entertaining many, setting much of the thinking world by the ears now and then, and quietly and contentedly boring not a few.

Mrs. Ward was born June 11, 1851, in Tasmania, the daughter of Thomas Arnold, a son of Dr. Arnold of Rugby, made famous by "Tom Brown's School Days," and a brother of Matthew Arnold. She was a niece of Mrs. Frederick W. Whitridge and that was her only American connection. She came to this country but once—in the Spring of 1908, when she delivered a few lectures and conducted herself with that personal aloofness to which she adhered so strictly throughout her life, so that she was rarely interviewed, and even her environs received but little publicity.

She began her literary work with a children's story and did little more than dabble until in 1888 she wrote "Robert Elsmere." Mr. Gladstone reviewed that book in the "Nineteenth Century" and it sold by hundreds of thousands. As a direct result she founded a University Settlement in Russell Square, London, to inculcate Christian socialism. She worked hard among the poor of the East End. Aside from her literary work such public career as she permitted herself was devoted for a long time to opposing suffrage for women. She appeared once in the King's birthday list of honors, only recently she was appointed a magistrate, along with other noted English women, but for the most part she worked quietly away at her home in a little village near Tring.

Mrs. Ward left Tasmania as a little child and went to Dublin with her father when he was appointed to a professorship in English literature. Ten years later the family went to Oxford and there she occupied herself with a variety of literary endeavors, chiefly in aid of her father's ventures. Mr. Arnold in this period went through a series of vacillating changes from Anglicanism to Catholicism to agnosticism, and back again, and this mental-moral struggle influenced the daughter when she began to depict later the problems of human hearts and heads.

The author published "Miss Bretherton" in 1884 and after Robert Elsmere many works, including "David Grieve," "Marcella," "Sir George Tressady," "Helbeck of Annisdale," "Eleanor," and "The Marriage of William Ashe." The last named, so far as memory serves or a search of newspaper records discloses, was the only one of her books to be dramatized.

When she was 21, the author met, and soon married, in 1872, at Oxford, T. Humphry Ward. The couple settled in London, where Mr. Ward, himself an author of some talent, was editing an edition of English poets.

COL. SAMUEL PARKER, "KING OF HAWAII," DIES

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 24.—News of the death in Honolulu of Colonel Samuel Parker, former Prime Minister of Queen Liliuokalani, was received by cable here today.

Colonel Parker, bon vivant and courtier of the old Hawaiian monarchy, was widely known throughout the United States, having spent much time in Washington, and having attended several Republican national conventions as delegate from Hawaii.

Four years ago in Washington he was stricken with heart failure, from which he had suffered since.

Colonel Parker's grandfather was one of the Boston Parkers, for whom the Parker House in that city was named. He went to Hawaii many years ago and engaged in ranching and sugar planting. He was twice married, first to a Princess of the royal family of Hawaii. He was often referred to as the "King of Hawaii."

The principal heir of the Parker estate is Richard Smart, a six-year-old great-grandchild, now being educated in San Francisco, for whom the $6,000,000 Parker ranch of the Hawaiian Islands is being held in trust.

The residue of the estate, valued at millions, will go to five children of Colonel Parker now living in Honolulu.

MAGEE SIGNED NO CONTRACT, HE SAYS

Player Insists Many of Cubs' Games Last Year Were Invalid Because of This Fact.

VIOLATION OF RULE ALLEGED

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 24.—Lee Magee, who was cast adrift by the Chicago Cubs when they refused him a 1920 contract, today declared that if given a public hearing by the National League officials he will prove that he played with the Chicago team last year without having signed a contract, which is in violation of the constitution of the League, which, he says, provides that a player must sign a contract after being with the club ten days to make him eligible to compete in the League race. This, Magee says, he did not do, although he played with the Cubs just the same.

Magee was transferred from Cincinnati to Brooklyn and later to Chicago. He says his hitting won more than 15 games for the Cubs, and that if these are thrown out the entire standing of the League for the 1919 season would be altered.

There is no other case of a similar kind on record, so far as could be learned today.

Friends of Magee who are aiding him in an endeavor to get a hearing started the story of Magee having played with the Cubs without having signed a contract. When Magee was asked about it today he said: "That is hitting the nail on the head exactly. It is one of the things that we propose to prove if I am granted a hearing."

Magee and his attorney, Robert A. Alcorn, tonight declared that they have not heard from President Heydler except through an Associated Press dispatch. They declared that unless Heydler grants them a hearing by Saturday they will make public the charges that Magee has made against a National League magnate in a letter to Heydler.

In Magee's statement tonight, declared that at no time has he made any threats as to what he would do when he brings suit for a just hearing, and that if he has been quoted that way it was against his wishes and without his knowledge.

No player will be permitted to participate in any championship game until he has first signed a contract.

The penalty for violation of this section shall be the throwing out of the records of any game won by any club while playing a player who has not signed a contract. Any game or games lost, however, must stand in the records, and further action by the National Board on an appeal by such player for release from reservation.

HEYDLER ASKS MAGEE TO GIVE WHOLE STORY

President John A. Heydler of the National League yesterday urged Lee Magee to come forward with the names of the ballplayers who, he has intimated, have been implicated in baseball gambling and his proofs of the guilt of these men. Mr. Heydler sent this message to Magee through the player's attorney, John S. Alcorn of Cincinnati.

Magee, who last season was with the Chicago Cubs, was released and waivers were asked on the player. No major league club was disposed to put up the waiver price, $2,400, necessary to hold him, so he automatically passed out of the majors by the routine method.

The player, through his attorney, has made the claim that he has been barred from baseball and he has threatened to come forward with alleged exposures about baseball gambling. Magee threatened to make this exposure in a statement to be given out on Saturday.

President Heydler received letters from Magee's attorney in which the lawyer repeated Magee's claims that he was being unfairly barred from baseball because of certain "charges" which have been made against him.

Says No Charges Have Been Made.

In replying to Attorney Alcorn's letter yesterday, President Heydler informed the player's counsel that no charges of any kind had been made in the National League by or against Lee Magee.

President Heydler encourages Magee to supply any evidence he may have against gambling ballplayers. Rumors and charges of this kind have been flying thick and fast since the world's series last year and President Heydler thinks it is about time those making the charges should come forward and prove them or remain silent.

The alleged gambling tangle which Magee now threatens to expose was aired before President Heydler more than a year ago when Hal Chase was up on gambling charges. Chase was exonerated because of lack of proof. At that time Christy Mathewson, then manager of the Cincinnati Reds, made the charges, but was in France at the time and was not present to testify against Chase.

Old Scandal Never Cleared Up.

Magee was on the Reds at the same time, and the alleged betting scandal was supposed to have taken place in Boston. Just what the specific charges were in this Boston case has never been announced by responsible baseball officials.

In answering Magee's attorney, President Heydler said:

No charges are pending in this office against Lee Magee. If I understand the position taken by him in this interview, he insists that charges have been made against him by some one; that they have to do with gambling and that he will expose himself and drag others into the matter with him.

If there are any others implicated in the matter to which Mr. Magee seems anxious to plead guilty, the more quickly he names them and gives proof of their complicity with him or others the better it will be for baseball. It is not necessary to wait until Saturday or any other day, and I say to you now that no attention further than this reply will be paid to the matter unless Mr. Magee produces evidence implicating others with him or showing them to be guilty of wrongdoing in which he took no part.

Heydler Promises Prompt Action.

On the production of such evidence the action of this league will be prompt and effective.

President Heydler last night authorized the following statement on the National League action in the Magee case:

Certainly more than 90 per cent. of the ball players in this league are honest and are a credit to their profession. We do not intend that the 1 per cent. of undesirables, if such exists, shall attach a stigma to this honorable calling and so bring the game itself into disrepute.

Whenever a player falls short of the high standard of sportsmanship required of him in the leading ranks of his profession, then this league, and each of its clubs, reserves the right to say to such player, "We do not want you." This is not only our privilege but our self-imposed duty as the representatives of this national institution of baseball.

Clubs Reserve Wide Powers.

Nor do we consider our powers limited in such matters to be confined to dishonesty or insubordination; but we include all questions of gross carelessness, indifference or other conduct of the player that may be regarded by the club or league as prejudicial to its interests.

This is not a matter of law but a matter of principle, upon which public confidence in the game and its methods has been established. This principle the National League will strive to maintain at all costs and hazards.

In furthering these principles, there never has nor will there ever be anything to hide, and, I repeat, we shall welcome and shall encourage the production of any evidence or information from Mr. Magee or any other source that will aid in prosecuting this work of ridding the sport of any and all undesirables, if there now be such in our ranks.

COLTS UNKIND TO ELDERS.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 24.—Apparently it makes little difference who the regular Yankees are stacked up against. They played their second string team today and were defeated just as handily as in the Brooklyn series. The Yanigans resumed where they left off earlier in the month and smeared Huggins's regulars by a score of 5 to 3.

The New York second stringers have beaten the regulars four games out of five and Brooklyn has beaten them four straight. No one can deny that the Yanks are proving gluttons for Spring punishment. One must wonder now whether the Brooklyns really are so good when the second team can beat the Manhattan regulars with the same consistency.

Del Pratt played second base for the Yanigans and he was the life of the party. Pratt began to play his best ball in New York in the latter part of last season, which has noticed that Fewster had designs on his job. Pratt coached the second team all afternoon, and seldom has he been so full of pep.

Colonel Huston, half owner of the team, left for New York shortly afterward. He will be back in time to attend Jubilee Day next Monday, when the Yankee-Red, Brooklyn-Washington double-header is put on. The lineup:

DODGERS READY FOR YANKS.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 24.—The Dodgers were put through a long workout this afternoon under cloudy skies, but the weather did not hinder them, as they showed unusual pep and ginger while cavorting about the field. No scrub game between the Regulars and the Yanigans was played, but Manager Robbie saw to it that every one in the park was kept busy. The session lasted about two hours and when the players went to the showers they were primed for the tussle with the Yankees that is scheduled for tomorrow.

The Flatbush clubs four straight victories over their American League rivals were in no small way responsible for their ginger today. The winning spirit prevails in the Dodgers' camp and as long as the players are imbued with it they are going to be a tough aggregation to upset. Even the rookies, who played no part in the four victories over Miller Huggins's tribe, are displaying an unlimited supply of fighting spirit.

Manager Robbie gave his players a long batting drill and Joe Conlon, Rube Marquard, Paul Schreiber and Harry Heitman took turns on the mound pitching to the batters.

The Robins are anxious to make it five straight over the Yankees tomorrow, and Manager Robbie will use three of his aces on the slab.

NEW OFFICES FOR YANKEES.

The offices of the New York American League Baseball Club will be moved on May 1 from the present quarters, at 30 East Forty-second Street, to more spacious accommodations in the Cohan & Harris Theatre Building, at 225 West Forty-second Street.

The Yankees have taken a ten-year lease on an entire floor of the building at a yearly rental of $10,000. This will give them more than three times as much room as they have in their present home. At the new offices the owners, Colonel Ruppert and Colonel Huston, will provide a special room for reporters. The E. M. Ohmen Realty Company negotiated the lease for the Yankees' new home.

ZUNA IN ENGLISH MARATHON

For the first time in history an American runner will, it is believed, compete in the annual English 25-mile amateur marathon championship on June 21. The entry from this country will be Frank Zuna, considered the leading runner of America at the marathon distance.

At a meeting yesterday in Newark the Frank B. Whitney Post of the American Legion, under whose colors Zuna has been running, voted to appropriate the sum of $1,000 to pay the expenses of Zuna's trip to England, and it is thought probable that the racer will accept the offer of his clubmates.

According to the best advices, however, the American Olympic Committee views Zuna's participation in the English race with anything but favor. It is known that the Olympic officials have advised Zuna to save himself as much as possible and not take part in events that might weaken or injure him. They fear that a mishap in the London marathon would rob the United States of its leading runner and seriously cripple American chances in the Olympic marathon.

HOMER AIDS BOSTON TO CONQUER GIANTS

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, March 24.—The Giants lost to the Red Sox today by a score of 5 to 3, the game being called while the Red Sox were at bat in the ninth inning. This was partly because there were no more new balls available and partly to allow the clubs to catch a train for San Antonio.

Tim Hendrix had made a home run in the ninth, but the game reverted to even innings. Home runs incidentally played a prominent part in the conflict, Harry Hooper and George Kelly each inserting a timely four-base slam.

Arthur Nehf hurled for the Giants at the start of the game, giving way to Wilbur Hubbell in the sixth inning. Caddy Murphy and Flaherty, two recruit pitchers, worked for the Sox.

Giants First to Score.

The Giants were the first to score, tallying a run in the second inning, with one out. Kelly beat out a hit down the third base line and Smith rapped the ball to the fence in left field for three bases, scoring Kelly.

Hooper, with a bit of assistance, put the Sox in front in the third. Devine led off with a single, but was forced at second by Murphy. Hooper then hit the ball out of the lot in the fifth. Hooper punched a single to right and moved along to second on a passed ball. McNally tapped one down the third base line and beat it out and when Nehf, who fielded the ball, threw wildly past first base, Hooper raced home.

The Giants pulled up to within a run of their opponents in their half of the fifth. Burns led off and drew a pass. Young put him on third with a single to right and Fletcher drove a sacrifice fly to Hendrix on which Burns counted. The count was knotted in the sixth when Kelly hit the ball over the left field fence.

In the eighth, singles by Hendrix, Marsans and McInnis and an error by Hubbell gave the Sox another run. Scott opened the eighth with a double against the left field fence and Devine followed with a single to centre on which Scott scampered home.

PRINCETON, N. J., March 24.—The weather has broken at last and three successive days of sunshine have removed the last traces of ice from Lake Carnegie. The outlets to the lake are full to overflowing as they carry away the surplus water. Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth, coach of the Tiger crew, had been eagerly awaiting a favorable turn of the elements and he lost no time in taking advantage of the situation the minute it manifested itself.

MRS. GAVIN BEATEN IN N. & S. TOURNEY

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 24.—Mrs. Hurd, Mrs. Barlow and Miss Elaine Rosenthal all won their matches easily in today's first match round in the Women's North and South Championship Tournament. Mrs. Gavin and Miss Glenna Collett, also regarded as possible finalists, went down to defeat.

The elimination of Mrs. Gavin by Mrs. J. Raymond Price of Pittsburgh was the big surprise of the day. The South Shore golfer led up to the eleventh hole, but was finally beaten by 2 and 1. Mrs. Price, who just managed to squeeze into the championship sixteen yesterday with a round of 101, covered the course in 98 today.

Mrs. Hurd went out in 43 against Miss Eleanor T. Chandler of Philadelphia, and was 4 up at the turn, notwithstanding two fine threes to Miss Chandler's credit on the outward journey. The medalist took the match by 6 up at the thirteenth hole and played out the bye holes for an 88.

The famous Pittsburgh golfer will be opposed by Mrs. C. B. Hollingsworth of Greensburg, Pa., in tomorrow's round. Mrs. Hollingsworth, who took second honors in the qualifying round, played against Mrs. E. E. Harwood of Chicago today and won by 3 and 2. Both players had a reasonable prospect of finishing around 86 when the match came to an end, and it is generally expected that Mrs. Hurd will have a hard fight on her hands tomorrow.

Mrs. Barlow, the North and South champion, disposed of Mrs. Frank S. Danforth of North Fork by 8 up and 7 to play and will be opposed tomorrow by Miss Elaine Rosenthal of Chicago, who won today's match against Miss Kate Bomann of Plainfield by the same broad margin.

WILL NOT DEFEND TITLE.

Miss Hollins Not to be Here for Met. Golf Tourney.

Miss Marion Hollins of East Islip, Long Island, the metropolitan women's golf champion, will lose the opportunity to retain her title in June because of absence. Miss Hollins, who will compete in the British Ladies' championship tournament in May, expects to sail April 17 and she will not return in time to compete in the metropolitan women's event, which is scheduled for June 14-18 at the Greenwich Country Club.

Although the local champion would have ample time to return to defend her title, it is understood she expects to spend several weeks abroad on a pleasure trip and will not be back until later in the Summer. She will compete in the national women's event, however, which is not scheduled until October. The British Ladies' fixture, which will be played in Newcastle, County Down, in the North of Ireland, will begin on Monday, May 10, and will continue through the week.

MISS GEHRIG WINS TITLE WITH FOILS

Showing remarkable strength, agility and cleverness, Miss Adeline Gehrig of the New York Turn Verein last night achieved a feat unique in many respects. In winning the national women's championship in foils, this young girl reached a goal which she has been seeking for less than three years and marked with success her second entry into the national event.

On the stripe of the Turn Verein at 1,253 Lexington Avenue, Miss Gehrig demonstrated to several hundred spectators that the science of fencing, that ancient European art of self-defense, of parrying, of tricking, of baffling an opponent with light dueling swords, was not entirely confined to men. She advanced, gave ground, shot out the right arm, withdrew, and planted touches with seemingly perfect ease. Two years ago, at the last occasion of a women's foils tournament, Miss Gehrig was runner-up for the title to Miss Florence Walton of the Fencers' Club. At that time she had been practicing with foils for less than eight months. Miss Walton defaulted last night, and, left to her own opportunities, Miss Gehrig succeeded after two hours of hard, laborious work in carrying off the title and the gold prize offered by the Amateur Fencers' League of America.

Her victory was disputed hotly, and it was necessary to resort to the Olympic Games rules to decide the winner. Miss Gehrig, Miss Alice Glincke, a club member, and Mrs. C. H. Voorhees of the Fencers' Club completed their round robin bouts with opponents, each with a rating of four victories. John Allaire, Vice President of the Fencers' League, who was a spectator, pointed out the regulations in the Olympic system of scoring. Miss Gehrig was awarded the championship because she had been touched only eleven times in all her bouts, whereas Miss Glincke had been touched thirteen times and Mrs. Voorhes in sixteen places.

The summary:

Miss Adeline Gehrig, New York Turn Verein, won from Miss Alice Glincke, New York T. V., 5 to 0; from Miss Marie Jauernig, New York T. V., 5 to 0; from Miss Sophie Luehrmann, New York T. V., 5 to 3; from Miss Elsie Muecke, New York T. V., 5 to 3.

Miss Glincke won from Mrs. C. H. Voorhees, Ladies' Class, Fencing Club, 5 to 4; from Miss Jauernig, 5 to 2; from Miss Luehrmann, 5 to 2; from Miss Muecke, 5 to 0.

Mrs. Voorhees won from Miss Gehrig, 5 to 2; from Miss Jauernig, 5 to 4; from Miss Luehrmann, 5 to 1; from Miss Muecke, 5 to 3.

Miss Luehrmann won from Miss Jauernig, 5 to 1; from Miss Muecke, 5 to 4; from Miss Muecke won from Miss Jauernig, 5 to 2.

The annual meeting of the Yacht Racing Association of Long Island Sound will be held at the Hotel Astor on Wednesday evening, March 31, at 8:30 o'clock. Because of an error in the printed announcement sent out by the officials of the association, notice appeared in the newspapers that the meeting was to have been held last night.

Several yachtsmen representing many of the yachting centres on Long Island said yesterday that most of the yachting this year would be limited to the smaller craft and that few of the larger racing craft would be put into commission.

SENATE APPROVES THE WALKER BILL

GIBBS OFFERS OPPOSITION

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 24.—By a vote of 31 to 19 the Senate this afternoon passed the Walker boxing bill. This measure, which would legalize boxing contests conducted under the supervision of an Army-Navy-Civilian Control Board and limited to fifteen rounds, now goes to the Assembly, where it is expected that it will receive favorable action.

What opposition there was to the bill came from up-State Republicans New York City Republicans and some of the up-State men supported it. The Democrats to a man voted in the affirmative.

The following is the vote in detail:

AGAINST THE BILL—Republicans: Senators Baumes, Brown, Burling, Carson, Davenport, Ferris, Fowler, Hewitt, Knight, Law, Lowman, Mullan, Pitcher, Swift, G. F. Thompson, G. L. Thompson, Towner, Walton and Yelverton. Total—19. There was only one absentee, Senator Lusk of Cortland.

Gibbs Assails Measure.

Senator Gibbs of Erie, who was sponsor for a bill to legalize boxing at last year's session of the Legislature, sailed into the Walker bill the moment it was called up for final passage. He attacked it on the ground that it would commercialize the sport, and intimated that it might have been presented with a view to making possible a world championship Dempsey-Carpentier bout in Madison Square Garden.

Senator Walker rushed to the defense of his bill. He said there was little danger of that. All concerned in boxing, including the fighters themselves, would be compelled to take out licenses from a commission of three, to be appointed by the Governor, and any club sponsoring a boxing contest must have a year's lease on the premises where a fight is being conducted.

"You can depend upon our present Governor to appoint on this commission men who will not serve for salary, but because they are high-grade lovers of the sport," said Senator Walker.

Senator Gibbs also found fault with the provision which would permit the commission to sanction fifteen-round bouts. He wanted the number limited to ten. Senator Walker said that placing a limit at fifteen would insure better physical condition of principals going into the ring. He denounced the criticism as a subterfuge.

Walker Answers Enemies.

"I know," said Senator Walker, "that manipulators of boxing whom I would not admit to this room when the hearing was held are using subterranean methods in an attempt to kill this bill."

Senator Gibbs said he would not vote for the bill with the limit placed at fifteen rounds. "I do not think any man is fit to go that far," he said. In the end, however, he voted in the affirmative, after Walker had dared him to "go back to Buffalo and tell your people you have beaten the bill."

Senator Davenport of Oneida attacked the bill because instead of developing amateur sport it was drafted, he said, fundamentally for professional and commercial boxing. "In the colleges," said the Senator, who is a college professor, "we have since the war tried to foster what we term intramural athletics, because they make for universal development of athletic prowess among the students. If you stage a fistic spectacle at Madison Square Garden, trusting that it will lead to imitation, you are all wrong. What we ought to do is develop amateur boxing in every county under the auspices of the State."

"But amateur sports," broke in Senator Walker, "won't bring the State $250,000 a year as this bill will."

Will Amend Bill.

The Walker bill will be amended in the Assembly to prevent draft slackers from boxing under the auspices of the prospective New York State Commission. This amendment was suggested by ex-service men in the lower house, who feared that with the sport under political control Jack Dempsey might be entered in some big contest in this State, possibly against Carpentier, the European heavyweight, unless provision was made against it.

Senator Walker said tonight that he was quite willing his bill should be amended, but would insist that conviction for dodging the draft alone, not accusation or indictment, should be necessary for disqualification. Jack Dempsey has been arrested but not tried.

Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, Democrat, New York, who offered a resolution at the conference of former service men placing the conference on record as approving the Walker bill if it contained the desired amendment, later withdrew it when decision was reached to appoint Mr. Carroll to see Senator Walker. "It was the unanimous decision of the conference," said Mr. Cuvillier, "that Dempsey should not be allowed to box in New York State until the charges of evading the draft law, for which he has been indicted in California, had been disposed of and his innocence proved."

BLUMENTHAL WINS MATCH.

NATIONAL THREE-CUSHION BILLIARD STANDING.

W. Blumenthal	5	1	7	.833
J. Cosgrove	4	1	5	.800

F. G. Owles	2	4	7	.333
C. Maxwell	1	4	4	.200
G. E. Van Arsdale	0	6	5	.000

William Blumenthal last night claimed exclusive possession of second place in the three-cushion tournament being played at Joe Thum's Academy for the national championship of the American Amateur Billiard Association. He defeated Fred G. Owles by a score of 50 to 37 and broke the tie that existed between him and Joseph Cosgrove for the position.

It was a typical Blumenthal victory. In other words, the veteran won largely by outgeneraling his opponent. Owles played good carrom billiards, but the veiled safety distributed by Blumenthal through the 31½ innings the game consumed effectually stopped Owles from making too much headway. Although each player called but two deliberate safeties during the match, they frequently resorted to defensive tactics. Both men often elected to play off the white ball when they might just as well have shot off the red ball, but by shooting off the white ball they invariably left their opponent in bad position to score.

Deciding Game in Hockey Series Set for Tonight

PITTSBURGH, March 24.—The American hockey team, the United States representative to the Olympic Games, will play the Winnipeg, Canada, team here tomorrow night in the final of a three-game series, William A. Haddock, a member of the National Hockey Committee, announced today. According to Mr. Haddock, the original plans called for two games, but as each club had won a game it was decided to play another.

TO SEE CARPENTIER IN ACTION TONIGHT

Life these days is just one engagement after another for Georges Carpentier. He has been doing more road work since he arrived in this city yesterday morning than he usually does when training for his bouts, but he seems to like it. Wearing a "so this is New York" kind of expression, the heavyweight boxing champion of Europe has been flitting hither and yon and back to hither again, chaperoned by a flock of boxing impresarios and others who are more or less inimately acquainted with boxing. His bride and his manager, Francois Descamps, are ever with him, and they seem to enjoy the raucous receptions accorded the popular war hero and prospective opponent of Jack Dempsey for world's heavyweight laurels at least as much as he does.

Just as soon as Georges could persuade himself to climb out of bed yesterday morning he found a formidable list of engagements awaiting his fulfillment. Ordinarily Georges might have donned his sweater and declared, "I can make better time by running," but he didn't. He just permitted himself to be wafted about from place to place, doing his best, with the help of an automobile and an official timekeeper, to maintain his schedule.

While he was emulating perpetual motion at its very best, it became known that Carpentier may don boxing gloves for the first time in this country in this city tonight. The International Sporting Club has arranged to tender him a dinner of welcome at the Hotel Commodore this evening, and Georges has agreed, with a proviso, that he will box a short exhibition for the edification of those present. The proviso is that he is feeling better than he has since he landed in this country. It seems that Georges is a better boxer than he is a sailor, and the rolling of the ship on the way over caused him to take the count. He has not yet recovered, but he said yesterday that if he feels better he will encase his hands in padded mitts and do a little ring work for those at the dinner tonight.

Everywhere he went yesterday—and it included luncheon with Major Anthony Drexel Biddle at the Ritz-Carlton and a theatre party last evening—Carpentier was the centre of admiring groups of boxing fans.

EAGAN TO BOX CARPENTIER.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 24.—Georges Carpentier, champion heavyweight boxer of Europe, will meet Eddie Eagan, former middleweight champion of the A. E. F. and captain of the Yale boxing team, in a four-round exhibition bout at the International Sporting Club, New York, tomorrow night, according to a letter received at Yale from Major A. J. Drexel Biddle of Philadelphia.

TAYLOR IS SQUASH VICTOR.

Beats Richards in Five-Set Final at Harvard Club.

Murray Taylor, playing from scratch, won the Class B Winter handicap squash tennis tournament of the Harvard Club yesterday afternoon by nosing out J. A. Richards in a sensational final match whose five games were scored 15—5, 15—8, 2—15, 8—15, 15—12. The loser carried the heavy impost of playing from minus five in each game, but had succeeded in catching up and taking the lead in the rubber, when Taylor staged a final spurt and carried off the victory while battling on practically even terms.

SO. AFRICA INVITED TO PLAY IN ENGLAND

Davis Cup Committee Urges Preliminary Matches for July —Not to Enter Olympics.

According to the decision of the Davis Cup Committee, which will be recommended on Saturday to the Executive Committee of the National Lawn Tennis Association, an attempt will be made to schedule the Davis Cup matches of 1920 so that these can be played with a minimum requirement of traveling. South Africa has been requested by cable to send its Davis Cup team to England so that the match between the United States and that country can be played on July 8, 9 and 10, right after the Wimbledon tournament. If this proves feasible, an effort will be made to have the winner of the America-South Africa match play the winner of the England-Holland match on July 15, 16 and 17.

In case some such arrangement as this cannot be brought about, the committee will recommend that the United States send its team direct to Australia and play all the preliminary ties there. Some such course seems to be the only possible solution, in view of the amount of traveling that would otherwise be involved.

The Davis Cup Committee will also recommend that the United States send no tennis team to the Olympic games. As originally announced, the schedule of tennis events at Brussels overlapped the championships in the United States, and as the Belgian authorities were unable to shift the dates for tennis it will be impossible for this country to be represented adequately. The committee, therefore, decided that it would be impracticable for the United States to send a tennis team to the Olympic games and will report to that effect on Saturday.

Other business to be taken up by the Executive Committee will include the ratifying of the entire outdoor schedule for the coming Summer.

BOYD GAINS CUE FINALS.

Qualifies to Compete in Deciding Round for Billiard Cup.

Although he was defeated by George Spear at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn last night Frank W. Boyd qualified to compete in the final round of the annual 18.2 balkline billiard tournament for the J. F. Poggenberg Cup. Boyd was beaten, 115 to 93, but in scoring this number of points Boyd clinched his right to play in the final round. Although Edgar Appleby and Charles Steinbugler both can tie Boyd in the number of games won and lost they cannot tie him in number of points scored in their matches.

Spear has also qualified to compete in the final round. The players who are eligible to compete in the finals, which will begin tonight, follow: Francis S. Appleby, the only Class A player to attain the select circle; George Spear, Frank Boyd, Robert Steinbugler, J. M. Shea and John Low. Charles White, who won the cup last year, will also compete. Under the rules he was not compelled to take part in the preliminary games.

G. Spear (115)—4 2 0 5 13 0 1 13 5 0 10 47

F. W. Boyd (115)—0 1 2 7 5 0 0 2 10 1 8
3 9 11 13 2 0 4 3 5 0 4 0 2 0. Total, 93; average, 3 16-25; high run, 13.

Some time during his long and eminently successful career J. Howard Shoemaker, the playing through champion, may have played better pocket billiards than he showed at the New York Athletic Club last night in the tournament for the national championship of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, but even the oldest inhabitant cannot remember it. Shoemaker appeared to better advantage than he has for some time, and that is saying a great deal.

Shoemaker was pitted against William A. Tilt, and the champion not only won by a score of 125 to 86, but he made the high run of the tournament to date. On his first turn at the table Shoemaker knocked off thirty-six balls before he missed. Tilt made the opening shot and played the usual safe break. It was then that Shoemaker started by making a difficult cut shot that broke the pyramid of balls. He continued clicking them off and gained excellent position for a break shot. A third time he was called upon to make a break shot, at the start of his third frame, and he succeeded.

In the afternoon match L. B. Holbrook defeated C. E. Shongood, Jr., by a score of 125 to 101. Holbrook took the lead at the start and managed to hold it throughout, although Shongood crept too close for comfort on several occasions. The scores by frames:

COACH BARRED AT BORDER.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 24.—Nicholas Bawlf, Queens College graduate, engaged to coach the Cornell lacrosse terdam, is being held at the Canadian border by American immigration authorities as a "contract laborer." This became known tonight when Romeyn Berry, graduate manager of the Cornell Athletic Association, received a telegram from Bawlf stating he had been stopped at Ogdensburg, N. Y., and was in need of assistance. Mr. Berry immediately forwarded affidavits to border inspectors pleading that Bawlf be allowed to enter this country.

For several days the campus has been ringing with the question: "Where is Bawlf?" The lacrosse squad, eager to enter upon its training, has been particularly anxious.

LEO GIEBEL BEATS BROTHER FOR TITLE

Leo Giebel of Rutgers College and the New York A. C., whose collection of swimming titles is gradually becoming unwieldly, managed to affix another championship to the string last night by winning the senior metropolitan 150-yard back-stroke title in the City A. C. tank. In addition to the new honor Giebel is the national indoor champion at 500 yards and only recently captured the metropolitan 220-yard swim, besides several other minor distinctions.

Second to Leo Giebel in last night's championship tussle was his brother, Henry, who also has added fame to the family's swimming reputation.

In the other championship contest of the evening Fred Kahele, a Hawaiian from the Central Y. M. C. A., won the junior metropolitan title for the 220-yard swim, defeating a crowded field of young natators.

Two clean knockouts marked the opening last night at the New York A. C. of the amateur metropolitan boxing championships in the 108, 125, 145 and 175-pound classes. In the 125-pound trials John Hausner of the Clark House A. A. put Philip Claus of the St. Christopher A. C. away in the third round with a clip on the jaw. The other knockout came in one of the semi-final bouts in the 145-pound class when John Florio of the Paulist A. C. sent John Heimola of the Finnish A. C. into dreamland in the second round.

The championship matches were witnessed by as many enthusiasts as could jam themselves into the large boxing room of the New York A. C. By the time the first battle was ready to get under way all the seats were occupied and a fringe of spectators stood in the aisles and around the outside of the throng. It was the largest gathering that has witnessed the metropolitan title bouts in many years.

Both Florio and Sam Mossberg of the Pastime A. C., advanced into the finals of the 145-pound competition by working their way through the preliminary and semi-final bouts. Florio, in addition to knocking out Heimola, defeated Otto Favenza of the Pastime A. C., on a decision by the judges. Mossberg first vanquished N. Adrian of the Norwegian A. C., and in the semi-finals sent Dave Rosenberg of the Clark House A. A. to his corner. Florio and Mossberg will meet in the final championship bout on Saturday.

The Mossberg-Rosenberg battle in the semi-finals was the stellar exhibition of the evening and furnished plenty of excitement for the large crowd. The two welterweights showed no reluctance to exchange punches and kept the action up to a rapid pace by their aggressiveness. In the first round Mossberg carried the fight to his opponent, and Rosenberg retaliated by landing several ringing blows on the other man's body and face. The exchange of blows continued throughout the bout, with Mossberg getting in a fusillade of slams that put the Clark House boxer on the defensive. Both men were quick on their feet, but Mossberg won the judges' decision by his superior defense and by outslugging Rosenberg in the last two rounds.

In the 108-pound preliminaries T. Moran of the St. Christopher A. C. and W. Hausner of the Clark House A. went an extra round before the judges gave the bout to Moran. The boxing in the 125-pound class was hot and heavy. The tussle between Hausner and Claus, after two rounds of continuous slugging, ended in a knockout in the third round, Claus taking the count. The other bout in that class was stopped by the referee in the second round to save James Gillard, unattached, from further punishment. The winner in this slugfest was Harry Ornstein of the Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A.

125-Pound Class, Trials—J. Hausner, Clark House A. A., knocked out Philip Claus, St. Christopher's, in third round; Harry Ornstein, Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A., defeated James Gillard, unattached, in second round, referee's decision.

145-Pound Class, Trials—John Heimola, Finnish A. C., defeated Joseph Ferris, Paulist A. C., three rounds, judges' decision; John Florio, Paulist A. C., defeated Otto Favenza, Pastime A. C., three rounds, judges' decision; Dave Rosenberg, Clark House A. A., defeated Christ Cabel, Twenty-third Street Y. M. C. A., three rounds, judges' decision; Sam Mossberg, Pastime A. C., defeated N. Adrian, Norwegian A. C., three rounds, judges' decision.

"Never Practise Flunkeyism To Foreign Label"—Slogan Introduced In Retail Trade.

"We go abroad for what they do better abroad, but we never practise flunkeyism to a foreign label," is the burning sentiment expressed in John David advertisements yesterday.

Anent the criticism directed against the excessive emphasis some New York retailers are laying upon English styles this season, the attitude of John David is encouraging to those who believe the American merchant should stand up boldly for American merchandise.

In explaining his position Mr. David said yesterday: "As purveyors to the public, we feel that it is our duty to buy goods abroad or at home, as we can purchase them to the best advantage and as they represent the fullest value for our customers.

"To my mind, fashions are no longer national, but international. This is particularly true of New York and of New York shops, which serve a cosmopolitan clientele of both permanents and transients, and which are expected to offer the best that the markets of the world afford, including England, France and Italy.

"Nevertheless, in all cases where we can push American-made goods of equal quality with imported at an equal price, we strongly favor home products and deprecate any form of merchandising snobbery. "Ennyweather" Peer of Any Garment.

"For example, we regard our 'Ennyweather' rain-or-shine topcoat, made in America, as the peer of any shower-proofed overgarment in the world, and we prefer to put our efforts behind the home article for the promotion of American industry and to the honor of American skill.

"In view of the entrance of foreign manufacturers into the American trade field, we consider it all the more incumbent upon the enlightened retailer to back up domestic mills and markets to the limit, except, of course, where greater value for the price may be obtained from abroad.

"Everybody knows that the English excel in many fine woolens, shirtings, cravattings and so on, due to the centuries of development and heritage behind particular products. However, everybody knows, too, that in that smart style and thorough tailoring, which makes the American the best-dressed man in the world, the United States shows a clean pair of heels to them all.

"Value being equal, American trade belongs to American genius and American capital. It should not go to the foreigner, unless he can prove that his quality is higher at any given price. At this establishment, we intend to keep on selling meritorious merchandise, not a lickspittle label.

"We shall not cry up English fashions and fabrics above their just deserts, nor try to make any man believe that a mere trip across the ocean makes an article the salt of the earth.

"A poorly tailored garment is poorly tailored, whether it comes from the British Isles or from the South Sea Islands."

INSURANCE AGAINST ROBBERY OF SILKS

New Plan Is to Obtain Lower Rates and Further Protection from Thieves.

WILL CONTROL DELIVERIES

Co-operation of Express Companies and Railroads to be Asked In Reducing Pilfering.

Announcement of the formation of the Textile Transit Insurance Company, for the purpose of providing transit insurance for members of the Silk Association of America who subscribe to stock, was made yesterday at the annual meeting of that organization held in its offices, 354 Fourth Avenue. The inauguration of this service marks, in the opinion of members, a very significant step forward not only in procuring lower insurance rates for the silk shippers but in cutting down the enormous losses caused through silk robberies. Plans call for the company to take over the Missing Property Bureau of the association, which has been engaged in preventing and ferreting out silk thefts along with tracing goods lost in transit. The operation of trucks with proper guards between this city and outlying districts is also contemplated. With these various agencies controlled by the central organization and so devised as to minimize losses, the members of the association feel that the problem of silk thefts, as well as high insurance rates, will be fairly well solved.

The prospectus of the company, which results after two years of study by the Committee on Transit, calls for a capital and surplus of $525,000. The stock has a par value of 100 and is being subscribed for at 150, which will provide a surplus of $175,000. The insurance rate will be determined by actual losses, plus such an amount as may be necessary to meet a minimum cost of overhead and provide a reasonable return to stockholders. Samuel W. Barkelew, who has been in charge of the details of forming the company, stated yesterday that the total shipments insured should amount to approximately $500,000,000 a year. This sum, however, does not represent goods to that value, as four or five shipments are necessary between different points before the silk is finally placed in the hands of the buyer. He explained that two years ago rates were very low, owing to the keen competition among insurance companies for the business. Losses taken on such insurance proved large, and gradually the field was left to a very few companies, which raised their rates beyond the point that shippers considered were reasonablye. These rates now vary between 7½ and 15 cents per $100. The association company will take business, he thought, at 8 cents, though the figure had not been definitely settled. So far, $400,000 has been subscribed to the stock, and policies will date from June 1. A feature included in the policy that does not appear on some line company contracts is insurance against pilferage. Mr. Barkelew stated that the company will enlist the co-operation of express companies and railroads so that losses sustained while goods are in the care of the carriers may be minimized.

A description of the new company, together with other articles relating to the activities of the association, is included in the report of Ramsay Peugnet, Secretary of the organization. In reporting the work of the Missing Property Bureau, Mr. Peugnet notes that a new form of silk theft was encountered for the first time during the last year, namely, operations against transcontinental silk trains. In one instance eighteen bales of raw silk were stolen, eleven of which were recovered directly through the efforts of the bureau.

In a report on raw silk Charles V. V. Smillie of Charles F. Smillie & Co. fixes the cause of record prices as the great expansion in the demand for silk goods. Producing costs may have doubled, he stated, but this can account for but a small portion of the $17 price scored by the end of the year. One of the features of the market as a whole, he points out, was the gradual accumulation of stocks of raw silk in New York. Publication of such stocks, undertaken by the association, put the supply on Feb. 1 at 93,046 bales.

In concluding his report on yarn-dyed broad silks, Albert Tilt of the Phenix Silk Manufacturing Company made this comment:

"Silk has become the everyday apparel of the American woman, because, up to now, it has proved economical; but it will soon be set back among the luxuries unless we make a determined stand for lower costs. The manufacturer sees the handwriting on the wall. Now let the sources of raw material and the never-satisfied leaders of labor see, also, and consider carefully whether they will continue to jeopardize the life of the goose that lays the golden egg."

With the exception of conditions just following the armistice all branches of the silk industry, according to the reports made enjoyed a year of unprecedented prosperity.

In the absence of Charles Cheney, President of the association, who is with the American Silk Mission in Japan, James H. Goldsmith, Vice President, acted as Chairman at the meeting yesterday.

VOTE $4,000,000 MORE FOR CHICAGO EMPLOYES

But City Council's Action Fails to Avert the Threat of a Strike.

CHICAGO, March 24.—Salary increases of 10 per cent. for city employes and retention of hundreds of civil service employes marked for discharge were assured today when the City Council directed the Finance Committee to submit a substitute budget increasing appropriations by $4,000,000.

After the action of the Council members of the Titeamsters' and Chauffeurs' Union, who struck for a wage advance of $2 a day, voted to return to work tomorrow.

The Clerks and Stenographers' Union tonight refused to accept the 10 per cent. increase and voted to strike Monday for a wage advance of $25 a month.

The additional appropriation would increase the 1920 budget to $36,250,000. Of the $4,000,000 all but $800,000 would go toward providing salary increases and to reinstate Civil Service employes.

GETS 15,000 BRITISH SUITS.

CHICAGO, March 24.—Fifteen thousand suits of men's clothing, originally intended for sale by the British Government for its demobilized soldiers, were bought today, when representatives of the twenty-two work councils of the International Harvester Company met with Harvester officials.

The International Harvester Company will act as business agent and banker for the twenty-two councils, which have more than 30,000 constituents. The suits will be delivered in about six weeks and will cost the individual purchaser about $18 each. It was estimated that suits of like quality would cost about $30 in the domestic market.

The clothing was manufactured in England.

Ask Flat Silk Rates.

Among the silk workers there appears to be a desire to substitute flat wages rates for yardage schedules where the latter are now in use. If this change is made there will be a further decrease in production, so the manufacturers feel. In the ribbon branch the shortened hours and the tendency to shirk keep the output down to almost 50 per cent. of normal. The addition of workers employed by concerns that quit the business, however, is believed to be likely to improve production standards for the larger manufacturers.

Gray Goods Sales Fair.

While the break in cotton had no apparent effect on prices in the local market for gray goods yesterday, it did have the effect of making buyers more careful about operating in a large way. It also seemed to have lessened the desire to buy contract goods. Among the sales transacted in printcloths during the day were March-April deliveries of 38½-inch 64-60s at 24½ cents and similar shipments of 39-inch 68-72s at 26 cents. Buyers of sheetings paid 21½ cents for March-May 4.70-yard goods. Fine yarn cloths continued firm, but relatively inactive. In the business done on the clothing styles were additional sales of 39-inch 64-104, 4.20-yard sateens at 41 cents.

Drug Price Tone Firmer.

Beneath the conservative trading in drugs and fine chemicals this week was an undercurrent of strength and a tendency toward higher prices. Drug and Chemical Markets will say today. Manufacturers have advanced carboys. Denatured and wood alcohols are sharply higher, as are citric and tartaric acids, caffeine, &c. Manufacturers of caustic soda are out of the market, and the small lots held by second hands are held at $7 a hundredweight and also sold at $4 a hundred. Oil of orange prices have advanced rapidly within the week, following higher and speculative quotations at Messina, Italy. In dyestuffs there is increased firmness, and brokers find it very difficult to locate even small lots of intermediates and of certain colors which are in great demand.

To End Campaign with a Rush.

With the campaign of the Associated Retail Credit Men of New York City, Inc., to increase its membership to 500 drawing to a close, a final spurt is being made with the intention of obtaining at least 100 new members before April 1. The drive has already raised the membership of the association from 200 to 360, and with the special effort now being made it is expected that the 500-mark will be reached before the campaign comes to a close. The newest drive for members is being concentrated on the 270 prospects who have remained "cold" to solicitation by mail. To carry on the work the full membership of the association has been divided into thirteen teams, each of which is captained by a member of the Membership Committee. To the team and the Captain obtaining the largest number of applications by March 31 a suitable prize is to be awarded. For the time being the nature of the prize is a secret.

Untrimmed Hats Do Well.

Sales of women's untrimmed hats in this market are steadily increasing, and this is reflected all the way from the retail counter to the manufacturers. With the increase has come a marked gain in sales of trimmings at retail, especially flowers, which is also striking back to the primary sources. In the trimming plenty of color is desired, and the more vivid and brilliant the various combinations are the better they sell. In the blossoms that are getting particular attention at the moment buttercups rank high, as they are said to make a charming facing when clustered closely on off-the-face shapes. Their increased popularity is charged to the growing demand here for light brown and rust shapes.

Clothing Prices Advance.

While a whole lot of headway has not been made in pricing clothing lines for next Fall, some houses have given out definite information concerning their values. One concern, for instance, will start its line at from $3 to $5 higher than was asked for this Spring. The representative of another large house stated that the new prices will be from $5 to $8 a suit higher. Quite a number of clothiers are putting off the actual settlement of prices until the last moment in the hope that some assurance may be received of wages remaining at their present levels.

English Clothing Different.

In describing the typical English suit, the representative of an English firm stated that the present styles in England do not conform to those in vogue here. Suit coats, he explained, besides being made much shorter, are tight across the hips. It is the intention, however, of English firms interested in an export business to this country, he said, to produce styles more in keeping with American requirements. For this purpose, models of English suits will be sent here for the alterations necessary to meet the demand in this country.

Blankets for Steamer Coats.

As a result of the large exodus of tourists just starting, an importing house has been doing a nice business on steamer blankets sold to manufacturers who will convert them into coats. The price charged is from $12 to $17.75. By purchase of these goods the manufacturer is enabled to get patterns that cannot be obtained in materials sold by the yard and at the same time the necessary fringe is provided. Besides double plaid patterns, another style of blanket is offered that has a plain colored surface and a plaid back.

Ribbons Active Again.

Though there was a temporary lull in the ribbon trade, generally ascribed to the weather, the last week has furnished a very active demand. Conditions are considered very sound in the trade owing to the small stocks being carried by the houses accustomed to carry them. In one instance it was stated that barely 3,000 pieces are on hand, although a normal supply would be five or six times as large. Ribbons are being bought for use as girdles and sashes with the cotton dresses to which the cutting-up trade is now giving its attention. Plaids are in first place in the sales, and in many cases are being worn in place of Roman stripes, which are not available in the quantity required.

More Spring Plans Announced.

While they lacked the definiteness of some of those previously made public, further plans for the coming Spring carpet and rug season were announced here yesterday. From the Bigelow-Hartford Carpet Company came the information that, while the company was not yet ready to say when its prices would be announced, the allotments for the new season would probably be made next week. These allotments, it was said, would cover goods for delivery through the entire Fall season. By an executive of the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company it was said that their new prices would be given to the trade about April 1, but that the length of the delivery period which these prices would cover had not been determined on. Orders on the books of the Smith Company which are not completed by April 1 will be automatically canceled. It is understood that a considerable volume of goods is called for by orders which cannot be filled by that time.

PORT STRIKE TIES UP FOOD IN THE SOUTH

While telegrams poured into New York yesterday from Southern food producers, telling that thousands of dollars' worth of fruit and vegetables were rotting for lack of water transportation to Eastern markets, the longshoremen's strike drew no nearer a settlement. There has been steadily increasing pressure upon commission men and steamship agencies to restore traffic with the South, the northward haul at this season being normally particularly heavy, but beyond a willingness on the part of the owners to confer with the men at any time, a willingness reiterated yesterday by E. A. Kelly, assistant general manager of the Clyde and Mallory Lines, no step toward peace was recorded.

The prospect of an immediate adjustment rather faded with the declaration by Professor William Z. Ripley, Chairman of the National Adjustment Commission, that relief from a tie-up extending along the Atlantic Coast from Maine to Mexico for ten days can come only when the Interstate Commerce Commission grants higher freight rates. Professor Ripley said the commission was not concerned in the situation beyond the stage of informal conferences. Discussing the economic situation of the strikers, he said:

"They have had no advance since October, 1918, despite the steady rise in the cost of living, a rise met elsewhere throughout the country by increases of approximately 25 per cent. They have waited, while the deepsea men have twice been granted substantial relief, and they cannot understand why they get only 25 cents an hour when the others receive 50 after substantial parity between the two for many years. Most employers realize this embarrassment, but they point to the striking contrast between the two branches of the shipping business. The deep sea traffic has been phenomenally prosperous, the coastwise lines are almost completely prostrated.

Professor Ripley said the lumber supply from the North had been cut off, Southern truck farmers were threatened with the loss of a season's crops and the high cost of living was likely to be accentuated for the harassed consumer, while the current of manufactures into the South and to the Pacific Coast was interrupted at its source because the railroads lack facilities to handle the business alone.

One Clyde liner sailed yesterday for Jacksonville and another sails today, while the City of Savannah, of the Ocean Steamship Company, is expected to sail from Savannah for New York today.

LAUDS WOMEN'S AID IN CHEAP MEAT DRIVE

WHOLESALE PRICE DROPS

Federal Food Administrator Arthur Williams yesterday expressed to a New York Times reporter his gratification at the general co-operation of New York housekeepers in the campaign being conducted this week to encourage the purchase of the cheaper cuts of meats. Reports received at Mr. Williams's office indicate that the housewives are co-operating in the plan, and that the butchers also are doing their share to aid the effort inaugurated by Attorney General Palmer to show how the cost of living may be lowered.

Mr. Williams quoted some prices prevailing in the different markets this week as illustrating the benefits of this effort. Beef for stewing is selling at 16 to 18 cents a pound, chuck steak at 22 to 25 cents, soup meat at 16 to 20 cents, corn beef at 12 cents to 20 cents, veal for stewing at 20 to 22 cents, liver at 18 cents, and sausages at 30 cents a pound.

Mr. Williams said that a reduction of 1 cent a pound in wholesale meat prices was reported yesterday. He said that this reduction would automatically go through the retailer under the margin agreement to the consumer.

Attorney General Palmer has been informed, Mr. Williams said, of the co-operation of the dealers and the public here, and Colonel Francis G. Caffey, United States District Attorney has also expressed his appreciation at the manner in which this movement has been supported by the people of New York City.

The Food Administrator urged that every one making purchases for the home during the remainder of the week co-operate in this effort by buying the cheaper cuts of meat. He said:

"Each individual transaction becomes multiplied a million times when applied to all homes of the city and the benefits in the aggregate are enormous."

NEW ARREST IN COAL CASE.

Forty-two of Fifty-five Indicted Have Now Been Taken.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 24.—Warren F. Smith, sales agent for the Power Coal Company at Terre Haute, Ind., was arrested here today by a Deputy United States Marshal on a capias charging conspiracy.

Smith is one of the 125 coal operators and miners indicted for alleged conspiracy to enhance the price of necessaries and commit an offense against the United States Government. A bond of $10,000 was provided.

Forty-two of the fifty-five Indiana men indicted either have been arrested or have surrendered themselves. With the exception of three defendants at Brazil, Ind., those yet to be served with capiases are out of the State. No difficulty in having all the Indiana defendants in Indianapolis for arraignment on May 4 is anticipated by Federal officials.

NOTORIOUS ROBBER DEAD.

Gangrene Fatal to 'Soapbox' Hardy in Atlanta Federal Prison.

OSSINING, March 24.—A message to Sing Sing officials from the United States Penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., today, said that "Soapbox" Hardy, notorious bank robber and jailbreaker, is dead. The message said Hardy, whose right name was Charles O'Connell, was sent to the Federal prison on Jan. 21, 1919, for twelve years for passing a forged money order. Death, some time ago, was due to a gangrenous infection of the leg.

One day in 1888 O'Connell walked into the Sixth National Bank, in New York City, in daylight, snatched several thousand dollars and escaped. The same afternoon he thrust his arm through the wicket of the cashier's window in the Commercial National Bank and made another big haul. The police captured him next day, but he broke away from them. He was recaptured and sentenced to thirty years. He escaped from the Tombs, but was recaptured and taken to Sing Sing. He was transferred later to Dannemora, but was there only four days when he escaped. He was shot in the leg in a revolver battle with the Plattsburgh police and recaptured. Once more he escaped Dannemora and was gone fifteen years when State Detective James Jackson of Sing Sing located him in Germany and brought him back. Former Warden Thomas Mott Osborne returned him to Sing Sing in 1919 to try to reform him. Soon after Warden W. H. Moyer took charge Hardy was trapped in blackmailing a wealthy woman in Manhattan in letters he smuggled out of prison. Moyer sent him to Dannemora. He was released two years ago, but ran afoul of the postal authorities in Baltimore, Md., and was sent to Atlanta.

Why It Pays the Business Man to Support the Y. W. C. A.

The amount of the fund that the Young Women's Christian Association must raise to carry on its work was set at $1,500,000 by the women directors of the Association after consultation with a group of ten leading business men—all large employers of women—who were asked their opinion as to the amount necessary to enable the Association to meet the needs of the business community. This is what the men said:

"The Y. W. C. A. helps young women after business hours to become better employees during business hours. Therefore we are in favor of it. We want the organization to do these things:

"Provide good rooms for thousands of girls who come here to work and can't get a decent place to live.

"Give them opportunities for recreation out of working hours.

"That's the kind of Y. W. C. A. work we employers are ready to back up."

These hard-headed, two-fisted business men agreed that $1,500,000 was the amount that must be raised. They know there are thousands of women in business to-day where there used to be hundreds. They know the needs of their women employees. They are looking at this Y. W. C. A. proposition in a practical way.

The fund contains no provision for theoretical work—no faddism—no sentimentality. It has been worked out on a sound business basis. On this basis you are asked to support it.

The Y. W. C. A. stands ready. Just how much work can be done depends absolutely on the support received. It cannot be done without funds. The answer rests with the people of New York City and, in the last analysis, with the business men.

The Organization is 65% self-supporting—the other 35% must be raised by voluntary contributions.

1,500,000—March 22 to March 30

Committees representing each of the various lines of business in New York City have been selected. Send your check to the Chairman of your committee, or to Mrs. Stephen Baker, Treasurer, 610 Lexington Ave.

BACKS SIMS NOW, BUT NOT IN 1918

DEFENDED NAVY TO ADMIRAL

SAYS HE DIDN'T PREPARE

Would Not Pass on Plans Submitted—Public Deceived, Says Witness.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—After Captain Harris Laning, former Assistant Chief of Navigation, had told the Senate Committee investigating the Sims-Daniels row today that the navy had been without a comprehensive plan for the war, and that chaos virtually existed, Senator Trammell, Democrat, of Florida, confronted the Captain with a letter he had written to Admiral Sims on Aug. 18, 1918, saying he was "not convinced" that the Bureau of Operations "had erred in its general plans," and that had some of Sims's recommendations been adopted they would have been "disastrous."

Senator Trammell contended that Laning's letter was a complete contradiction of some of the Sims charges, and also of some of the charges in Laning's statement today, but the Captain contended his letter referred to a period in the war later than that involved in the charges by Admiral Sims.

"Personal characteristics" of Secretary Daniels often made it impossible to obtain approval of important plans and policies, Captain Laning asserted, as the personal interest taken by him in minor affairs "occupied so much time that he never had much left to give us for really important problems."

Captain Laning testified that at the time war was declared there was not a sufficient reserve of 14-inch shells to refill the magazines of the dreadnoughts, and that the Bureau of Ordnance had to obtain the aid of the Bureau of Operations to bring the matter to the Secretary's attention impressively enough to get authority to let contracts.

In a memorandum Admiral Benson gave Secretary Daniels the admonition that "without shells for the guns battleships are worthless," and that if they "cannot fight to save themselves, they cannot fight to save the country." After several weeks' delay, Captain Laning said, the shells were ordered.

Other Charges Made.

Other charges made by the witness were that the department in the years immediately preceding the war did not advocate legislation and policies that would prepare the navy for hostilities; that when it was apparent war could not be avoided the department still refused to prepare; that lack of co-ordination in the department during the early months of the war reduced the effectiveness of American participation and added to the cost, and that when war was declared the Navy Department told the country the navy was ready, when in reality it was known it would take at least 100 days to prepare even the latest ships for active service.

The letter from Captain Laning to Admiral Sims, read by Senator Trammell, said, in part:

"I am not convinced that operations have erred in the general plans, or that my office (navigation) has erred greatly in carrying out its mission under them. The problem, as it seems to me, was not to deliver a puny and futile blow at the start, but to build for the blows that will end and must brush the enemy. To have wasted our strength to strike quickly when that strength was not sufficient to win would have been foolish. We would have sacrificed all, and in the end would have been no better off than at the start.

"Our mission was and is to decisively beat the enemy. Even you yourself questioned the advisability of keeping our battleships in commission and suggested putting them out to sea to the submarines there. To have done that would have been disastrous, for these battleships have trained over a hundred thousand men and thousands of officers, which we would not have now had we carried out the suggestion.

"We recognize the importance of work against the U-boats, but we did not think that their extinction could alone win the war. As early as July 1, last year, it became known on this side that, no matter how much we curtailed the U-boats, the war would be lost if we did not get troops to France. How were the troops to get there unless the navy took them?

"Hasn't it turned out that making your force go and making the transport and cruiser force go were the allied salvation? We now operate over forty troop transports and several hundred cargo transports. We could not have had either the officers or men to man them had we stripped this side for your side early in the war. Those troops of ours are saving the day, and I believe it would be unfair to put blame on the department for putting them across instead of sending the personnel to chase submarines.

"Over there you give us the devil because we don't do all you want us to do. You feel we are failing you. Does it help the morale over there or over here to do that?"

Quotes Sims's Letter.

That Rear Admiral Sims as early as August, 1918, expected Congressional investigation of the navy's conduct of the war was indicated by a reference in Captain Laning's letter to a letter from Sims apparently received a short time before. He quoted Rear Admiral Sims as saying:

"When the history of this war comes to be written there will be a number of features that will not be very creditable to the United States Navy. If hearings are held on the conduct of the war, a number of rather disagreeable facts must inevitably be brought out. Without going into detail I may say that, as far as the navy is concerned, we will have fought this war with the bulk of our experienced personnel of the navy on the side of the ocean where there is no war. We will have to be able to show that it was entirely necessary that we should have had to fight the war over here with a very large proportion of reserve officers who did not have the necessary experience."

"It is that paragraph that hurts," said Captain Laning's letter to Sims. "We are very sure that the bulk of our experienced personnel is on this side of the water now! Do you realize that ultimately two-fifths of our experienced personnel will be on destroyers alone, and of the remaining three-fifths at least half will be over there before the war is over? There is much for them to do over here that may be less spectacular and not deserving of credit, yet for all that it is work that without which the Hun can't be licked.

"Criticism is easy and just criticism beneficial, but there is nothing more lowering of the morale than unjust criticism and criticism made without full knowledge and thought is apt to be unjust.

"And don't lose sight of the fact that it is only by loyalty to the general plan and by the holding to it that decisions are gained.

"Before closing there is one question I want to ask. In your opinion, when the entire navy was an actual and vital part in the war, is it advisable to separate the bulk of experienced officers from the bulk of the reserve forces, in order that some particular forces with particular missions should the better accomplish their missions and in so doing disregard the fact that we actually interfere with the navy's primary mission in the war?"

"When important policies and plans were submitted to Secretary Daniels, Captain Laning said in his testimony, directions would be given to leave the papers for "consideration," and usually these instructions meant that the matter would not be heard from again until the officer interested looked up the papers, and then frequently the papers could not be found.

"Conditions finally became so bad," the witness said, "that officers used every means possible to put their plans and policies through without obtaining the required authority.

"I was, and still am, amazed that the navy was able to accomplish the remarkable work it did; but it is certain that what it did accomplish could have been done much more quickly and efficiently if we could have had a plan from the start."

Captain Laning said many officers found this condition to be true, and he offered to furnish the committee the names of other officers who, he said, would corroborate his testimony in this respect.

Deceived the Public.

Captain Laning said that just prior to 1917 the department gave out "such glowing accounts of the navy and its splendid condition and efficiency that few, if any, outside the navy realized the true condition."

The witness said he did not criticise the department's policy as to building programs, as it always advocated an increased number of ships, but whether the numbers and types were correct was a matter of personal opinion. Secretary Daniels, he said, based his ideas of the navy's fitness on the total number of ships rather than on their condition or whether they were properly manned for war.

That the lack of a general plan to carry on the war in the beginning cost huge sums of money was indicated, Captain Laning said, by a conversation he had with Paymaster General McGowan two months after the armistice was signed. At that time, he testified, Rear Admiral McGowan said:

"Do you remember the plan you tried to put through at the outbreak of the war that provided for the handling the emergency fund and which the Secretary wouldn't approve? God, man! If he only had done it! The way things have gone we find, after charging off everything we could to other appropriations, we have over expended the emergency fund by about $150,000,000."

Later Congress authorized transfers from other appropriations to make up the over expenditures, Captain Lanning said.

General Bliss' Denial in Record.

At the request of Senator Pittman, Democrat, of Nevada, the committee admitted to the record General Bliss' denial that he had ever recommended amalgamation of American troops with the foreign armies, as Rear Admiral Sims testified.

Chairman Hale read into the record his reply to Secretary Daniels' request that the Bliss letter be put into the record, saying he considered it improper to insert papers into the record at the request of anyone not before the committee, and that Mr. Daniels would be given opportunity to present any documents he desired when he was called to testify.

The Chairman's letter added that the "papers have nothing to do with the very definite criticism of lack of preparedness and prompt support on the part of the Navy Department made by Admiral Sims in his letter of Jan. 7."

NEW JERSEY AT SEA ON DAYLIGHT SAVING

Whether the Bill Is Passed or Not, Citizens Will Suffer Inconvenience.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., March 24.—The Legislature adjourned for the week tonight without the Senate having heeded the plea made today by Governor Edwards that it take action at once on the Daylight bill passed by a majority of one vote in the Assembly. With New York State having enacted such a law and Philadelphia having repealed its ordinance for daylight saving, New Jersey, situated as it is geographically, is in an unenviable position. If the time is not changed by the Legislature, the 150,000 residents of the northern counties who commute to New York will have to put up with inconvenience and possibly pecuniary loss. If the time is changed, all Jersey men who go daily to Philadelphia or other Pennsylvania points, such as the shipyard at Harriman, will be likewise inconvenienced. Consequently, if the bill is passed the legislators will simply be hauling one group of citizens out of the frying pan and dumping another group into the fire.

The large manufacturing centres in the northern part of the State want daylight saving for economic reasons, while the agricultural districts of South Jersey oppose it on the ground that the laws of nature can't be changed and that the morning dew makes an hour's earlier work in the fields impossible.

Following receipt of the Governor Edwards's message, the Republican majority held a conference, but reached no decision on the question. The bill is in the hands of Senators Allen of Salem, and Hagaman of Ocean, Republicans, and Martens of Hunterdon, Democrat, and all of them are opposed to reporting it out of committee. Allen, who is the majority floor leader, said that even if the measure should eventually be reported there are enough votes assured to beat the bill on the floor.

Trenton residents who commute to New York for business will be particularly hard hit if the law is not enacted. Several hundreds of them leave here at 7:15 each morning in order to get to their offices at 9 o'clock. If they still took that train after Sunday they would not reach their places of employment until 10 o'clock, New York time. They will therefore have to take the only other available train, one leaving here for uptown New York at 8:36 or the one leaving here for Jersey City at 8:57. Neither is an express, and an uncomfortable Summer is in prospect.

City Campaign for Wood Planned.

An executive meeting of the General Leonard Wood Committee for New York was held last night at the Hotel Imperial. Herbert L. Satterlee, Chairman of the committee, presided, and Robert C. Morris, Chairman of the Executive Committee, was present. Women members of the committee were on hand, and plans for continuing the city fight for General Wood's nomination were discussed. William M. Rampton, former Governor of New Jersey, a Wood supporter, addressed the meeting.

Divorce Reform Bill Passes Second Reading in Lords

LONDON, March 24.—The House of Lords, by a vote of 93 to 46, today passed the second reading of a bill introduced by Baron Buckmaster, proposing important divorce reforms.

The bill, which is based on the majority report of a royal commission, extends the grounds for divorce to cover, among others, three years' desertion, habitual drunkenness and cases in which a sentence of death has been commuted to life imprisonment.

After a powerful and impassioned speech by Baron Birkenhead, the Lord Chancellor, who supported the measure in behalf of the Government, the second reading was carried despite the opposition of the Episcopal bench, the Catholic peers and the high Anglican Church peers.

The bill has not yet appeared in the House of Commons, but is said to be almost certain of being carried when it gets there.

STOCK EXCHANGE TO SAVE DAYLIGHT

Financial District Generally Will Set Clocks Ahead One Hour Next Week.

OTHER CITIES TO FOLLOW

The Stock Exchange at a special meeting of its Board of Governors decided yesterday to set its clock ahead one hour on Saturday morning and thereafter to open and close the market in conformity to the city's daylight saving ordinance. This announcement brought great satisfaction at the headquarters of the National Daylight Saving Association. It was followed by a statement that the First National Bank and the National Bank of Commerce would adopt the plan. It is expected that other banks and commercial houses will also adopt the new schedule of time.

Opinion was expressed in the financial district that the exchanges in other large cities, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and Pittsburgh, will follow the example of the Stock Exchange here.

Legal Opinion on Daylight Saving.

James A. Stillman, Chairman of the Clearing House Committee, said:

"Inquiry having been made by many of our members as to the necessity of any Clearing House action with respect to the inauguration of "Daylight Saving" on the last Sunday in March, the Clearing House Committee referred the matter to counsel, and has received the following opinion.

"The time for the opening and closing of banking business is a matter entirely of individual volition, but, for reasons of convenience only, the banks in given communities adopt a uniform course in this respect. If the existing daylight saving law, so called, of the State of New York remains in force, it should be observed by both national and State banks located within the borders of the State. If the law should be repealed and the city ordinance to the same effect should continue in operation, I see no reason why the banks of the City of New York should not adapt their time to the local time provided for in the ordinance. In fact, I should think that it would be almost essential for them to do so in order to avoid confusion. In either case, it seems to me it might be well to have public announcement made in some way to the effect that banks of the city intend to adjust their clocks accordingly.

"In view of the above opinion, and regardless of any change in the present State law, operations at the Clearing House will be transacted according to the standard city time, and it is expected that all Clearing House institutions will conform to such standard."

The railroads were still busy yesterday readjusting commuter time tables so as to operate with a minimum of difficulty. There will be some confusion for the first few days, but those who advocate daylight saving in the Eastern time zone are confident that the public will soon adjust itself to changed conditions, just as they now follow the green and black lines between Times Square and the Grand Central Station.

It is believed that by Saturday the lines will have worked out tentative plans at least to meet changed conditions. This has already been done by the New York Central and the New York, New Haven & Hartford lines.

The Erie and the Central Railroad of New Jersey are awaiting the action of the New Jersey Legislature in regard to the Daylight Saving bill in that State.

How Railroads Will Apply System.

Commuters who have been worried over the fact that the railroads will operate on standard time are crossing the bridge before they come to it. It was said at the association's headquarters, and this explanatory statement was made:

As far as their local trains are concerned the railroads are making preparations so that the old 5:15 will leave the station as it has in the past, at 5:15. That is, the commuter's watch will say 5:15, being on advanced time, while the clock at the station will register 4:15. All the commuter has to do is to remember that the time is one hour ahead of railroad time.

"The whole matter," said Marcus M. Marks, President of the National Daylight Saving Association, "is one of adjustment. It is possible there may be a little confusion the first few days, but the new order of conditions will operate smoothly, we predict, within forty-eight hours. With the banks and industry in general on daylight saving time, not only in New York city, but throughout the State, we predict that all contiguous territory automatically will adopt daylight saving.

"Daylight saving is assured to New York City, regardless of what action may be taken next week at Albany. Once the plan is in operation, we doubt greatly, even if the foes of the measure force its repeal, that Governor Smith will sign the bill.

New England States to Join.

"Massachusetts and Rhode Island will operate on advanced time, and there is no question that Connecticut will be in line, if Governor Holcomb decides to call a special session to consider the suffrage question early next month.

"Efforts will be made next week in Albany again to force through the repeal bill. Certain Republican Assemblymen from New York City voted against daylight saving this week. It is timely to ask if they are in the Assembly as representatives of the Republican Party or of their constituents in New York City. New York City adopted daylight saving by a unanimous vote of the Board of Aldermen. It is our opinion that any Assemblymen from New York City who voted against daylight saving misrepresented his constituents.

"We trust that every citizen in New York City will make it his business this week to get in touch with his Assemblyman and put him on record as to his stand on daylight saving."

Willard G. Stanton, manager of the Jersey City Chamber of Commerce, yesterday requested City Commissioner Harry Moore to arrange for a conference of railroad officials to see if the time tables could not be revised to conform with the city's daylight saving hours. Commissioner Moore said that he had not received word from the railroads as to plan. The Presidents of the State banks will observe the daylight saving schedule following the example set by the New York Clearing House.

Standard Time on Canadian Roads.

MONTREAL, March 24.—The Canadian Railway Association announced today that most trains in the Dominion would continue to be operated by standard time. Local schedules may be altered in communities that adopt daylight saving.

UNPLEDGED IN KANSAS.

Republican Delegates, Including William Allen White, Chosen.

OSAGE CITY, Kan.—March 24.—William Allen White of Emporia and Will Dalton of Saint George were chosen as delegates to the Republican National Convention by the Fourth District Republican Convention here today. They were not instructed.

JUNCTION CITY, Kan., March 24.—Colonel F. E. Fitzpatrick of Salina and J. P. Lower of Washington, Kansas, were named as delegates to the Republican National Convention from the Fifth District today. They were not instructed.

CHERRYVALE, Kan., March 24.—Wilbur N. Allen of Chanute and Charles L. Hunt of Arkansas City were chosen as delegates to the Republican National Convention by the Third District Convention today. They were not instructed.

NEWTON, Kan., March 24.—Eighth District Republicans in convention here today went on record against military training and the nomination of any candidate for President or Vice President who favors it. Two uninstructed delegates to the national convention were elected.

Asquith Calls Mischievous the Appeal Of Premier for Unity Against Labor Party

LONDON, March 24.—Former Premier Asquith, in a speech at the National Liberal Club today, replied to Premier Lloyd George's declaration that all the old parties should unite against the Labor Party to prevent Bolshevism. Mr. Asquith said the appeal was for class cleavage and the most mischievous thing that has been done.

"I am glad we are approaching the close of a transient era of organized insincerity," Mr. Asquith said, adding that the free Liberals would not "be harnessed to the wheels of the Tory chariot."

The significance of Mr. Asquith's speech is that it registers the formal split in the Liberal Party and begins a new chapter in British politics. It is pointed out that all Liberals will now have to choose whether they will support the Coalition Party of Lloyd George or give their adherence to Mr. Asquith, who claims to be the leader of the legitimate Liberal Party. The Coalition Government until recently claimed to be nothing more than a temporary arrangement, but it is now looked on as having become an organized party, with the Labor Party indicated as its chief opponent.

HOUSES AT ODDS ON MAKING PEACE

DOUBT POWER OF CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Divergent ideas of House and Senate leaders concerning the form of peace resolution threatened today to delay the possible enactment of such a measure for many weeks.

In addition to the conflicting views of members of the two houses, there is a wide difference in the Senate on the power of Congress under the Constitution to end a war by legislation.

Indications were today that the division on the resolution would be strictly on party lines, with Republicans in both houses supporting some sort of resolution and Democrats opposing it on constitutional grounds.

Senator Lodge hoped that the action might be initiated next week, he said today, before leaving for a short rest. He added that the House might get under way first.

The difference between the House view and that held in the Senate was that, whereas Representative Porter, Chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, believed that Congress could effect a state of peace by repealing all the extraordinary war powers conferred on the Government, Senator Lodge was positive that there must also be a direct repeal of the war declaration itself and a declaration of a state of peace.

Democratic Senators said that there was no way by which Congress could bring about peace except by co-operating with President Wilson, in whose hands they said, the Constitution clearly placed the making of peace.

Lodge Holds Way Is Open.

Senator Lodge held that there was a distinction between "declaring" peace and "making" peace. It was incredible to him, he said, that Congress could not undo anything it did, even to repealing a declaration of war and declaring a state of peace. After the declaration of peace, Mr. Lodge said, the duty of actually making peace, through the negotiation of necessary treaties, would devolve upon the President and would not be interfered with in any way by the action of Congress.

Senator Thomas of Colorado, a Democrat, in a brief speech to the Senate today, quoted from the Federalist and from the diaries of members of the convention which wrote the Constitution, to show that framers clearly intended that Congress should not make peace. He said that as originally drawn the Constitution provided that Congress could "make war." This was changed to "declare war," on the ground, he said, that "make" implied to carry on or conduct, and the Constitution framers agreed that this was the function of the Commander-in-Chief. It was proposed to add the words "and to make peace," but after debate that proposal was unanimously rejected as a violation of a purely Executive prerogative, Mr. Thomas said.

Senator Thomas said that if the proposed resolution should be passed and if the President should veto it, and Congress should pass it over the veto, it would be wholly ineffective and unconstitutional in my judgment, because the President had no part in it."

Senator Underwood said that the Knox resolution declaring peace would not pass. He agreed with Representative Porter that the thing to do would be to repeal war laws.

Revive Plan to Separate League

A suggestion was heard today that the treaty might be disposed of on the basis of a proposal made by Senator Knox, separating the League of Nations covenant from the peace terms proper, and ratifying the latter, leaving the League covenant to be passed upon by the people in the campaign. Some Senators thought that had Senator Knox proposed that plan last week immediately after the Lodge resolution of ratification failed it might have been adopted.

The chief demerit of the plan, some Senators pointed out, was that the treaty terms and the League covenant were so interwoven, as President Wilson said, that they could not be separated. Supporters of the plan replied that the mere fact that the United States was not a member of the League of Nations would not interfere with the workings of the League to the extent of invalidating Germany's undertaking to recognize the authority of the League in any matter in which the treaty gave it jurisdiction. Those were matters in which the United States would have no part in any event, Senators said.

Democratic Senators were skeptical about the President being willing to accept ratification of that sort, and were positive that he would not accept the Knox peace resolution. They confessed inability to see how the tangle was to be worked out, but hoped that the President might find a way even though the Senate failed.

WOOD 4,281 AHEAD IN SOUTH DAKOTA

Poindexter's Total Only 850 so Far —Vote Is Considered Light.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., March 24.—Additional returns from rural districts, coupled with the almost complete figures for the cities in yesterday's primary election, showed tonight that General Wood had 27,666, Governor Lowden 23,385 and Senator Johnson 21,735 votes in the race for indorsement as the Republican candidate for Presidential nomination.

The returns were from 1,185 of the 1,740 precincts in fifty-nine of the sixty-four counties. The five counties yet to report are isolated.

The vote in the State is estimated at 75,000, which is considered light, especially as the women were permitted to vote. Bad roads prevented many from getting to the polls.

Wood is leading in thirty-four out of sixty-four counties. Johnson is ahead in thirteen and Lowden has won in ten. The vote for Johnson was surprising, as he did not actively enter the campaign until after the Lowden and Wood forces had been firmly intrenched. The California Senator was strong in the counties where the maority of the residents are of German descent. These counties are Turner, Hankton, Hutchinson and Bonhomme. In Hutchinson County Johnson received 1,004; Lowden, 127, and Wood, 70.

Johnson also carried Minnehaha County, the largest in population in the State. His support came chiefly from the rural districts.

Reports from county centres indicated that no attempt was made to tabulate the Democratic primary results. James W. Gerard of New York and James O. Monroe of Maywood, Ill., were the Democratic candidates for Presidential indorsement. The figures probably will not be available until the Secretary of State compiles the county reports.

Governor Peter Norbeck and W. H. McMaster were nominated by the Republicans for United States Senator and Governor respectively on the face of the incomplete returns. Norbeck and McMaster were indorsed by the proposal convention held Dec. 2 and were opposed by Judge Dick Haney and S. D. Richards, both of Huron. The convention candidates received substantial pluralities in most counties.

OHIO DEMOCRATS START ACTIVE COX CAMPAIGN

Appeal to Country on Governor's Record, Asserting That He Would Carry Ohio.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 24.—An active campaign in the interest of Governor James M. Cox of Ohio, for the Democratic nomination for President was launched here today.

After a two days' conference of Democratic State leaders with the Governor, announcement was made that Edmund E. Moore, National Committeeman, has been chosen to manage the Governor's campaign. At the same time a letter was issued to the Democrats of the nation, setting forth the Governor's qualifications to lead the party in November.

Governor Cox is assured the solid Ohio delegation of 48 votes at the San Francisco convention. All candidates for delegates to be chosen at the primary on April 27 are pledged to the Governor.

The letter addressed to the Democrats of the nation argues that with Cox as the Democratic nominee the electoral vote of Ohio is assured, based upon the fact that he has three times carried the State for Governor, the last time running ahead of the Democratic Congressional ticket by more than 75,000 votes.

WOMEN TO HEAR GOVERNOR.

Smith Will Aid in Launching Voters' Educational Campaign.

Governor Smith will be the principal speaker at the dinner to be given tomorrow night at the Hotel Commodore by the Democratic women of the 17th Senatorial District to launch an educational campaign among women voters throughout the State on Democratic State issues and the political principles of the party. Other speakers will be Franklin D. Roosevelt and Joseph A. Kellogg.

Announcement was made that the first of a series of four lectures will be given by the Democratic women's organization at the Ritz-Carlton next Wednesday afternoon when John Godfrey Saxe will talk on "The powers and duties of ident might find a way even though the women voters at the Spring and Fall primaries."

HOLCOMB DEFIES PARTY ON SUFFRAGE

Connecticut Governor Again Refuses to Call Legislature to Vote on Amendment.

CONVENTION URGED HIM TO

HARTFORD, Conn., March 24.—Governor Marcus H. Holcomb, Republican, in a statement tonight, flatly refused to call a special session of the Connecticut General Assembly to act on the Federal suffrage amendment, notwithstanding that the Republican State Convention, by an almost unanimous vote in New Haven this afternoon, called upon him to summon a special session so that it might be possible for Connecticut to be the thirty-sixth State to ratify the amendment.

The Governor's statement reads:

"I have read the resolution passed today by the Republican State Convention. I do not see how that changes the situation or assists to create the special emergency which authorizes the Governor to call a special session.

"The State constitution places the responsibility upon the Governor. I shall not shift it to the delegates to the Republican State Convention. I again decline to call a special session.

"The adoption by thirty-six States of the Federal suffrage amendment will change our Constitution, but until it is changed my oath of office requires me to support it in its unaltered form.

"If Connecticut should be one of the thirty-six States to adopt the Suffrage Amendment by the vote of the General Assembly, and thereby change our constitution without the concurring vote of the electors of the State, it would be contrary to the provisions of our constitution."

NEW HAVEN, March 24.—In passing today its resolution requesting the Governor to call a special session of the Legislature to ratify the National Suffrage Amendment, the Republican organization turned a complete somersault. Last night they insisted that they would tolerate no such resolution and called supporters of the plan meddlers. The State Central Committee this morning indorsed the resolution, twenty-five to eight, and it won applause when presented to the convention.

Calling each other lobbyists, the two Republican factions headed by John T. King and C. Henry Roraback bitterly attacked each other in the convention today.

King's floor leader, Lieutenant Governor Clifford Wilson of Bridgeport, quoted statistics to show that, under the leadership of Roraback, who is Chairman of the State Central Committee, a normal Republican plurality of 44,000 had been converted to a Democratic plurality which had twice resulted in the election as Governor of Judge Simeon E. Baldwin, which had caused a political split between former Governor Morgan G. Bulkeley and United States Senator George P. McLean, and which had given the State an ugly spectacle in the suicidal row between Everett Lake and Charles Goodwin, candidates for Governor.

He accused Mr. Roraback of imposing some of his methods upon the State Central Committee which he dominated.

Replying in defense of Roraback, Colonel Isaac Ullman, Republican leader of New Haven County, asked Mr. Wilson if Mr. King was not himself active in the lobby till a few years ago. He said he did not know that King was still a resident of Connecticut, that he had read of his consorting with Bolsheviki of different parts of the country, but that he had heard of him in this State recently. On behalf of the King faction Wilson presented two motions to the convention, both of which were lost, attesting to the control of the convention by the regular machine State organization.

Wilson tried to upset the organization plan for selecting delegates to the national convention when he moved that a committee of five from each county be named to bring in the names of delegates at large. Colonel Ullman moved to table the resolution and his motion prevailed, 307 to 211, which proved the maximum strength of the King forces in the convention. Later Wilson moved that the delegates at large be not selected till after the choice of the district delegates. This was lost, 314 to 177 votes.

King withdrew as candidate for delegate at large, but was elected delegate from the Fourth District. He was also re-elected member of the State Central Committee. His friends boasted tonight that he would block the plans of Roraback to be elected national committeeman from Connecticut by forcing the re-election of Charles F. Brooker of Ansonia, who was the commissioner previous to King's election. King also insisted that he would obtain the nomination as Governor this Fall of Lieutenant Governor Wilson. His friends were active today encouraging the nomination of Senator Johnson as candidate for President.

The entire organization slate went through today, the delegates at large being Mr. Brooker, Charles Hopkins Clark, editor of the Hartford Courant; James M. Wall of Greenwich, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and Mr. Roraback.

DELAWARE HEARING TODAY.

DOVER, Del., March 24.—On the eve of the big battle scheduled for tomorrow before the Delaware Legislature, on the question of ratifying the Federal amendment, indications point most strongly to the defeat of the amendment.

As the result of a joint conference of the Democratic and Republican House members today a binding petition to vote against suffrage was signed by ten Republicans and eleven Democrats with assurance of two more signers tomorrow when two members absent today will be present. The signed petition came after it had been reported that they had gained two votes in the Senate.

Efforts are being made to call up the suffrage amendment tomorrow, immediately after the public hearing before the joint Assembly. Whether this can be accomplished has not been disclosed as the resolutions calling for the ratification of the amendment were introduced in both houses today and referred in the Senate to the Judiciary Committee and in the House to the Revised States Committee.

At tomorrow's public hearing speakers for suffrage will include Senators Spencer of Missouri and Sterling of South Dakota, both Republicans, and Senator McKellar of Tennessee, Democrat.

Full Suffrage for Nebraska Women.

LINCOLN, Neb., March 24.—Nebraska women would be given full voting privileges under a constitutional amendment finally passed today by the State's constitutional convention in session here.

At present they are prohibited from voting for offices provided for by the Constitution. The suffrage amendment, with other proposed constitutional changes adopted by the convention, will be submitted to the voters for their approval or rejection at a date to be decided upon later.

Alexandra Carlisle Nominated.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 24.—The name of Alexandra Carlisle (Mrs. Albert Pfeiffer), well known as an actress in this country and England, has been placed on the Presidential primary ballot in the Eighth Congressional District. Miss Carlisle is the only Republican woman in Massachusetts making a contest for a delegateship.

Peace Council and League Meet in Italy Late in April

PARIS, March 23 (French Wireless Service).—The Supreme Council of the Allies will meet at San Remo, Italy, on April 21, according to authoritative advices from Rome.

The next meeting of the Council of the League of Nations will be held in Rome on April 25 or 26, it is announced.

HOOVER MEN FIGHT FOR REPUBLICAN AID

SILENT ON SOURCE OF FUNDS

The effort to bring about the nomination of Herbert C. Hoover for the Presidency at the Republican convention in Chicago in June has met with such success, according to Mr. Hoover's California friends in the city, that within the next ten days there will be a national conference of Hoover supporters from all over the country at Chicago. A prominent National committee with a permanent chairman who will direct the Hoover campaign in the future will be established and National headquarters will be opened.

This announcement was made yesterday by John F. Lucey, Mr. Hoover's principal backer, who is temporary chairman of the Hoover National Republican Club, with headquarters in the Hotel Vanderbilt. Mr. Lucey said the conference was being arranged because of the insistence of local Hoover clubs who wish to co-ordinate their activities for Hoover as the Republican presidential nominee. These clubs, he said, were springing up all over the country and Chicago will be chosen as the most logical centre from which to direct the campaign.

"Such a national conference will be unique," said Mr. Lucey yesterday. "It will be the natural outgrowth of all the Hoover movements. The Hoover movement has been from the outside in and not from the inside out. The Hoover National Republican Club was the result of the country-wide formation of Hoover Clubs, and is the temporary organization which is offering its services as a clearing house for the activities of the clubs. Sentiment for Mr. Hoover as the Republican Presidential nominee has been spreading rapidly and has now gained such impetus and strength that only representatives of all Hoover organizations can decide upon steps to co-ordinate the work of the individual clubs for the sake of a common cause."

The demand of the managers of Major Gen. Leonard Wood's campaign that the Hoover managers make public the identity of the financial interests behind the Hoover movement met with no response from the latter yesterday. At the headquarters of the Wood campaign it was announced that reports received by the managers from Maine indicate that the State Convention, to be held at Bangor today, will name twelve uninstructed delegates, following which a resolution indorsing General Wood will be offered, with every probability of its being unanimously adopted.

After William Cooper Procter, national campaign manager, had conferred with Senator George H. Moses, Wood's Southern manager, yesterday issued a statement, in which he said:

"By the end of the present week General Wood will show well over one hundred delegates elected for him either under instructions or by affirmative declaration of the delegates themselves. The 'old box of tricks' has been opened by General Wood's opponents and the old familiar shrieks of agony which the defeated always use are filling the air. It is a little early for some of these devices to be used, but they show conclusively that General Wood's opponents realize that the jig is up."

Despite the claim of Senator Hiram W. Johnson that he had won the ten North Dakota delegates at the primary in that State on March 16, the Wood managers declared that a late report showed that the regular Republican delegation of the State defeated the Johnson slate by a majority of 8,112 votes, with five counties missing. Eight of the ten members of the regular Republican delegation were supporting Wood, it was claimed. It was asserted that the final result from North Dakota was delayed because of a blizzard which made it impossible to get the returns from the various sections of the State.

Word was received at the Wood headquarters from Los Angeles, Cal., that E. C. Doheny of the Mexican Petroleum Company, mentioned as a contributor to the Wood campaign fund, has issued a statement denying that he had "ever contributed one cent for the promotion of General Wood's political interests."

HOOVER MEETING TONIGHT.

To Discuss Republican Canvass in Seventeenth District.

Mrs. Oscar S. Straus will preside at a meeting of Republicans to be held at the Hotel Majestic this evening to discuss the canvass in the Seventeenth Congressional District to elect delegates pledged to support Herbert C. Hoover for President. Dr. Katharine B. Davis and Walter S. Haight will be among the speakers. There will be a general discussion of the campaign by the Hoover delegates, Miss Mabel Choate and Julian S. Myrick.

The local headquarters of the Hoover West Side Republican League of the seventeenth district was moved yesterday to the Hotel Ansonia. Mrs. Straus and Sewell T. Tyng are directing the workers who report there. Watson Washburn, Chairman of the District Committee, answering the attack made upon Mr. Hoover by the Wood managers, said yesterday:

"In attempting to belittle Mr. Hoover's work as head of the great relief organizations during the war, they stated that 'he had a comparatively easy task, with all America's wealth behind him and all her prestige before him.' It would be as reasonable to say that General Pershing had an easy task because he had all America's wealth behind him and all her prestige before him. It would be equally reasonable to say that General Wood had an easy task in any of his undertakings for during most of his active life he has not only had the support of this same wealth and prestige, but the power and authority of the Government's military machine as well."

HOOVER DECRIES KANSAS LABOR LAW

CITES AUSTRALIAN RESULTS

Predicts That Difficulties in Labor Compulsion There Will Be Repeated Here.

URGES POSITIVE REMEDIES

Declares That "Generous Phrases" Are Not Enough in Present Industrial Problems.

BOSTON, March 24.—The relationship of employer and employe as considered by the National Industrial Conference, of which he is a member, and the difference in the point of view of the conference and that of the Kansas legislation for the judicial settlement of labor disputes were discussed by Herbert C. Hoover in an address before the Chamber of Commere here today. He defended the Industrial Conference plan.

Mr. Hoover said that it was not sufficient "to dismiss the subject with generous and theoretic phrases, 'justice to capital and labor,' 'the Golden Rule,' 'the paramount interest of the people' or a score of others, for there underlies this question the whole problem of the successful development of our democracy." He continued:

"In a survey of the forces making for self-government in industry, the conference considered that definite encouragement must be given to the principles of collective bargaining, of conciliation, of arbitration, but that such forces could not develop in an atmosphere of legal repression. There is but little conflict of view as to the principle of collective bargaining and its vital corollary, fidelity to the bargain made. There has been conflict over the methods of representation on both sides.

"The conference, therefore, has proposed that the Government should intervene to assist in determination of the credentials of the representatives of both sides in case of disagreement, and that such pressure should be brought to bear as would induce voluntary entry into collective bargaining. Furthermore, it was considered that the large development of conciliation and arbitration already current in connection with such bargaining should be encouraged and organized under a broad national plan that would give full liberty of action to all existing organizements of this character and stimulate their further development.

Public Inquiry Used as Penalty.

"The conference has therefore proposed to set up a small amount of governmental machinery comprising a Chairman covering various regions in the United States, with a central board in Washington, as a definite organization for the promotion of these agencies. It has believed that this is a step consonant with the normal development of our institutions and the progressive forces already in motion and in such steps lies the greatest hope of success.

"No one is compelled to submit to the machinery established, but where the employer and employe refuse to enter or fail in bargaining, then through the use of this machinery the public stimulates them to come together under conditions of just determination of the credentials of their representatives. The plan is, therefore, a development of the principle of collective bargaining. It is not founded on the principle of arbitration or compulsion.

"Under the plan of the conference that mutual agreement is the best basis for prevention of conflict, the second step in the conference proposal is that there should be a penalty for failure to submit to

Stocks Fall Sharply as Call Loans Reach 14 Per Cent.—Cotton Breaks.

A topheavy speculative position of stocks and cotton brought its own correction yesterday through a sharp fall of quotations. The volatile industrial shares declined from 2 to 7 points, with erratic General Motors receding on less than 44 points from the highest to the lowest level. The March cotton option, which the day before sold at the remarkable price of 43.18 cents per pound, dropped to 40 cents, and the other contracts were weak from the start of business. In both markets it appeared as though there had been, in a Wall Street phrase, "Too much buying and too little selling" since the forward movement began early in the month. The old short account evidently had been driven in in progress of the rise and a new one had not been built up, with the result that there was not a sufficiently firm cushion for quotations to fall upon when sentiment became unsettled. The primary cause of this unsettlement, as far as stocks were concerned, was an advance of the call money rate from 7 to 14 per cent.

The speculative element which likes to ascribe to the banks arbitrary power over call loan rates had pungent comment for yesterday's movement. And if one were won't to acclaim this explanation for the unexpected rise of money, he might go further and discover reasons why money lenders "put up" the rate. The fact should not be overlooked that traders in General Motors, Baldwin, Crucible Steel, Studebaker and other stocks had been bidding prices upward in a plunging fashion which had slight regard for the situation of credit as bank statements had disclosed it from week to week, and from this it would not be difficult to argue that a rebuke for such operations had been administered. The real value of debate on this point is, however, open to question. The March advance of quotations, whatever may have been the influence from sound industrial developments, had been in the face of a steadily unfavorable Federal bank reserve position and the liquidation of commercial loans reported from time to time apparently found new uses for the credit thus released. The operations centring around the mid-month tax payments have not yet been completed. Government withdrawals from local banks on Tuesday amounted to about $20,000,000 and more funds are expected to be taken out today. The checks to Internal Revenue Collectors have not all gone through, which means that the banks are likely to lose deposits to the Government for some time. The stock market had seemed to be thrown off its guard by the relatively easy call loan rates in recent days, which furthered the decline after it got under way yesterday. In the first hour occurred the familiar process of bidding up the popular issues and their retreat later came close to being a rout.

An encouraging feature of the day was contained in the announcement of several sizable pieces of new financing, including more than $17,000,000 of railroad security offerings. So far this week railroad and industrial corporations have presented for consideration by the investing public more than $54,000,000 new paper. Sterling exchange advanced again and there was a substantial upturn of franc, lire and Belgian franc quotations. The rise of the latter group indicated that preparations for maturing French and Italian loans in London within the next few weeks had been completed in the main. Sterling was quoted as high as 3.83¼, close to the year's maximum rate for checks.

STANDARD OF JERSEY LISTED ON EXCHANGE

1918 FIGURES IN REPORT

Earnings That Year, with Income and War Taxes Deducted, Were $57,798,739.

The common and preferred stocks of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey were admitted to list on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday and trading will begin this morning. Atlantic Refining, another of the Standard Oil group of companies, listed its shares on the Stock Exchange some weeks ago, so that actually Standard Oil of New Jersey is the second company to depart from the old Standard Oil customs. The listing of Atlantic Refining was not attended with anything like the degree of interest that has attached to the prospective listing of Standard of New Jersey. This was in part due to the fact that Standard Oil of New Jersey, while absolutely apart from the other Standard companies, is nevertheless in popular mind looked upon as the outstanding company of the Standard Oil group and in a sense the parent company.

For those who have been looking forward eagerly to the listing as a medium whereby the supposed hidden assets of the Standard Oil of New Jersey would be disclosed the present papers are in large degree disappointing. Income account and balance sheets are for 1918 instead of 1919 for one thing, and if there was any endeavor to estimate a new book value for Standard of New Jersey stock from the figures, the services of an expert accountant would be required, and in the opinion of one man yesterday even such a means would probably bring about a wrong answer. The report, which is one of the most voluminous ever sent to the Listing Committee of the Exchange, goes at length into the records of subsidiary companies, all of which is comparatively new information even though for 1918. It is stated that the report for 1919 will probably be ready before July 1.

Broke Precedent in July.

It was in July of last year that the Standard of New Jersey broke all precedents by announcing that an issue of $100,000,000 7 per cent. non-voting preferred stock would be put out, the stock being underwritten by J. P. Morgan & Co. This was an action in direct contradiction to the usual custom of Standard Oil Companies, which had never before come to Wall Street to do financing. At that time it stated that application would be made to list the shares on the New York Stock Exchange. There was doubt as to whether the company planned to list the common shares also, but this was cleared away some time ago, by a statement that the listing papers were being prepared. The announcement of the preferred issue brought forth an income account the main figures of which were the same as those in the listing statement given out by the Stock Exchange yesterday.

The listing of the shares has been looked forward to with a high degree of interest and frequent inquiry has been made as to when the matter would come before the Exchange. The mass of figures to be compiled necessitated the long delay, it is asserted, and to have waited for complete 1919 figures would have entailed a further postponement. It was to obviate this that the 1918 figures were used.

The scope of the company's refinery business is shown in the report by these figures, which are for 1919 products: 3,812,457 barrels of gasoline, 8,108,634 barrels of refined oils, 12,647,250 barrels of gas and fuel oils, 1,857,576 barrels of lubricating oils, 39,686 tons of scale wax, and 1,781,144 barrels of other products. It is estimated that the output of the refineries for 1920 will be 10 per cent. in excess of the 1919 figures.

Income account for 1918 shows that earnings, with income and war taxes deducted, were $57,798,739. For the five years from 1914 to 1918 the earnings were $301,591,616. The balance sheet shows total assets of $691,316,969. The total surplus as of 1918 is $464,204,725. The gross earnings of the company were $411,709,480. The company received $16,243,773 as dividends from affiliated companies. The listing gives extensive data on the Carter Oil Company, which is the chief producing subsidiary of Standard of New Jersey.

New Stocks Added to List.

The following stocks have been added to the list of securities quoted on the New York Stock Exchange: Montgomery Ward & Co., Inc., $8,000,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred and 850,000 shares of common without par value; Columbia Bank of New York, $1,000,000 additional capital stock; H. R. Mallinson & Co., Inc., temporary certificates for $3,000,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred and 200,000 shares of common without par value; General Electric Company, $15,000,000 temporary 6 per cent. debenture bonds, due Feb. 1, 1940; Columbia Graphophone Manufacturing Company, temporary certificates for 41,667 shares of common of no par value, and, after April 1, 1920, an additional amount of 45,786 shares of the same stock; Barnsdall Corporation, temporary interchangeable certificates for $13,000,000 Class A Voting Capital Stock; Indiahoma Refining Company, $2,173,495 capital stock, with authority to issue an additional $2,826,505 on official notice of issuance in exchange for present outstanding certificates; Computing-Tabulating-Recording Company, 104,627 shares of capital stock without par value in exchange for a similar amount of outstanding stock of $100 par value; Temtor Corn and Fruit Products Company, 137,500 Class A and 55,550 Class B shares without par value; Phillips-Jones Corporation, $2,500,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred and 85,000 shares of common stock of no par value.

TYPEWRITER PROFITS GROW.

The report of the Remington Typewriter Company and its subsidiaries for last year was a considerable surprise when the figures were made public yesterday. It had been expected that the company would show earnings equal to about $18 a share on the $9,906,000 common stock. The actual figures showed a balance of $2,910,709, which, after dividends on the first and second preferred were equivalent to $21.48 a share on the common. In 1918 $12.70 was earned on the common.

Preferred dividends amounting to $2,452,063 were charged off in the report. These included $1,000,000 paid on account of accumulated second preferred stock dividends. Net earnings, after provision for depreciation of plants, reserves for inventories, Federal taxes, and all doubtful accounts, were $3,327,459 as compared with $2,469,030 in 1918. Profit and loss surplus at the close of the year was $6,070,540 as compared with $5,611,894 at the close of 1918.

The balance sheet shows that the company's investment in Liberty bonds increased to $2,040,181 from $658,225, while other investments decreased to $300,082 from $1,285,243, and cash was $3,689,784 as compared with $4,784,319 in the preceding year. Bonds are set down at $1,850,000 as compared with $4,327,000 in 1918.

Sharp Break in Prices.

Prices on the Stock Exchange melted away with a rapidity yesterday that caused consternation among the holders of long stock. There was less to be heard of the trapped bears who would have to "bid to the roof" to get the stocks where with to cover. There is no doubt but that there was a short interest of large proportions caught in some of the more volatile issues, but it was also a bit inconsistent to think that the covering could go on endlessly. The fact that General Motors stock was being returned to the loan crowd at the close of Tuesday's trading might have been taken as a hint that all was not well with the long position, which was plainly becoming overcrowded. The rather remarkable fact is that the crash of prices was postponed so long. It had been expected by experienced traders, though of course no one could positively predict the moment at which it would come. There have been signs, however, for several weeks that prices in some more volatile issues were being bid up to disguise selling elsewhere. Such a forerunner of a changing position was probably not overlooked by experienced traders. In the last few days the public has been coming into the market, and apparently the influx this time came just at a moment to catch the high prices.

General Motors.

Traders who veer toward conservatism have for some time been looking askance at the General Motors situation. The upbidding of the stock has been of such a violent order that it was considered to be an unstabilizing influence. Several others of the more speculative issues, such as Baldwin and Republic, have acted likewise, and it would appear that the technical position had not been by any means as secure as had been anticipated. General Motors, after making a new high yesterday at 410, reacted to 366 with a net loss, as compared with Tuesday, of 33¼ points. This made the predictions of 600 which have been in circulation look a bit optimistic.

Stuts a Mystery.

There was a real air of mystery in Stuts Motor shares, for instead of following the market down they continued on their upward flight, gaining 3 points for the day. If there was one issue that might have been expected to react it was Stuts, for it has had the greatest rise of any stock on the board in the last few weeks. The low for the year was made on Feb. 13 at 100¾. That mark is quite a bit removed from the close of yesterday at 248. The pyrotechnic display in Stuts has been in a measure overlooked because of the lack of heavy trading. Yesterday's turnover, for instance, was only about five thousand shares. The crash in stock market prices generally was reflected in Stuts to this extent—that the shares reacted 1 point from their high for the day.

At Last a Flurry.

Wall Street at last had its flurry in the call money market when the rate moved up to 14 per cent. yesterday, after having opened and renewed at 7 per cent. in the morning. The explanation, however, did not jibe with the ideas which had begot the original nervousness. In other words, it was not Government withdrawals, according to the popular conception, which caused the advance. On the contrary most people believed that the real explanation would be found in the presentation of tax checks for collection at the banks, a movement which has been going forward ever since the early days of last week and which was supposed to have attained a point yesterday where real, albeit temporary, stringency actually existed.

Money Movements.

So far as Government withdrawals are concerned, the banks lost about $20,000,000 on this operation on Tuesday and will lose between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000 today. That is of small consequence. But the movement between banks, the Government's tax agency and the Reserve Bank is likely to be on a much greater scale. Last week the member banks reduced their borrowings at the Reserve Bank by $63,500,000, while the Government increased its loans $60,800,000. The member banks were able to do this because they were paid for their maturing Treasury certificates and were not called upon at once to meet the tax checks. The same circumstances necessitated the Government's increase in loans at the bank. This week, with the member banks meeting the tax checks, their loans probably will go up materially, while the Government, because of receipt of the checks, will cut down its loans. The whole transaction means a certain amount of disturbance and readjustment and probably accounts for the unsettlement yesterday.

Not Buying Sterling.

At this time of year the big British cotton importers usually begin buying future options on sterling, thus providing for their Fall requirements when the crop begins to move. But this year the operation is being indulged in only scantily, and for two reasons. First, many, if not all, of the British importers believe sterling will be much higher this Fall than it is now and that they will then be able to get more dollars for their pounds than could be obtained at this time. On the other hand, American bankers are inclined to feel the same way about it, but are not entirely willing to meet the optimism of the British by marking up their offering prices on future options. Thus, there is something mildly resembling a deadlock in the market and the result is that the business in sterling future contracts is on a lighter scale than in many years.

The Copper Export Credit.

Reports circulated through the financial district yesterday that all the details of the new copper export credit arrangements had been worked out and had been cabled to France were denied by those in close touch with the situation. Negotiations regarding the purchase of copper by European governments have been carried on for some time, it was asserted yesterday, but no final details regarding the extension of credits to those buyers have been sent abroad. It is expected in some quarters that the plan will be finally agreed upon within the next week or so.

Copper Advances to 18¾ Cents.

While there has been no heavy increase in the volume of inquiries, the price for copper moved up ¼ of a cent yesterday. Business is steady and of comfortable proportions, but foreigners are buying carefully, especially England and France, while there has been little or no business done with Germany since the revolution in that country. Japanese buying, which has been in heavy volume, has decreased considerably. Copper men say that the price seldom remains at quarter points very long at a time, and the sentiment seemed to be yesterday that 19 cents a pound would not be a great surprise. It is predicted that the present buying movement will increase and carry through the balance of this and all of next month.

The Freight Rate Increase.

In some railroad quarters it is asserted that a horizontal increase in freight rates of 25 per cent. will not increase the revenues of the railroads enough to show a return of 5½ per cent. on the aggregate value of the railroad property of the country. At the same time those who insist that a greater increase must be announced by the Interstate Commerce Commission, admit that until the Commission finally or tentatively fixes the aggregate value of the roads no true idea may be had of the increase necessary to yield the 5½ per cent. stipulated in the Transportation Act. That the commission finally or tentatively fixes the opinion expressed in most railroad quarters, but just what that increase will be rests entirely with the commission.

Rails Decline in Sympathy.

The railroad shares as a group sold off in sympathy with the decline in the general list and losses at the close ranged from fractions to more than three points. The St. Paul issues seemed to reflect a persistent pressure of stock, the common closing down more than two points and the preferred showing a net loss of more than three points from the preceding close. Some closing quotations were the lowest for the day, but such issues as Reading, Southern Pacific and other recent favorites rallied fractionally before the closing gong. Pittsburgh & West Virginia was offered freely in the afternoon and lost more than one point while Erie's first preferred, Western Pacific and a few others also showed a point loss or more. The majority of the rest ranged very fractional, however, and the undertone became firm.

INVESTMENT ISSUES GROWING STRONGER

Market in Receptive State, and $50,000,000 Are Offered This Week.

WESTERN ELECTRIC BONDS

The improvement in the investment market continues to attract new issues. New offerings totalling more than $50,000,000 have been announced this week. The latest offerings are one of $25,000,000 five-year 7 per cent. convertible bonds of the Western Electric Company and $5,200,000 equipment obligations of the Virginian Railway Company. It was also announced yesterday that the $12,000,000 Canadian Pacific equipment securities had been awarded to the syndicate headed by the Guaranty Trust Company.

The Western Electric Company five-year notes are to be marketed by a syndicate managed by Lee, Higginson & Co. and the Chase Securities Corporation. Expansion of the syndicate to include several other banks and banking houses is expected. The price has not as yet been finally determined upon. The bonds, which are dated April 1 of this year and are due April 1, 1925, are to be convertible at the option of the holder at any time between April 1, 1922, and October 1, 1924, at the ratio of par for par.

A syndicate, composed of the National City Company, Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co., and Lee, Higginson & Co., has purchased the issue of $5,200,000 Virginian Railway Company equipment bonds, which are to bear 6 per cent. and will be offered on a basis to yield 7 per cent. The bonds mature in equal instalments semi-annually at periods ranging from six months to ten years. The equipment against which these notes are issued is said to be worth approximately a third more than the amount of the offering, for a 25 per cent. cash payment has been made by the company.

The Canadian Pacific equipment bonds, totaling $12,000,000, and which have been awarded to the banking syndicate headed by the Guaranty Trust Company, are to be issued under the so-called "Philadelphia plan." The bonds will be offered at prices to yield from 6¼ to 6¾ per cent. They will be dated April 1, 1920, and will mature in lots of $500,000 semi-annually from Oct. 1, 1920, to April 1, 1930. Title to the equipment covered by the trust, which is reported to be worth $15,000,000, will be lodged with the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, as trustee.

Halsey, Stuart & Co., E. S. Moseley & Co. and the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank are offering an issue of $5,000,000 Continental Motors Corporation 7 per cent. serial gold notes at par and interest for all maturities, which will mature from April 1, 1922, to April 1, 1925.

Railway Signal Surplus Falls.

The report of the General Railway Signal Company for the year ended Dec. 31, 1919, shows a surplus, after depreciation, interest and Federal taxes, amounting to $552,743, which was equal to $14.42 a share earned on the $3,000,000 common stock. In the preceding year the surplus before Federal taxes was $607,145, which was equivalent to $18.27 on the same stock.

STEEL NET DOWN 58 PER CENT. IN 1919

$76,794,582 FOR DIVIDENDS

Gross Earnings of $1,448,557,835 the Lowest Since 1916—Output Only 74.5 Per Cent. of Capacity.

The story of the readjustment of the largest industrial company in the country from a war to a peace basis is told in the annual report of the United States Steel Corporation for last year. Attention is called to the serious difficulties encountered, not the least of these the steel strike, and the strike of the coal miners which came toward the end of the year. During the first five months of 1919 it develops that only a small amount of business was done as compared with that which was to be expected in a normal year, and the output of the mills averaged only about 67 per cent. of capacity for the entire twelve months. The output of finished steel for sale during the period was only 74.5 per cent. of capacity. Insufficiency of transportation and a shortage of labor were other difficulties which helped to decrease operations.

As a result of the curtailment the gross earnings of the corporation of $1,448,557,835 were the lowest reported for any year since 1916 and were some $300,000,000 less than in 1918. Apparently the company encountered rising costs, for the decrease in gross is accentuated in the net earnings figures before Federal taxes. The 1919 net earnings before deducting Federal tax allowances were $195,589,003, whereas the same item in 1918 showed $473,028,514. The first named figures are a decrease of about $342,000,000 from the record mark of the corporation made in 1917. In terms of percentage, gross business in 1919 declined 17 per cent. as compared with 1918, and net earnings dropped off 58 per cent.

The consolidated income account shows that the corporation set aside reserves of $52,000,000 to cover Federal taxes. This is a reduction of more than $222,000,000 from the provision in the previous report. There has been considerable speculation regarding the Federal tax provision, since the corporation refused to make any comment in the quarterly reports throughout the year on this point. During the war the quarterly reports contained the specific amount that was set apart in each quarter to meet taxes.

Less Than Forecasts.

The present figure of $52,000,000 is low as compared with the forecasts that have been made in Wall Street. In 1918 the tax provision called for $274,277,835, the largest amount ever paid by the company under the excess profits law. It has always been considered that the corporation made ample provision in tax allowances to cover the charges, and it has been rumored from time to time that substantial amounts were returned to the corporation by the Department of Internal Revenue because of over-payment. During 1917, 1918 and 1919 the Steel Corporation has made tax reservations of more than half a billion dollars, the specific amount being $599,743,320.

In the balance sheet is to be found an item of $159,069,071, representing United States Government bonds, Treasury certificates and other securities. The corresponding item in the balance sheet of the preceding year indicated an amount of $277,745,969. It has been contended by the corporation that it has never sold any of its Government bonds, so that the decrease is probably accounted for by a reduction in the amount of Treasury certificates held by the company, these being used to pay Federal taxes.

The income available for dividends last year was $76,794,582 as compared with $137,532,377 in the preceding year. After providing for the preferred dividends this was equal to slightly in excess of $10 a share on the common stock. The earnings of the preceding year were equal to $22 a share on the common.

The falling off in production as a sult of the untoward circumstances previously mentioned is indicated in a table which shows the 1919 figures and the decrease from 1918. The sharpest decline was in iron ore. This was, in part at least, attributable to the labor difficulties along the Lakes which disrupted traffic conditions. The table follows:

PRODUCTION.

The report affords some interesting data on the recent subscription to stock of the company by employes, the shares being offered at 106. It is shown that the subscription was the heaviest ever recorded, a total of 167,407 shares having been taken up by 6,477 employes up to the time of compiling the present report. The stock offering was made in January of this year. In the preceding year 59,833 employes subscribed for 155,180 shares.

Fewer Employes.

The average number of employes last year was 252,100 and the highest number employed in any one month of the year was 274,837, in February. In 1918 the average number of employes was 268,710, so that with decreased operations there was a reduction of about 16,600 workers. The total amount of the annual payroll last year was $479,548,040, as compared with $452,663,524 in the preceding year. The average salary or wage for each employe was $6.17 a day, an increase of 79 cents a day as compared with the 1918 report.

No general increase in salaries or wages was made during 1919, but early in 1920 a 10 per cent. advance was made throughout the corporation. This, it is asserted, will increase the annual payroll by about $45,000,000. This last advance resulted, according to the report, in an increase in the common labor wage of 144 per cent. as compared with the rate in effect in January, 1915.

It is stated that $6,080,796 was expended during the year on account of the construction of twenty-one ocean-going cargo steamers which will be operated by the corporation's subsidiaries in connection with their export trade. Another item of expenditure during the year was $7,530,125 for housing facilities for employes, improvement of town sites and the necessary public utilities to be operated in connection with the improvements. The outlays covered work on approximately 5,800 houses for employes. During the year the Empire Building at 71 Broadway was purchased, and it is said that eventually it will be devoted entirely to the uses of the corporation and its subsidiaries.

In connection with prices the report says:

"On March 21, 1919, the Industrial Board of the Department of Commerce announced a schedule of prices for the principal standard steel products which, after extended investigation, it had concluded was fair and reasonable under prevailing conditions. These prices were a substantial reduction from those which had previously been quoted by steel manufacturers generally. The subsidiaries of this corporation promptly accepted this schedule and have since followed it, notwithstanding there has been a steadily increasing cost of operation and production, and that the demands of customers for materials would have permitted higher prices. The decision of the corporation in this particular has been influenced by the heretofore announced reasons which from time to time in the past have decided its policy in respect of prices under conditions where the necessities of consumers induce them to bid up the market."

Principal and dividends payable in United States Gold Coin at The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh and Guaranty Trust Company of New York

The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, Trustee

THE $12,000,000 Equipment Trust 6% Gold Certificates issued under the Philadelphia Plan are to be specifically secured by standard new railway equipment costing $15,000,000 delivered. The title to this equipment is to be vested in the Trustee, and it will be leased to the Railway Company.

Pending receipt of the equipment, which is to be delivered in Canada, the Trustee will hold for the benefit of the Certificate owners $15,000,000 in cash at the Bank of Montreal, subject to the order of the Trustee.

The Canadian Pacific has been able to maintain its earnings on a very substantial basis, in spite of increased operating costs, as evidenced by the following income accounts reported by the Company:

Times Charges Earned	5.40	4.17	4.13

The dividends on these $12,000,000 6% Equipment Trust Certificates will be $705,000 in the first year. Had fixed charges in 1919 been increased by this amount, total charges would have been earned about 3.85 times, without allowing for any benefit from the proceeds of this issue.

Dividends have been paid on the ordinary stock of the Company since 1883 and since 1910 the rate has been 10% per annum. The equity junior to funded debt and equipment issues is represented by over $80,000,000 of 4% preference stock and by ordinary stock having at present quoted prices an indicated market value of $320,000,000.

Aiding American Commerce in France

EQUIPPED with a remarkable railway system covering nearly 32,000 miles, or about 154 miles of railway per thousand square miles, France has set to work to rebuild her war ruined industries. Already new railways have been pushed into Alsace and Lorraine. Rapid progress has been made in rebuilding 27,000 factories and nearly half a million homes. France looks to America to replenish 300,000 farm implements carried away in the war.

In Paris, the center of French finance and commerce, at No. 1 Rue Taitbout, is a branch of the Park-Union Foreign Banking Corporation, established there for the specific purpose of aiding American business men to cement closer and more cordial business relations with France. We shall be glad to place the facilities of this branch at your disposal.

The new capital from the sale of preferred stock will be used for improvements and additions to plants and for additional working capital.

MARCH COTTON DROPS FULL 300 POINTS

Spots Fall 125 Points, While All Months Suffer in Sensational Break.

LIVERPOOL IS ALSO WEAK

The cotton market was as sensational as it had been on the previous day, but instead of making a further advance it broke very badly. Most of the excitement was confined to the March option, which runs out at noon today, but some of it extended to May contracts and the months thereafter were not uninfluenced by the collapse of the March future. Spots fell 125 points, which exactly equalled the gain of Tuesday.

March contracts broke the full 300 points, selling down to 29.80 in the afternoon, as against the closing of the preceding night of 42.80. The net decline from the record high of the day before was really 338 points, or $16.90 a bale, for on Tuesday March sold at 43.18 at the top of the bulge. Yesterday, it appeared, most of the short interest in March had covered, or had switched to some later month, which is more likely, and on the issuance of only a few notices the market became extremely weak.

Other months also suffered in the break. May, which becomes the "near" month after midday today, started 20 points under its closing of the day before, and in the afternoon sold off even 100 points, closing at the very bottom. July suffered almost as much with an extreme loss of 89 points and a net closing loss of 81 points. The others, from October on, lost between 70 and 80 points on the day and finished at the low levels.

The break in March was not the only unfavorable factor. The Liverpool market was weak throughout and closed off 20 to 35 points for futures and 31 points lower for spots. These declines are equal to about twice as much in our market, and accompanying the break abroad, the demand here for Liverpool account was very scant. Trade buying, too, was notable chiefly for its absence and during the excessively weak periods offerings were allowed to force prices down sometimes as much as 20 to 40 points without takers.

Exports for the day were something of a disappointment, amounting to only 17,400 bales, and while this gives a total for the week to date of 106,189 bales, the amounts to go forward the last two days have been rather low.

Yesterday's cotton statistics were:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous Day.

We call your attention to a letter from Mr. G. N. Allen, Chairman of the Company's Board of Directors, which is summarized as follows:

BUSINESS: The Oneida Community was established in 1848 and was incorporated as the Oneida Community, Limited, in 1880. The business of the company has shown continuous development. Its principal products today are silver plated tableware and animal traps.

As a result of nearly twenty years' intensive and very successful advertising and merchandising efforts, the Company's principal line of silverware, COMMUNITY PLATE, has become a household word throughout the country.

The manufacture of animal traps is the company's oldest business, and it has for years manufactured over three-quarters of all the game traps produced in America. The present high price of furs has greatly increased the demand for the company's traps.

PURPOSE OF THIS ISSUE: The proceeds will be used to provide additional working capital made necessary by the recent growth of the company.

PREFERENCES: This preferred Stock is entitled to receive regularly 7% cumulative dividends, payable quarterly in preference to any dividend on the Common Stock, and will pay additional dividends at the rate of 1% a year—making a total of 8%—whenever the profits for the preceding year, available for common dividends, equal or exceed 12% of the total par value of the outstanding Common Stock and the surplus. Because of last year's favorable showing, this Preferred Stock will bear the 8% rate for the balance of this year, and had it been outstanding, 8% dividends would have been paid on same for six of the past ten years.

If called for redemption, this stock is entitled to receive $30.00 per share, and on any distribution of capital assets, the stock shall be entitled to receive an amount equal to its par value and any unpaid dividends accumulated thereon before any distribution shall be made to the Common Stock.

FOR INVESTMENT, HE SAYS

For a figure reported at $2,500,000, Norman S. Riesenfeld, one of the most active real estate operators in the financial district, closed contracts yesterday for the purchase of the property known as the Standard Arcade, at 44 to 50 Broadway, from the Standard Oil Company.

The property, which consists of a four-story building, with an arcade, extends through the block to 45 and 47 New Street. It has a frontage of 81.9 feet on Broadway and 79.2 feet on New Street, with a depth of 175 feet on the southerly line. There are sixteen stores on the Broadway and New Street levels. L. J. Phillips and & Co. represented the company in the transaction.

The arcade was built by the Standarrd Oil Company of New York in 1915, and upon the plot at the time it was taken over by them was a seven-story office building, 44 and 46 Broadway, the four-story building, 48 Broadway, and the eleven-story "Tower Building," known as 50 Broadway, built from plans of Bradford L. Gilbert, and the first steel skyscraper erected, it is believed, in this country.

In 1908 plans were approved for a thirty-eight story skyscraper to cover this plot to cost $3,475,000, but this improvement was never carried out. The original Tower Building which covered the plot at 50 Broadway was built thirty-one years ago, and it introduced the type of construction of which the Woolworth Building is the modern consummation. L. J. Phillips & Co. were the brokers in the sale of the property when this was built.

The Tower Building embodied the principles of skeleton construction in the side walls where an iron frame work supported not only the floor beams, but also the masonry of the walls. The practicability of the principle having been demonstrated, the advantages of steel over iron for the frame work were at once apparent, and from this first experiment steel skeleton constuction dates its later development.

In 1889, the year in which the Tower Building was finished the total amount of steel required for structural purposes in this country was only 356,000 tons, while in 1916, when the peak of structural development was attained, this had grown to about 5,000,000 tons.

The present structure known as the Standard Arcade is one of the most beautiful buildings in point of architecture on Manhattan Island, it being four stories in height and having an arcade in the center, twenty feet wide and about seventy-five feet high, the roof being of glass.

Mr. Reisenfeld stated yesterday afternoon that he purchased the property for investment, and that he has no plans prepared at once for the erection of four more stories to the building. The foundations of the arcade were originally built to carry twelve stories.

Herbert L. Pratt, Vice President of the Standard Oil Company, who acted for the company in the sale of the arcade last week, secured for the company a ninety-nine-year lease at $220,000 a year on the Welles Building at 18 Broadway from A. E. Smathers, and purchased from the Produce Exchange Bank the twelve-story building on the corner of Broadway and Beaver Street.

The entire area of the present headquarters of the company at 26 Broadway and the new space acquired will give the corporation 50,000 square feet, all told. Carrere & Hastings, architects, have submitted preliminary plans for the erection on this new property of a thoroughly up-to-date building of approximately twenty stories, with a tower several stories above that.

CIRCUS IN LAST REHEARSAL.

Ringling Bros., Barnum & Bailey Show Opens Today at Garden.

Hundreds of small boys lingered about Madison Square Garden last night to listen to the strident strains of band music which came faintly through the walls. One lad, more venturesome than the rest, had climbed in some mysterious way to a window-sill high up on the outside of this building, and from his precarious perch shouted down to his companions.

"Ele-phunts, hundreds of 'em," he called, "and acrobats and dogs and horses—I guess about a million horses—and clowns. You oughter of saw what those acrobats just done."

Inside lithe acrobats were accomplishing amazing feats; riders, with their horses galloping at break-neck speed, were smiling confidently, clowns were going through the drollest antics, and elephants, horses, dogs, seals, pigs, geese, kangaroos were doing marvelous things—all to empty seats. It was the final dress rehearsal of the Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey circus, which today will officially throw open its doors.

Down in the Garden yesterday finishing touches were done on bright trappings in preparation for the first performance. At just 1:15 today the doors will open, and an hour later, 2:15, to be exact—the grand introductory pageant" will begin. The dress rehearsal last night was just what was needed to take the cold-weather kinks out of the circus and prepare it for the season of 1920. It also served as a final try-out for the numerous acts that make up the entertainment.

So today is, in the words of the press agent, "the day" for every youngster from 7 to 70. And to use the phrase of the small boy on the window-sill—we will have to take the word for it until this afternoon—it is "some show."

PIERCE ARROW PROFITS.

The report of the Pierce Arrow Motor Company for 1919 shows net profits, after the deduction of charges and Federal taxes, of $2,491,070. After the deduction of preferred dividends this was equal to $6.75 a share earned on the 250,000 shares of capital stock of no par value. Last year $7.56 a share was earned. Net earnings are reported at $3,161,122, as compared with $4,273,172 in 1918, but attention is called to the fact that allowances of $501,328 for depreciation of properties had been made before net was set down.

The balance sheet of the company as of Dec. 31, 1919, shows property account at $5,522,808, as compared with $4,874,351 in 1918, and inventories decreased to $12,545,422 from $14,582,351. The cash item decreased to $1,424,163 from $2,-238,600. Bank loans were cut to $3,-600,000 from $3,837,500 and accrued war taxes were shown at $600,000, as compared with $1,200,000 in the preceding year. In his remarks to shareholders President C. Jay Morehouse explained that it will take some time to make necessary adjustments for the proper utilization of expanded plant facilities which were the direct result of the war. Present plans, he said, contemplate increasing production, both in passenger cars and trucks, which should result in a reduction of overhead.

"Pennay" Protects Guard Employes.

PHILADELPHIA, March 24.—The Board of Directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company today adopted a resolution providing that any officer or employe belonging to the National Guard shall be entitled to leave of absence without loss of pay, annual vacation privilege or rating as to efficiency for any period up to fifteen days at a time during which he may be summoned into active service or undergo field training.

FOUR STOCK BROKERS ARRESTED IN BOSTON

BOSTON, March 24.—Four stock promoters and brokers were arrested today on a charge of violating the laws regarding advertising of stock issues. They were Louis C. Van Riper of New York, who has figured in the promotion of silver stocks; W. R. Fitzgerald, Everett C. Tarr and Daniel Samuels, brokers. Samuels is a member of the firm of Lowe & Co. The warrants were issued after a conference between Attorney General J. Weston Allen and city police officials.

The charge against those arrested is that they failed to file at the State House, as required by law, statements regarding the stock issues of a silver company which they exploited.

FATHER SHOOTS SON "TO SAVE HIS SOUL"

Aged Chicago Italian Tells Police of Effort to Reclaim Youth from Bandit Career.

CHICAGO, March 24.—Frank Pinano, Jr., today was at the county hospital with three bullet wounds in his body, and Frank Pinano, Sr., was held at a police station, where officers said a murder charge would be placed if the eighteen-year-old boy died.

"I shot him to save his soul," the aged man told the police. "I would rather kill him myself than have the police do it. For months I have been worried every time I heard of a 'stick up' for fear my son had been killed. I tried to get him to buckle down, but he would not do it."

Frank, Jr., according to court records, slipped into a near-crime record when he was 14 years old. Two years later he had become a recognized gangster and repeatedly was arrested. A year ago his father carried him bodily to the police and had him confined to a boys' home. Two months later he was released at the instance of Mrs. Pinano.

Between sobs the aged father told the police of how for years he had berated his family of ten other children to the Church of Our Lady of Pompeii on Sundays, but that Frank, Jr., always was missing—" hanging out with his gang."

Last night, Pinano, Sr., continued, he determined to make a final effort to reclaim his boy. Encountered with friends at a street corner, the youth sneeringly walked away to escape "being bawled by this goody-goody old man," the father said, and he fired five times. Two bullets hit Frank, Jr., in the legs and the third seriously wounded him in the back.

HOW REDS ORGANIZED HERE.

Testimony yesterday at the trial of Harry Winitsky before Justice Weeks and a jury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, on a charge of anarchy, disclosed that Government agents had been watching the activities of the leaders of the Chicago Communist Party for months before the branch of that organization here was investigated by the Lusk Committee. One of the agents, James O. Peyronnin of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, told William J. Fallon, attorney for the defense, in cross-examination that he had been present at all of the Communist sessions at the Chicago convention, Sept. 1 to 7, 1919.

The organization of the Communist Party here in October, 1919, was described by Jay Lovestone, a graduate of the City College, who also was a student at New York University, now employed as a commercial investigator by a silk manufacturer in Paterson, N. J. Lovestone, who had been indicted here and in Chicago on charges of criminal anarchy said letters were sent to the different branches of the Left Wing of the Socialist Party and fifty persons attended a meeting in East Eighty-fourth Street. Winitsky was elected executive secretary, testified Lovestone, who admitted he had assisted in drafting the manifesto and program of the Communist Party at the Chicago convention. Lovestone said he was to have charge of the educational plans of the organization, but that the work was not undertaken because of the raid of the Lusk Committee.

N. Y. U. DOCTORS ORGANIZE.

Five hundred physicians who met last night at the New York University and Bellevue Hospital Medical College, at Twenty-sixth Street and First Avenue, organized an Alumni Association of that institution.

Almost immediately a debate started on the question whether the association should create a Committee on Legislation. Dr. S. S. Goldwater opposed this on the ground that such a committee would encroach on the province of the Legislative Committee of the New York County Medical Society and might give the impression that the profession was divided in its attitude toward some legislation.

Dr. W. W. Armstrong argued that there was danger of the enslavement of the profession by legislation which would commander its services for the State and that all the effort and influence which physicians could muster should be used. Supporting Dr. Armstrong, Dr. William A. Pansey of Newark said that the osteopaths in his State were pushing a bill which would legalize the practice by them of medicine and surgery. The motion to create a legislative committee was finally adopted.

CROTON, March 24.—Water is rising so fast in Croton Lake reservoir of the New York City water supply that today a foot of water was rolling over the crest of the spillway of Cornell dam into the old Croton River bed below. The splash presents a regular Niagara spectacle. One foot of water tumbling down the spillway, more than 1,200 feet wide, means a flow of about 3,650,000,000 gallons of water a day.

Grand Trunk's Surplus Only £1,100

MONTREAL, March 24.—The Grand Trunk Railway showed a surplus of £277,000 for operation of its lines in Canada during 1919, or £61,000 less than the previous year, according to complete returns from its properties made public today. After allowing for an estimated deficit of £276,500 on branches under United States Government control, there remained a surplus of £1,100, or £700 less than in 1918.

SAY FIXED CHARGES SWAMPED CAR LINES

TELL OF HUGE PROFITS MADE

$7,000,000 Water in First Company, Witness Testifies—Conference Today on Midland Lease.

Overcapitalization and excessive fixed charges were responsible for the New York Railways Company going into the hands of a receiver, Dr. John Bauer and Professor Harry J. Carman, traction advisers to the city, testified yesterday at the continuation of the Board of Estimate's traction inquiry at the City Hall. The witnesses declared that to put the properties back on a solvent basis it would be necessary to strip the overcapitalization and excessive fixed charges down to the point of the fair value of the lines supported by the actual earning power of the system.

Professor Carman told the board that the difficulties which the roads were experiencing were not the result of the war, but were directly traceable to the past manipulations of the system. He traced the history of the surface lines, beginning with 1886, and showed how a group of financiers here had started to buy up, through private financial agents, the capital stock of the old horse-car lines.

Under examination by Corporation Counsel Burr, Prof. Carman said the gradual monopoly of the surface car lines was accomplished largely through the Metropolitan Traction Company, a holding company first incorporated in New Jersey, which, he asserted, never owned or operated a mile of track in this city.

"Through this company the inside interests made huge profits on the purchase of stock and then leased the lines to the Metropolitan Street Railway Company at large rentals and fixed dividends," he said.

The same interests, he said, piled up excessive profits for themselves on the electrification of the surface lines. The work was done on contract generally with the Metropolian Traction Company and the "inside interests," while the securities in payment for the work were issued in amounts far in excess of the actual cost, Prof. Carman charged.

Tells of More Leases.

"Finally the Metropolitan Street Railway Company was leased to the Interurban Street Railway Company, another corporation controlled by the inside interests," he said, "The name of this company was later changed to the New York City Railway Company. It undertook to pay the interest and fixed charges of the Metropolitan, including all extravagant rentals, and to pay 7 per cent. upon the Metropolitan stock. During this time the progress of the Metropolitan was manipulated and forced to an extravagant point of 260, when inside interests unloaded upon the public, which was following the lead of the Whitney-Ryan group."

Continuing, Professor Carman said that after this unloading upon the public "the table was set a second and a third time," during which securities were issued by the million and other additional fixed charges placed upon the system. Then came the collapse of 1907, following which the organization of the New York Railways Company was brought about.

"This successor company continued to be overloaded with the earlier overcapitalizations and fixed charges, and has never had a comfortable margin of earnings above the fixed charges," he said. "The extravagant leases made during the eighties and nineties continued, and the present day helping to strangle the system and bring about the present receivership."

"Do you still entertain the views expressed in your recent book on the street car franchises in New York that the consolidation movement was a story featured with extravagant leases, rash expenditures, watered securities and financial knavery, all of which reacted detrimentally to the public interest"?" Corporation Counsel Burr asked.

"I believe I have proved every statement made in that sentence," Professor Carman replied.

Mayor Compliments Expert.

Mayor Hylan, in spite of his oft expressed aversion for experts, complimented Professor Carman at the close of his testimony saying that he had been of service to the board in understanding the New York Railways situation.

Dr. Bauer, whose testimony was along the same line as that of Professor Carman, placed the overcapitalization of the New York Railways Company at $61,148,000. He declared that "at least $7,000,000 capital stock was issued in the first organization of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company as direct water, pure and simple."

The inquiry into the New York Railways situation was interrupted during the morning session by the appearance of District Attorney Maloy and J. Frank Atterbury, clerk of the Richmond Grand Jury, who conferred on the result of negotiations made with the owners and receiver of the Midland Railroad Company in regard to leasing the lines to the city. Mr. Maloy said that Jacob Brenner, receiver for the road, had failed to communicate with him because the board had not issued an invitation. On motion of President LaGuardia the invitation was extended for Mr. Brenner to appear.

After a discussion, enlivened by frequent quips between the Mayor and Adrian H. Larkin, trustee for the estate of H. H. Rogers, owner of the Midland, it was mutually agreed to discuss the question of leasing the system to the city at a conference this afternoon in the office of Federal Judge Campbell in Brooklyn. President LaGuardia and Corporation Counsel Burr will represent the city. Mr. Brenner and Mr. Larkin will also take part.

Suggestion of Owners' Trustee.

Mr. Larkin said he had told the Grand Jury he was willing to recommend to the owners that they lease the lines to the city, the first year's rental of $40,000 to be applied to the receiver's expenses and general creditors; after that, at net rental to the owners of 4 per cent. on the established value of $1,000,000. In the meantime the cost of service franchise would be enacted, so that whoever operated the railroad should have authority to modify the fare if they saw fit.

When Mr. Larkin said the terms of the city's offer to lease the railroad did not appeal or seem fair to him, because it provided for the deduction of the rental from the amount of the taxes now due the municipality, Mayor Hylan remarked that "we are not anxious to be blackjacked into paying you rent for the road."

"Mr. Mayor, I resent that," Mr. Larkin replied. "I did not come here to be insulted."

The proposition of President LaGuardia was that the city lease and operate the lines at a rental to be agreed upon until the courts shall have finally decided whether the franchises held by the Midland have been forfeited by the discontinuation of service. In the event of the city winning the municipality would merely step in and take title to the property of the company. If the courts decided against the city, under President LaGuardia's suggestion, the Midland would receive this rental agreed upon minus the amount due the city for taxes.

When the board resumes its traction hearing on April 17 it will take up the Brooklyn Rapid Transit situation.

In 1918 the fiscal year of the company was changed to Dec. 31 from Jan. 31. Net earnings of the company last year were $2,335,-255, as compared with $2,619,173 in the year before, while depreciation decreased to $348,221 from $460,710. During the year the company paid dividends amounting to $836,062, as compared with $589,074 in 1918, while profit and loss surplus at the close of the year was $3,-948,937, as compared with $3,174,715 as of Dec. 31, 1918.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

Commenting on the situation in the steel and iron industry, The Iron Age says in part:

The movement of steel is still handicapped by car and fuel shortages. Moreover, the conflicting currents set up by the diverse policies of the Steel Corporation and its competitors are more marked. The ending of Governmental control in April is expected to bring higher prices for coal and coke and a better supply. Coal has been exported at higher than domestic prices. There will be less of that after April 1.

The Steel Corporation keeps on selling for second half delivery at the prices of March 21, 1919. Independent producers continue to get higher prices in all lines. By April some who are now only sparingly booking third quarter business are expected to take on more for that period. A Youngstown mill has opened its books for sheets for the last half.

The Iron Trade Review says:

Steel clearly is in considerably reduced volume. Prices, as a consequence, continue to follow a more orderly course, the fever-ish spot buying having subsided. There is nothing about the situation that merits the description of weakness. With producers on all sides well filled with orders and deliveries kept under check by operating and transportation difficulties, the chief problem for the industry is the discharge of present obligations. Mill shipments are rising, but recovery is slow and the necessity of piling of finished material in various districts has not yet been overcome.

Exchange Rules on Counter Sales.

The New York Stock Exchange has issued a ruling that none of its members can deal over the counter in securities which are listed on the exchange, at prices made on the floor of the exchange. Liberty bonds, in denominations of $500 and over, and other listed securities have been traded in between Stock Exchange houses and other brokers on an over the counter basis, according to the Committee on Arrangements of the New York Stock Exchange, the prices being those prevailing on the floor of the exchange. A resolution adopted yesterday requires all transactions to go through the exchange.

MAYOR SEES NEED FOR COURT BUILDING

DISCUSSES CURRENT ISSUES

Will Back Fight for Bus Service with All His Energy, City's Chief Executive Says.

Mayor Hylan and his Secretary and son-in-law, John F. Sinnott, were guests of reporters in the County Court House yesterday for nearly an hour. The Mayor talked of many things with the reporters, against whom, as a class, he admitted, he bore no animosity.

The Mayor was found waiting to see Justice Richard P. Lydon at the beginning of the afternoon session. "Hello," he said, "I didn't suppose I'd find newspaper men here. I suppose, though, that they are everywhere, even in heaven."

"I was in favor of the proposed new Court House before, but I am more in favor of it now. These rooms are crowded, antiquated, improperly ventilated. The building is about fifty years behind the times. I don't wonder that so many Justices have died. It is wonder that there have not been more fatalities."

Some one mentioned the traction situation. The Mayor's face lighted up. "Buses are the coming means of transportation," he said. "Even as things are now they have bettered the situation considerably. They have provided transportation for thousands of citizens who otherwise would have to walk. Wait until the city gets wide, commodious buses of the modern type. I will back the fight for bus service with all my energy."

The Mayor said he could appreciate the situation of the poor people at the present time, because he had "been there himself." A poor, honest, hard-working and capable citizen has a wife and several children. They need clothing, food, medical treatment. They need recreation. Yet along comes a demand for increased rent, and he knows that the landlord was already making a good return on his investment. The problem is one that requires action and I intend to take my stand with people who need the support of those in authority. If any one espouses the cause of such people and does his duty he is bound to be the target of criticism for those who have personal axes to grind."

The Mayor accompanied the newspaper men to the reporters' room, where he continued his talk. "I always feel sure that reporters as a whole try to be fair, most of them," he said. "I believe that they are with me in the position I have taken on matters affecting the people. Of course, they do not dictate the policies of their papers, however."

SEEKS OWNER OF STOCK.

Officials of the Paterson & Hudson River Railroad Company, a subsidiary of the Erie, entered suit yesterday before Chancellor Walker, in Jersey City, to determine the ownership of eighty-five shares of stock with a par value of $4,200, and to whom should be paid dividends amounting to $16,000 which have been accruing since 1872.

Sixty shares are carried on the railroad company's books in the name of Dykers & Alstyne and the remainder in the name of Dykers, Alstyne & Co. All members of these firms are dead, and ownership of the stock is contested by Herbert A. Echeverria and Amelia Nichols of New York, and Alfonso de Navarro of London, and his brother, Antonio F., a former Papal Chamberlain and husband of Mary Anderson, the actress.

BACKER INTERESTS IN GARAGE PROJECT

WILL COST $500,000

Four Residential Properties to be Replaced by Structure for Automobile Users.

The Times Square and Longacre Square sections, which are experiencing a buying and building movement of considerable proportions, contributed an important transaction to yesterday's budget of sales, which will result in the undertaking of another large construction project.

Interests with which George Backer is identified bought from the Morrison estate through the H. H. Gibson Realty Company the two five-story flats at 133 and 137 West Forty-ninth Street and the two adjoining three-story private houses at 139 and 141, forming a plot 90 by 100, which has been held at $250,000.

The present buildings will be replaced by a modern six-story garage, to cost about $250,000, which will add materially to the growing number of structures of this type in the block. The Backer interests now own the abutting property at 128 to 134 West Fiftieth Street, improved with a new garage recently leased to Clark & Kendrick. It is understood that the projected Forty-ninth Street garage will also be taken over by the same lessees.

Deals for business buildings on Walker, Worth and Beekman Streets were also closed yesterday. The Brown, Wheelock Company sold for Charles Lane 35 Walker Street, a three-story store and loft building, 20 by 86, with rights to a four-foot alley on west, running the full depth of lot. The property, held at $25,000, was purchased by Reuben Tallf, who recently bought two other buildings through the same brokers.

James N. Wells's Sons in conjunction with Horace S. Ely & Co. sold for Haupt & Burgi the two six-story warehouses at 11 and 13 Worth Street to the Tower Stores Company, now occupying the premises.

The Charles F. Noyes Company sold for the Conklin estate 69 Beekman Street, a five-story building, 25 by 90, to Frederick S. Hirschfeld of the Standard Asbestos Company for occupancy.

The four-story building, with a two-story extension, 27.2 by 100, at 855 Madison Avenue, adjoining the St. James Episcopal Church, at the northeast corner of Seventy-first Street, has been reported sold. The seller is the Madison Realty Company.

Commercial Leases.

The Regal Shoe Company has secured through Harris, Vought & Co. a lease for a term of twenty-one years on the entire three-story building, fronting 25 feet on 125th Street and 110.11 feet on Seventh Avenue, and being the southeast corner of 125th Street and Seventh Avenue, from the United Cigar Stores Company. The aggregate rental during the term will be considerably over $500,000. The Regal Shoe Company has occupied this property during the last twenty years. The United Cigar Stores Company recently secured a lease on this property as well as the northwest corner of 125th Street and Seventh Avenue, both properties being owned by the heirs of Wendelin J. Nauss.

Charles B. Van Valen, Inc., has leased for the Molan Realty Corporation the ground floor of 50-54 John Street to Russell & Zeigler, local agents for the Aetna Insurance Company of Hartford, the Aetna Assurance Company of America and the Standard Fire Insurance Company of Hartford. The building is opposite the future home of the Travelers' Insurance Company at 55 John Street, recently acquired under long lease. Russell & Zeigler move from the ground and second floors of 95 William Street, which has been bought by the Home Insurance Company.

M. & L. Hess, Inc., leased for the Broadbelt Realty Company the entire building at 68 Grand Street to Cobb-Macey-Dohme, Inc., for use as a salesroom and warehouse for commercial furniture.

Will Alter Apartment for Business.

The McReynolds Realty Corporation has purchased the nine-story elevator apartment house, on a plot 74 by 95, at 80 Madison Avenue. It is the intention of the buyers to add three additional stories and remodel the building for the silk trade. The owner of record is the No. 80 Madison Avenue Corporation. Mr. Reynolds also bought from Augusta Parkin and others the four-story elevator apartment house, 30 by 123, at 49 Fifth Avenue, adjoining the southeast corner of Twelfth Street.

This building, which was erected in 1852, will be altered into small suites. The entire transaction involves a consideration of more than $1,000,000. Ames & Co. and the Cruikshank Company negotiated the transaction.

Fruit Wholesalers Buy.

Heller Brothers, wholesale fruit dealers, who are tenants in the six-story business building at 305 Washington Street, northeast corner of Duane Street, purchased the property yesterday from James J. McCarren. The plot measures 26 by 50.

Two weeks ago Heller Brothers bought through Arthur C. Sheridan, Inc., the five-story building at 312 Washington Street for occupancy. The building was found inadequate for their needs, necessitating the purchase of their present quarters.

DEADLOCK ON MILK THREATENS SUPPLY

CONFERENCE IS FUTILE

If Agreement Is Not Reached Soon He Fears City Will Face Famine April 1.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, last night declared that the city was threatened with a severance of its milk supply beginning April 1 next, unless the deadlock between the Milk Conference Board, representing distributers and manufacturers of milk by-products, and the officials of the Dairymen's League, the producers' organization, is satisfactorily adjusted before that time over the price to be paid to farmers beginning the first of next month.

"I view the situation following the failure of the distributers and manufacturers on the one hand to agree with the farmers' organization on the price to be paid for April milk with unhappiness of mind," declared the Health Commissioner.

Conference Fails to Agree.

The Health Commissioner's announcement preceded the following statement which was given out at the headquarters of the Dairymen's League, where the conference with the Milk Conference Board was held at 7 o'clock last evening:

"No agreement has been reached as yet on the price of April milk. The question still is under consideration. We expect to be able to make a definite announcement at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon."

Several of those who attended the conference intimated that the question was as far away from settlement as it was a week ago.

The conferences between the Milk Conference Board and the officials of the Dairymen's League were held behind closed doors in the dairymen's headquarters, 303 Fifth Avenue. There were heated discussions over the refusal of the farmers to permit a considerable decrease in the price they have been receiving.

The contracts for the present year expire at the end of this month. Roswell D. Cooper, President of the Dairymen's League, admitted Tuesday night last that it was hardly likely that the yearly form of contract would be renewed. He said he believed that that contracts, if renewed at all would probably be signed on a monthly basis.

Dr. Copeland's declaration followed a conference over which he presided yesterday afternoon, which was attended by representatives of eight of the largest milk distributing companies in the city. The Health Commissioner called the conference to discuss his scheme to start an educational campaign in the city, backed by the Department of Health, to encourage more liberal consumption of milk in the homes of the city, particularly the poor, as a means of disposing of surplus milk now alleged to be going to waste on farms up-State.

The conference was attended by Daniel S. Horton, secretary and treasurer of the Sheffield Farms Company; Charles Niedner, of the Empire State Dairy Company of Brooklyn; William Burgess of the Standard Dairy Company; W. M. Evans of the W. M. Evans Milk Company; L. L. Campbell of the Clover Farms Milk Company; William Levy of the Levy Dairy Company; B. S. Halsey of the Sheffield Farms Company and E. N. Watson of the High Ground Dairy Company of Brooklyn. H. A. Cronk, Vice President of the Borden's Farm Products Company, wrote a letter to the Health Commissioner, saying that owing to the importance of the conference he was attending between the Milk Conference Board and the Dairymen's League, he was unable to attend, but hoped to attend a future meeting.

At the close of the conference in his office Health Commissioner Copeland announced that nothing had been accomplished, although there had been considerable discussion over his scheme.

Milk and Infant Mortality.

"Statistics compiled by the Health Department reveal that for seven weeks following the sudden shutting off of the milk supply to the city on Jan. 1, 1919, there was a gradual increase in the mortality among the children of this city," said the Health Commissioner. "At the beginning of the year the death rate among children was ninety in every one thousand, and in the very next week following the shutting off of the milk supply the death rate among children began to rise. By the seventh week it had reached 115 deaths in every one thousand children, very much above the normal figure, even for that time of the year. The failure to provide the children of the city with milk causes malnutrition."

Dr. Copeland declared that the Dairymen's League was in the control of three men—Mr. Cooper, the President; John D. Miller, Vice President and counsel for the organization, and Albert Manning, Secretary of the organization.

Opposed to City Handling Milk.

Commissioner Copeland was asked about the proposal of District Attorney Swann to have the city undertake to establish municipally controlled milk depots for the sale of milk at from 10 to 12 cents a quart.

"I have not conferred with any official on that matter," he said. "I might say right here that I am opposed to the city handling the distribution of milk, unless that is found to be the last resort. I hold that the milk distributers have the brains and the experience to distribute milk to the people of the city in a manner satisfactory to them, and that novices under the City Government could not successfully undertake such a scheme.

Martens Sues Review of Reviews.

Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, so-called Soviet Ambassador to the United States, sued the Review of Reviews, Albert Shaw, the editor, and Arthur Wallace Dunn in the Supreme Court yesterday for $1,000,000 damages because of an article by Mr. Dunn in the February number entitled, "The Reds in America." The article stated that Martens was spreading propaganda "looking to the destruction of the Government of the United States," which the plaintiff says is false.

Australian Commissioner Speaks.

The opportunities for American trade with Australia were emphasized by Mark Sheldon, Australian High Commissioner to the United States, yesterday, in an address to the American Manufacturers Export Association. He urged this country to develop its imports from Australia in order to improve the exchange situation.

FRENCH MOTOR BOAT BEATS WORLD'S RECORD

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 24.—The world's speed record for a motor boat was beaten at private trials on the Seine near Paris yesterday by a boat of French design. The trials were carried out on a 500-meter course where the current is slight, and the official chronometers recorded that this was covered in from 14 to 18 seconds at different trials. The general speed may be set down as 120 kilometers or 75 miles an hour.

The boat is driven by a 450 horse power motor and weighs only 1,790 kilos. Naval constructors have held that a propeller, turning more than 1,800 revolutions a minute would produce a vacuum about itself and in consequence fail to secure speed. The inventors of the new record-breaker, however, have disproved this theory and used a multiplicator which produced 3,000 revolutions a minute. The motor used was of the same type as those used in the British R-34, which crossed the Atlantic last Summer.

The former world's record for speed on the water was held by the American boat Whipporwill, which on Lake George made a speed of 112 kilometres, 500 metres an hour. The French boat, which is called Sunbeal Despujols, after the inventors, is perfectly stable and easily steered with a double helm. The brand nowe just lie on the water, but the design meets all the requirements of a motor boat as distinct from a glider.

Prison for Assaulting Policeman.

Magistrate Corrigan in the Tombs Court yesterday sentenced Max Russakoff of 1,834 Berger Street, Brooklyn, to ten days in the Workhouse for assaulting Policeman Charles R. Harson of the Old Slip Station, who sought to disperse a group of strikers and their pickets in the jewelry district of Maiden Lane. The Magistrate made this comment: "We hear considerable about police brutality, but in this case the evidence shows the officer used more forbearance than was necessary and he would have been justified in using a blackjack on the defendant."

Let The Cushion Temper Your Step

The pure felt and cork cushion in the Dr. A. Reed Cushion Shoes plays a dual role; it not alone relieves the sole of the foot of considerable weight of the body but it also acts as a buffer between the foot and the pavement. In this way each step is tempered by the cushion and the contact made an easy one.

Because of their wonderful cushion, the Dr. A. Reed Cushion Shoes are conducive to good health. You cannot afford, in justice to yourself, to wear uncomfortable shoes when these shoes can be purchased at the same price as ordinary ones.
